PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 104th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Vol. 141

WASHINGTON, TUESDAY, JULY 18, 1995

No. 116

House of Representatives

The House met at 9 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore [Mr. SHAW].

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,

July 18, 1995.

I hereby designate the Honorable CLAY SHAW to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NEWT GINGRICH,

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING BUSINESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of May 12, 1995, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning hour debates. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to not to exceed 25 minutes, and each Member except the majority and minority leaders limited to not to exceed 5 minutes.

LEARNING THE LESSONS OF THE PAST

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. GOSS] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, the famous admonition that those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it is often put another way: We must learn the lessons of the past to prevent making similar mistakes in the future. When it comes to the safety of the Nation's blood supply, this simple adage translates into a message of life and death. We know that during the early 1980's blood and blood products became tainted with the virus that causes AIDS. The early clues that there was a problem manifested themselves in the hemophilia community, because people with hemophilia frequently use products made from blood that is pooled from thousands of donors. We now know that during the early 1980's, approximately one-half of the Nation's hemophiliacs—some 8,000 people—became infected with the virus that causes AIDS through the use of contaminated blood-clotting products.

How did this happen? Why did the system that was established to safeguard the supply of blood and blood products fail to heed early warning signs and prove so slow to respond to a dangerous threat? How can we prevent such a tragedy from happening again? More than 2 years ago, I joined with Senators GRAHAM of Florida and KENNEDY of Massachusetts in asking HHS Secretary Donna Shalala to conduct a review of the events surrounding this medical disaster. The results of that intensive and objective review have come to us in the form of a report, presented last week by the National Academy of Sciences' Institute of Medicine—the IOM. The conclusions of this report are important—not just for their candor in describing the quote "Failure of leadership and inadequate institutional decisionmaking processes" unquote to meet the challenge of a deadly new blood-borne disease—but also for their recommended changes to the system.

In underscoring the Federal Government's shared responsibility for the safety of the blood supply, the report concludes that the FDA—which has regulatory authority over blood and blood products—quote "Consistently chose the least aggressive option that was justifiable." On several occasions, the report found, the FDA quote "Did not adequately use its regulatory authority and therefore missed opportunities to protect the public health." Unquote. And it notes that decisionmakers acted with an abundance of caution, seeking to engender quote "a minimum of criticism." Unquote. All of these observations led the IOM to recommend a series of changes in the way the FDA regulates blood and blood products—and improvements in Public Health Service structure to yield early and aggressive response to new threats to the blood supply.

The IOM panel also proposes a no-fault compensation program prospectively for future victims of adverse consequences from the use of blood and blood products. But what about the 8,000 victims of the tragedy that has already happened? Although this question was beyond its purview, the IOM suggested that its prospective recommendation quote "Might serve to guide policymakers as they consider whether to implement a compensation system for those infected in the 1980's" unquote. And so I ask my colleagues to consider H.R. 1023, a bill I introduced in February that now has 110 bipartisan cosponsors. The Ricky Ray Hemophilia Relief Fund Act named for a victim from my old congressional district, as it is known, establishes a compensation program for the victims of hemophilia-associated AIDS. It is based on the premise that has now been supported by the IOM report, that Government shares responsibility for what happened. It is also based on the understanding that blood and blood products are unique—as is the Federal responsibility for them.

We have a national blood policy, put in place in the mid-1970's, that says we have a commitment to a safe supply of blood and blood products. In fact, as part of our recognition that these are unique resources deserving special consideration, we have placed the regulation of blood and blood products under the aegis of two separate laws. Mr. Speaker, as we learn from the mistakes of the past, let us be sure we stand up to our obligations for them. I urge my colleagues to review H.R. 1023 and I hope that the Judiciary Committee will soon hold hearings on this important matter of fair play, as I have now requested. We cannot undo the damage, but we can restore some faith and provide some relief to victims and their loved ones. That would be a good way to go forward.

REMARKS TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. OLVER] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Speaker, I wish to address my remarks to the President of the United States today.

Mr. President, you have taken some truly courageous stands in foreign policy. Your finest hour, I think, came when you insisted that Haiti get its chance at democracy. You insisted that the military junta, which had overthrown the first freely elected President in Haiti's history, must leave. There was nothing to be gained politically. All the polls said not 3 percent of Americans thought we should get involved in Haiti, and there was great risk to American lives. But you did it because it was right.

And your courageous decision to recognize Vietnam, what a gutsy thing to do, the right thing to do. But you will be vilified to your dying day by those who want to prolong the agony of the division which the Vietnam war caused in America. Never mind that 25 years have passed. Never mind that the MIA's from World War II numbered more than all the dead in Vietnam, yet Germany and Japan were our closest allies 25 years after the Second World War. Never mind that very prominent, decorated heroes of that war confirm your decision is the right one.

"The War Is Over. Life Goes On." That is the title of a poignant column by William Broyles, Jr., in the New York Times on Sunday, July 16. Mr. Speaker, I will place the text of that column in the RECORD, which is about Vietnam, but also about Bosnia.

[From the New York Times, July 16, 1995]

"THE WAR IS OVER. LIFE GOES ON"

(By William Broyles, Jr.)

Representative Randy Cunningham burst into tears last week at a Congressional hearing on the recognition of Vietnam. Mr. Cunningham, a California Republican who had been shot down as a Navy pilot in Vietnam, was so overcome with emotion describing the deaths of his comrades that he could not go on. When he recovered, he charged that President Clinton was morally wrong to recognize the former enemy.

Any one of us who fought in Vietnam knows the emotions Randy Cunningham must have felt: the deep grief and anger, the sense of loss, the pride, the whole confusing mess. I have wept, been to the wall on the Capitol Mall, traced the names of the fallen, sought out my old comrades, worked with troubled vets, helped build memorials and led parades.

I feel for the families of the 2,000 or so Americans still unaccounted for. But Randy Cunningham's tears leave me cold. The grief we veterans share should be above partisan politics. It is purer, more honorable and lasting. And it is personal. Tears and emotion in politics fuel partisan suspicions and revenge.

Public emotion has turned Vietnam into a haunting specter that has often sapped our military will. Bosnia is our greatest failure of collective security since Munich because we are afraid of repeating the mistakes of Vietnam. But Nazi aggression had little to do with the post-colonial war in Vietnam, which in turn has little to do with Bosnia. The Balkan tragedy does, however, have a lot to do with Munich. Because our memories are so faint and our emotions so vivid, we persist in applying the lessons of the wrong wars. We must put Vietnam behind us.

The Vietnam veterans who support recognition have impeccable credentials: Senator John McCain, Republican of Arizona, was a P.O.W.; Senator John Kerry, Democrat of Massachusetts, won the Navy Cross; Senator Bob Kerrey, Democrat of Nebraska, won the Medal of Honor and left part of a leg in Vietnam. Does their support for recognition mean they are betraying their comrades who are still missing?

That is the hardest question, because the deep, uncompromising rule of the soldier is not to leave your comrades on the battlefield. But the fighting has been over for 20 years. Our battlefields are rice paddies now, tilled by men and women not even born when the guns fell silent. There were more M.I.A.'s in World War II than the total number of Americans killed in Vietnam. Thousands remain unaccounted for after the Korean War. We should continue to try to account for everyone. But the time has come to do so in cooperation with our old enemies.

The reason why is in the mirror. Look at us. Our hair is gray, what little there is. Some of us are grandfathers now. Many of us went to war 30 years ago. Thirty years! That's the time between the start of World War I and the end of World War II. In those earlier 30 years, more than 100 million people died. Millions perished in death camps. Millions more died and were never found. Tens of millions were homeless. The maps of Europe and Asia were redrawn. Whole countries disappeared.

In comparison, Vietnam is a footnote. Yet we can't get beyond it—supposedly because we lost. But our countryside wasn't ripped with bombs, our forests defoliated, our cities pulverized, our people herded into camps. We had casualties, but we did not have millions of refugees and more than a million dead. We weren't thrown into the sea as the British were at Dunkirk.

I never felt defeated. I just felt wasted. I would have fought in World War II. I would fight today in Bosnia. But where I fought was in Vietnam.

And by now the only true response by a soldier should be this: tough. As we said in Vietnam, it don't mean nothing. Which meant, it means everything, but what can you do? In war people die. Sometimes the best people die. We want there to be a reason. Sometimes there is, sometimes there isn't. War is messy and unfair. That's why it needs a clear purpose. There was no clear purpose in Vietnam. There is one in Bosnia.

Ten years ago, I visited the site of the base where I had been a Marine lieutenant, just west of Da Nang. I went with a man named Hien, who had been a company commander in the Vietcong. We had fought each other up and down the rice paddies, mountains and in the jungles. Almost all his comrades were dead or missing.

It was hard not to respect our enemies. They had been bombed by B-52's, bombarded with shells hurled by battleships, incinerated by napalm and white phosphorous, drenched in defoliants. They had no R & R and no Medivacs. They lived in tunnels and caves, never going home and getting no letters for as many as 10 years.

Hien and I met a woman whose husband had been killed where I had fought. She never found his body. Most likely we bulldozed him into a mass grave. That's what we did. We incinerated them, buried them alive, pushed them from helicopters. And they did their best to kill us. That's what happens in a war. What should happen after a war is what the woman said after we had talked long enough to realize her husband had been killed by my platoon, possibly by me. "That was long ago," she told me. "The war is over. Life goes on."

The Vietnamese have hundreds of thousands of M.I.A.'s. Soldiers trying to find the bodies of their lost comrades is a constant theme in Vietnamese novels and films. Their families grieve no less than ours. They know better than anyone the pain we feel. We should all search together for the answers that would help families on both sides finally end this.

I loved the men I fought beside. I feel pride in their courage and unselfishness. But the time has come to say to all my buddies who are missing, as we say to those names on the wall, rest in peace. You did your best. We miss you terribly.

We fought to make Vietnam free and independent. Today it is independent. And if we engage its leaders diplomatically with the same will we showed against the Soviet Union, it will become more free. To recognize Vietnam is not to dishonor the memory of our fallen or missing comrades. It is to recognize the truth. The war is over.

Mr. Speaker, why is it so hard to do the right thing in Bosnia? Granted, you inherited the disastrous American position and policy in Bosnia's version of the Holocaust from George Bush after 20 months of inaction by the European Community, the United Nations, NATO and the United States about the most vicious war in Europe in 50 years. Granted that the pattern of the United Nations issuing resolutions, which it turned out it had no intention of enforcing and which has led to the total and abject humiliation and discredit of the United Nations, had already been set. Granted that the moral and strategic error of the arms embargo placed on only one side in the conflict, placed on the elected government of Bosnia, a sovereign nation, a member of the United Nations, had already been made.

You had a reasonable, credible proposal: Lift and strike. Remember lift and strike? It would be a vast improvement today over the unconscionable cowardice of the Western democracies toward Bosnia. However the United Nations, the European Community, and the United States twist and squirm, the fact remains that Slobodan Milosevic, the last Communist dictator in Europe, has orchestrated the destruction of the most evenly multiethnic, multicultural state in Europe, using the most vicious and unspeakable tactics since the Holocaust.

The Serbs have shown that no tactic is beneath them. Ethnic cleansing, concentration camps, destruction of hundreds of mosques and Roman Catholic churches, starvation of populations of Srebrenica, Zepa, Gorazde, and Sarajevo, deliberate bombardment of funeral processions, children in playgrounds, women waiting in water lines, mass deliberate use of rape, slaughter of whole families and whole villages, from the youngest baby to the aged.

Why is it so hard to do the right thing in Bosnia? Is there no end to the cowardice of the West, no end to the stupidity of an arms embargo on only one side in a conflict? Is there no end to the stupidity of never enforcing resolutions for safe havens, for no-fly-zones, for heavy weapon exclusion zones, and no end to the cowardice of backing down again and again and again, sending the clear signal to Milosevic and the Serb rebels that they may continue the slaughter and the rape and the starvation and the ethnic cleansing without fear of reprisal?

Why is it acceptable for United Nations commanders to drink with Serbian war criminals? Why is it acceptable for the Serbs to drag the elected vice president of Bosnia from a United Nations vehicle and execute him on the spot? Why is it acceptable to overrun Srebrenica and other safe havens, drive out thousands of women and children with nothing but what they can carry, raping the women as they flee and bombarding the columns of refugees as they flee? Why is it acceptable for the Serbs to detain all the male Bosnians between the age of 16 and 65? Will they ever be seen again? Not many of them very likely. Why will you accept this utter barbarity, this humiliation of the United Nations and of our closest allies, and ultimately the shame that inaction brings on all of the civilized world?

Will we really accept and do nothing as Zepa, and then Gorazde, and then Biha, and finally Sarajevo are destroyed and all the people of those cities are ethnically cleansed?

Mr. President, Americans have always done the right thing when confronted with such evil. Mr. President, do the right thing in Bosnia. You will find it is not so hard.

OSHA REFORM—MYTH AND REALITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. BALLENGER] is recognized for 4 minutes.

Mr. BALLENGER. Mr. Speaker, I want to respond to the campaign of distortions already begun by opponents of OSHA reform.

Since we introduced H.R. 1834, which now has over 100 cosponsors, opponents of reforming OSHA have been saying that our legislation will result in more workers being killed and seriously injured. Such rhetoric pretends that all that stands between workers and serious injury or death is the strong arm of OSHA. Simply put, that's a false picture of what OSHA does.

Most of us know that OSHA is not the primary reason that most employers are concerned with employee safety. There is overwhelming evidence that—even if we ignore the humanitarian concerns that motivate most people—workers' compensation and other medical and human resource costs related to employee injuries are far more compelling reasons for employers to provide safe workplaces. OSHA's role is, at best, a helpful complement and sometimes necessary backup to these factors. But more often OSHA has become simply a revenue collector for the Federal Government, finding nitpicking violations of the thousands of pages of OSHA requirements, without regard to whether any workers are actually being harmed by unnecessary risks. That's why our OSHA reform bill is necessary.

The distortions being made are not only of OSHA's role, but of the provisions of H.R. 1834. I hope that the following responses to three of the distortions are helpful to my colleagues in understanding what H.R. 1834 really provides.

Myth No. 1: H.R. 1834 means turning our back on the tragedy at Hamlet.

Fact: No one from North Carolina, as I am, will ever forget the tragedy at Hamlet. The deaths of 26 workers at a chicken processing plant in Hamlet, NC in September 1991 were caused by the fact that workers could not get out of the plant when a fire broke out because of locked fire doors and unmarked fire exits. Several laws prohibiting such locked doors were broken, and the owner of the plant eventually went to jail. H.R. 1834 does not change the laws or reduce the criminal penalties under which the owner of the plant went to jail.

The question of Hamlet, however, was why did no one report the locked doors, especially those Government meat inspectors who regularly visited the plant? Under H.R. 1834, OSHA would be directed to establish programs with other Federal agencies such as USDA and with State and local government inspection agencies, to check facilities specifically for fire code violations, and to report those, if necessary, to OSHA. Had that simple step been in place, the deaths of most if not all of the Imperial Food Products workers would have been avoided.

Myth No. 2: H.R. 1834 would prohibit OSHA from enforcing the law for serious safety and health hazards.

Fact: H.R. 1834 provides that if an employee is injured, killed, or placed in imminent danger due to a violation of an OSHA requirement, a citation and penalty should be issued immediately by OSHA, just as under current law. In other cases, not involving such serious hazards, the employer would have a period of time, set by OSHA, to correct any alleged violations before a citation and penalty would be assessed. But in no case would the employer have the option not to come into compliance—

OSHA would still enforce the law, both for serious and nonserious hazards.

Why establish this right to fix nonserious violations? First, it is fairer to employers, most of whom cannot possibly know or consistently follow all of the details of OSHA regulations and interpretations of those regulations. Yet OSHA routinely fines employers thousands of dollars when they are found to be in noncompliance, even when there is no apparent threat to workers' safety. Second, allowing employers the right to fix nonserious violations will help OSHA focus its enforcement resources more effectively. Most often employers will simply make the correction and no citation will be issued. Today, OSHA automatically issues a citation, which the inspector must carefully document in case the citation is challenged. The emphasis, both in inspectors' time and attention, becomes documenting violations, rather than improving safety and health.

In fact, the Clinton administration is now claiming that they want to give employers the same right to fix OSHA violations, but their proposal is weighed down with more regulatory conditions and left to inspector discretion. Legislation is necessary because OSHA has too often focused on collecting penalties rather than on safety and health.

Myth No. 3: H.R. 1834 strips away every working American's right to secure an OSHA inspection for serious safety and health hazards and exposes workers to serious retaliation if they contacted the agency.

Fact: H.R. 1834 provides that employees should first seek to correct health and safety problems with their employers before filing complaints against the employer with the Federal Government. The bill does not take away any employee's right to complain to OSHA.

H.R. 1834 also recognizes that employees who do bring items to the employer's attention, and, if necessary, complain to OSHA about the employer, should be protected by law against retaliation for doing so. The bill enhances the antidiscrimination provisions under the Occupational Safety and Health Act in several ways, most importantly by giving employees who believe they have been retaliated against because they filed a safety or health complaint, a private right of action with make whole remedies if in fact retaliation did take place.

Finally, let me mention some of the statistics which opponents of OSHA reform are using. First, the claim is made, in support of leaving OSHA the way it is, that since OSHA was created the workplace fatality rate has dropped by more than 50 percent. Thankfully, the workplace fatality rate has dropped since 1970, but it has also decreased steadily since the mid-1940's, and the rate of decrease has not really changed since OSHA's creation. The decrease in the fatality rate, while something we are grateful for, does not really argue for OSHA's continuation.

Second, Secretary Reich has begun repeating a figure of "55,000 work-related deaths per year." In fact, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that in 1993 there were 6,271 work-related fatalities. We spend lots of money on BLS to collect these numbers—and they are the most accurate numbers available. The Secretary's use of a figure nearly 10 times what his Department reports hardly seems justified.

I believe that OSHA can be made both more effective and more fair—more effective in redefining OSHA's role, and more fair to the employers of this country who provide the jobs on which the economy depends. I urge my colleagues to study the issues, to resist the rhetoric of those who want to keep OSHA as it is, and to help us pass meaningful OSHA reform in H.R. 1834.

30TH ANNIVERSARY OF MEDICARE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. PALLONE] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, 30 years ago this month, Congress enacted what has become one of the two most successful and popular Government programs ever conceived—the Medicare Program. The other, of course, is Social Security.

Given the indisputable success of Medicare, you would think that even its most bitter critics from 30 years ago would have to admit that the program has been instrumental in improving the lives of millions of American senior citizens.

But the Republican leadership in Congress is not interested in learning from their party's past mistakes. Although they haven't seen fit to reveal the details of their plan to the American people, it has become all too clear that the Republicans want to rewrite the history of Medicare by gutting the program and charging seniors more for coverage.

In effect, the Republican leadership wants to take us back to the years before Medicare was enacted in 1965—a period when millions of American senior citizens faced either the poor house or premature death if they contracted a serious illness.

It is a simple fact that before 1965, millions of middle class senior citizens who found themselves seriously ill faced bankruptcy in order to pay for care. Those who were already poor faced even greater indignity and often went without any health care at all.

According to the National Council of Senior Citizens, prior to 1965 and the enactment of Medicare, only 50 percent of Americans over the age of 65 had health insurance.

Yet then, as now, the Republican Party in Congress again and again expresses a sort of gut reaction against Medicare.

Thirty years ago, one Minnesota congressman absurdly stated that Medicare "puts the Nation dangerously close to socialized medicine."

One of his colleagues from Colorado went so far as to say: "By passage of this bill [Medicare], we shall make a shambles out of Social Security." Of course, he didn't mention that he probably would have opposed the creation of Social Security too.

The comments we are hearing from the leadership on the other side today demonstrate clearly that the Republicans in this Congress are indeed the direct ideological descendants of the party that fought tooth and nail to prevent Social Security and Medicare from ever becoming reality.

Just a week ago, one of the Republican leaders stated "I deeply resent the fact that when I'm 65 I must enroll in Medicare."

He went on to demean the program—and the millions of seniors who have earned their Medicare benefits—by saying that Medicare "teaches the lessons of dependence," and that it is "a program that has no place in a free society."

Mr. Speaker, when the new leadership in Congress claims to have won a mandate in last fall's elections, do they actually believe that their supposed mandate includes the dismantling of the Medicare Program?

A mandate comes from the people, Mr. Speaker. And if the leadership of the Republican Party in Congress were interested in pursuing a true mandate—if they truly had the interests of the people at heart—there would be no discussion of pulling the rug out from under senior citizens by gutting Medicare.

The vast majority of Americans—seniors and nonseniors alike—oppose the Republicans' views on Medicare. Rather than acting on a mandate, what the Republican leadership is doing, in effect, is attempting to rewrite the conclusion of the Medicare debate of 1965.

What is the real agenda here, Mr. Speaker? It sounds suspiciously like this generation of Republicans, under the cloak of concern of Medicare's solvency, is simply trotting out the same tired arguments that failed 30 years ago. And we need to expose this for what it is—an effort to destroy Medicare, which in the Republican view, is somehow un-American.

ADMINISTRATION'S REVIEW OF FEDERAL PREFERENCE PROGRAMS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CANADY] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, tomorrow morning the President will give a major speech announcing the results of the administration's 5-month long review of programs that grant preferences on the basis of race and gender.

Of course, the administration and the media call it a review of affirmative action, but that is not really what the review is about. As originally designed, affirmative action was about nondiscrimination—it required parties to take affirmative action to ensure that no person would be treated with regard to race.

Over the past 25 years, however, this mandate of nondiscrimination has been turned on its head and converted into a requirement to grant preferences on the basis of race and gender. There are now a multitude of Federal programs that grant such preferential treatment. And it is to the future of these preference programs, and not to affirmative action, that the President will be speaking.

With regard to those programs, the issues really are quite simple, and they reduce to this: Should the Government divide its citizens into groups based on race and gender? And should some citizens qualify for special Government benefits based solely upon their membership in a racial or gender group? And if so, how can this regime of preferences be reconciled with the Constitution's fundamental guarantees of individual rights and equal opportunity to all regardless of race or gender?

To put the issue in more concrete terms, is it wise public policy for the Federal Government to award contracts to minority- or women-owned firms when other qualified firms have submitted lower bids? And is it a good idea for Federal agencies and officers to make employment decisions every day with an eye toward meeting numerical hiring and promotion objectives based on race and gender? And is it just to require Federal contractors to grant preferences—to hire by the numbers—in order to keep their Federal contracts?

These are the issues the President should address. I must confess, I can't imagine why it would take 5 months to answer these questions. Either you are in favor or preferences or you are not. Either you think it's acceptable to base hiring and contracting decisions upon race and gender or you do not. These are straightforward questions of principle, and they really do not require extended deliberation.

I am concerned, however, that even after the administration's 5-month review, we will be disappointed tomorrow to learn that the President still has not come to grips with these fundamental issues. Rather than tell us where he really stands, I am concerned—and newspaper reports previewing the speech seem to indicate—that the administration has decided to treat this important issue in a legalistic and bureaucratic manner.

So instead of learning how the President understands the nondiscrimination principle, we are likely to hear how the administration interprets the Supreme Court's recent decision in Adarand versus Pena. And rather than coming to terms with the glaring conflict between racial and gender preferences and the American commitment to individual rights, President Clinton will simply suggest that there are some administrative imperfections in the existing preference programs that need to be fixed.

And we will no doubt here the mandatory disavowal of "quotas," with the confident assertion that because "quotas are illegal, we don't have to worry about them." But this alleged distinction between quotas and other forms of numerical preferences is truly a semantic distinction without a difference. The label, after all, is not the offending practice. What is offensive is the practice of granting preferences on the basis of race and gender, and that practice is no less offensive when called by a name other than a quota.

I may be wrong about the President's intentions. I hope that I am wrong. This issue and the principle it touches on are much too important to surrender to lawyers and bureaucrats. If a society without discrimination is really our goal, then we need to engage in a national dialog about how best to get there. That means getting back to the original purpose of affirmative action by continuing our efforts to reach out to all segments of the community—to make everyone aware of opportunities. But it also means ceasing discrimination now. And that requires ending the Federal Government's massive system of race and gender preferences. President Clinton should embrace the principle of nondiscrimination and act to dismantle the system of preferences—a system which divides Americans and reinforces prejudice.

SAVE MEDICARE FROM BANKRUPTCY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. NORWOOD] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. NORWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I come to the floor this morning with the people back home in mind. For me, home is Augusta, GA, and the 10th District of Georgia. I must tell you how wonderful it was for me to be home this past weekend. Spending time with the hard-working people of the 10th district serves to strengthen my resolve, that what we are doing here in the next few months is what is right for America.

Mr. Speaker, I would ask the people of America to consider the facts of our situation. We are 5 trillion dollars in debt. Fifteen cents of every dollar we spend goes to interest on the debt. The problem of the debt continues to grow out of control. Consider this: On February the 6th, I came to the floor in support of the line-item veto. In my remarks, I noted that the students in Sallie Bullock's calculus class at Madison County High in Danielsville, GA, already collectively owe $310,760. I noted that Mary Mills' 5th grade class at Oconee County Intermediate School in Watkinsville, GA, already owes $365,600. I noted that Martha Scroggs' kindergarten class at Episcopal Day School in Augusta already owes $457,000. Since I gave that speech 5 short months ago, Sallie Bullock's students owe an additional $7,600; Mary Mills' students owe an additional $8,940; and Martha Scroggs' students owe an additional $11,175.

Mr. Speaker, what did those children do to earn that additional debt? How can we so thoughtless saddle children just out of kindergarten with more and more debt? It is immoral and we must bring that to an end by balancing our budget.

Mr. Speaker, it is simply a matter of fact that Medicare will go bankrupt in 7 years. It is a documented fact in a report put out by the Medicare trustees—three of whom are members of the Clinton administration. The solvency of Medicare is not a partisan issue. Medicare is going bankrupt. The Republicans have made a decision to fix Medicare. We will strengthen Medicare so that it may survive well into the next century. We must act to save the system now. Pretending that everything is all right is simply fantasizing.

Mr. Speaker, on this day many centuries ago, Emperor Nero Played his fiddle while the great city of Rome burned to the ground. It appears that all these centuries later, some of my colleagues on the other side have decided to take up Emperor Nero's mantle. Some of my colleagues want to play games. Last week the other side issued the proclamation that if the we, the Republicans, don't speed up the reconciliation process then they will slow the business of the House down. Yes, America—that's right. If we don't speed up; they will slow things down.

Mr. Speaker, let me be the first to say that I will stay here morning, noon, and night to balance our budget and to save Medicare from bankruptcy. I will stay here through the weekends to balance our budget and to save Medicare from bankruptcy. I will be here until the cows come home—if that's what it takes to balance our budget and to save Medicare from bankruptcy. The future of our Nation is at stake—and I would urge my colleagues to rise above the political games others may want to play. The business we are doing for America is too important to be sidetracked by those who would rather fiddle.

THE HISTORY OF MEDICARE AND ITS IMPORTANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. DINGELL] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to discuss the history of Medicare and to discuss the importance of that program to the United States. I have heard a lot of people discuss how it is that Medicare is in trouble. Well, Medicare is one of the best working and most efficient programs in the history of this country. The cost of collecting money and disbursing it is less than 1½ percent.

The problem of Medicare is that costs of Medicare have, like all the costs of all other programs for paying for health, been stressed almost beyond belief by enormous increases which have occurred in health care costs across this country. The problem of Medicare is not one that it is not serving people. On the contrary, it has raised the number of Americans from something like 40 percent to better than 97 percent in the senior citizen category who have health insurance available to them now, something which was previously not available. Now, under Medicare, Americans can be assured that that health care system is going to meet their health care concerns.

Is Medicare going to go bankrupt? Yes, if something is not done. But not until 2002. Nothing need be done to cut the benefits, but rather to assure additional efficiencies. And what really needs to be addressed is to understand that getting control of the overall costs of health care is something which has to be done in order to protect not only Medicare, but Medicaid, Blue Cross, and all of the other health care programs, that are both public and private inside this country.

It is only fair to say that my colleagues on the Republican side of the aisle are talking not about cutting Medicare to save the system, but, rather, they are talking about cutting Medicare in order to make possible a tax cut.

Medicare benefits are going to be cut, according to the Republican budget, about $270 billion. However, a health care cut of this magnitude is going to be matched by a tax cut which will go mostly to the richest 10 percent of the people in this country, and will cost the government about $240 billion.

A wiser approach would be to address the underlying problems of our health care system. A wiser approach would be to see to it that we address the concerns of all in preserving Medicare, but to do so not to provide a tax cut to the wealthy, but rather to address the significant problems which exist in all health care costs and in payments for all health care costs.

You know, it is a matter of history that the Republicans voted overwhelmingly against Medicare, and they opposed it time after time whenever the issue was before this body or was before the House or before the Senate. They opposed it in committee as well as on the floor of the two bodies.

Medicare is something which was enacted because the Democrats forced it through. It is something which will be protected and preserved because the Democrats prevented the Republicans from eviscerating that program or from converting it into a private program. There are significant attempts going on now to privatize Medicare.

One of the remarkable things which occurred in the early discussion was the comments of Republican Members who criticized Medicare, pointing out that it was socialized medicine, claiming that it was going to threaten independence and individual liberties of Americans who would derive benefits under that particular program.

Well, history has shown that Medicare has been one of the great blessings, not only to this country, but to senior citizens, not only to senior citizens, but to the younger Americans who no longer have to choose between providing for themselves, for their own retirement, or the education of their children, and providing for the health care desperately needed by American senior citizens.

This has been one of the great and shining examples of success of Government action in the history of this country. It and Social Security are two of the most popular programs in the lexicon of Government programs, and they are supported by almost everyone. Cuts in those programs would be regarded by almost every American as being something not only unwise, but dangerous from the standpoint of the well-being of our society, our economy and of this country.

Indeed, these programs have not only contributed to the well-being of Americans and their health and peace of mind, but they are also programs which have done much to make meaningful the promise of America.

I urge my colleagues and I urge my fellow Americans to support the idea that Medicare can be saved, not by draconian cuts, but by wise changes in administration. Let us use the money we have in Medicare for protecting the senior citizens and the people of this country, and not for tax cuts to the wealthy.

AMERICANS WANT LESS GOVERNMENT AND LESS REGULATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. SCARBOROUGH] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, you know, last November the American people delivered a mandate to this institution, a supposed mandate as we heard from a previous speaker. The fact of the matter is not a single Republican Governor, Senator, or Congressman was defeated in that election.

Why did Americans vote Republican? It is because they wanted less government. They wanted less regulation. They wanted to get government, in the words of Ronald Reagan, off the people's back.

That is what we are starting to do. Now, it is going to be a long, hard, drawn out process, but, you know, a year ago when I was campaigning, I was talking about how the American hour was upon us, about how Americans had to decide once and for all whether we were going to go back and repeat the same mistakes that we have been making for the past 40 years, or whether we are, instead, going to turn back to those basic simple truths that our Founding Fathers laid as the foundation of this great country.

James Madison said that we have staked the entire future of American civilization on the power of the individual, not on the power of government. Thomas Jefferson said that the government that governs least governs best.

Yet in this time of the American people's call for less government intrusion in their lives, an ominous trend is developing, and we have seen it develop since the Oklahoma City bombing.

Now, the Oklahoma City bombing was an absolute tragedy. I do not think anyone in this Chamber could have looked at those pictures and not been absolutely horrified by what went on in Oklahoma City and the lives that were lost. But the fact of the matter is this: We do not prevent Oklahoma Cities in the future by eviscerating our fourth amendment rights. There is a counterterrorism bill that is coming to the floor in the near future, and some Members have openly said that Americans are going to have to get used to living with less freedoms for more safety.

Well, that is very ironic when you consider what Benjamin Franklin said over 200 years ago. It is almost as if he anticipated an event like this and the gut reaction that it would cause. Ben Franklin said those Americans who are willing to give up freedoms for a little bit of temporary safety deserve neither safety nor freedom.

That is something that we need to remember as we rush quickly toward passing a bill that is going to increase the Federal Government's power to wiretap, to conduct warrantless searches, and to basically give the Federal Government more police power than it has ever had.

Let us take a couple of steps back here and again listen to what the American people were saying last November. They were not saying we are electing Republicans because we like the name "Republican" in front of the candidate. They voted in one of the most historic congressional landslides in recent history for the party they believed was going to represent less government intrusion in their personal lives.

I believe this is a step in the wrong direction, and I believe you are going to see Republicans and Democrats alike coming together and doing what they can to make sure that the American people's will is heard; more importantly, that our fourth amendment rights and our constitutional rights are protected through this time.

You know, anybody that speaks out against the Federal Government's involvement in Waco or Ruby Ridge or some of these other incidents are considered crazies, right wing fanatics. But the fact of the matter is we are finally shining a little bit of light on what happened in Waco and Ruby Ridge, and we have already seen that the No. 2 man at the FBI has had to be demoted because the FBI messed up. At Ruby Ridge they shot an innocent woman and a man's son, and they did so without proper reason. Then they went back behind there and destroyed documents to hide what they were doing.

Let me tell you something, that is not what the American people voted for last November. They voted for less government. They voted also, I might say in conclusion, for honesty and integrity.

As I close, Mr. Speaker, I just have to respond very briefly to what the gentleman from New Jersey said and the gentleman from Michigan. They talked about how much they cared about Medicare. They said they cared about Medicare so much they were going to allow it to go bankrupt in the year 2002. I think I care about it a little more and the rest of the Members here do, too. We are going to save Medicare.

THE 30TH ANNIVERSARY OF MEDICARE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Connecticut [Mrs. KENNELLY] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. KENNELLY. Mr. Speaker, at the end of the month our Nation will celebrate the 30th anniversary of Medicare. This occasion should remind all of us that nearly every single one of us is touched by Medicare. If you are an individual over 65, that is where you look to for your health care. If you are under 65 you certainly think about Medicare when you are planning for your retirement.

We also know that those who have mothers and fathers alive or other relatives that they care about or are concerned about, they know Medicare is there for them. But most of all, this anniversary should make us all think about what Medicare has done for America's older citizens across the board.

Before Medicare, more than half of all senior citizens did not have any health care coverage. Many seniors faced financial ruin when they had to go to the hospital for any length of time, and all too often they were forced to turn to others to help them, sometimes threatening those that they turned to, their financial future. But most of all, Medicare's anniversary should inspire us to know that we have to make sure Medicare is there for all of us.

Eventually, what happened in the past was elderly people had nowhere to turn. Today, 97 percent of all Americans over the age of 65 have health care coverage; 97 percent. And while we must still work to address the problem of long-term care, which is still very much there, Medicare has saved seniors from going untreated or bankrupt when they needed to have health care.

Before Medicare, 35 percent of American senior citizens lived below the poverty line. I think some of us can remember this, in part because a single trip of any length to the hospital destroyed somebody's life earnings. Today, 30 years after Medicare was signed into law, the number of elderly in poverty has declined to 12 percent. Much of this has to do with the Medicare system.

Before Medicare, many of us can remember relatives, friends and neighbors that struggled to pay medical bills in our retirement. I remember a family down the street that was a mother and father and a very young boy, and there was a grandmother and aunt that lived in the same house. The grandmother got sick. I well remember it, because it was the talk of the neighborhood. What were they going to do. They only had limited savings. Eventually what happened was they lost their home.

So it is fitting that our Nation should remember and honor Medicare's past as we in Congress prepare to determine Medicare's future. It is important that we remember what Medicare means to every American as we bring changes to the program.

The budget recently passed by Congress calls for cutting Medicare $270 billion. This reduction will be three times larger than any other cut or any other change in the Medicare system. Thus far my concerns are twofold: First, how much of the $270 billion in Medicare cuts could be averted if Congress was not going to do the change of $245 billion in tax changes in the IRS Code? Second, are advocates being less than forthright when they say the plan will save Medicare?

Everything I have heard to date suggests that we are talking about pushing the solvency date back a couple of years. This is very, very important. But I think we should look at the whole situation. We know that there are Medicare changes that have to be made. Let us make sure we do not have Medicare changes that do not have to be made because the money is going to be used in another way.

Of course, we are still waiting for specific legislation that will implement these massive changes. Unfortunately, it is becoming increasingly clear that we will not see a real proposal until well into September, leaving us little chance to truly consider the large overhaul we should do in Medicare to make sure it is protected into the future.

While it took years to enact the Medicare system, and that history has been written and rewritten, some now seem to want to radically change the program in a matter of weeks. It seems unwise at best to consider fundamental changes in a program that provides health care for 37 million people, with little real opportunity to study and look at what the changes that are being advanced will do. If proposed changes to Medicare make sense, then they can stand the scrutiny of Congress and the American public. But the American people do not want to have a stealth system come in and not know what is going to happen until it has happened.

In keeping with the 30th anniversary of Medicare, let us remember President Johnson's words 30 years ago when he signed that Medicare bill and declared no longer will older Americans be denied the healing miracle of modern medicine, and no longer will this Nation refuse the hand of justice to those who have given a lifetime of service, wisdom and labor to the progress of this progressive country.

We have to remember those words because what all of us want to be sure of is that the Medicare system is there for those people over 65. It has been there, it has been a good program, it should remain there. Let us be very careful what we do.

HONORING ATOMIC VETERANS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. ROTH] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. Speaker, this past Sunday we commemorated the distinguished service of an elite group of Americans, very brave Americans. They were not the Green Berets or the Navy Seals. They are not remembered for their service on the battlefield. Yet they served in some of the most extreme of wartime conditions.

I am talking about our atomic veterans, those soldiers who were exposed to radiation during Government experiments after World War II, before the full effects of the exposure of radiation were known.

The Second World War has ended a long 50 years ago. For many of the other veterans, they were spared the fatal shrapnel or the bayonet or the rifle fire. But for the soldiers who were exposed to atomic weapons experiments, the battle continues. Today, they fight against cancer and other diseases that resulted from the nuclear exposure.

As we remember those who died 50 years ago when the atomic bombs were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, we also must take a moment to remember the veterans who were involved in these nuclear testings of weapons. It is clear as a bell that we have a special obligation to these fearless men.

The VA has cared for these veterans, but their authority to do so expired on June 30. The VA continues to treat our atomic veterans, with the understanding that Congress will come through with legislation to extend their treatment authority. The House has passed the bill, H.R. 1565, to extend VA's obligation to treat atomic veterans through 1997. On behalf of the atomic veterans, I now urge the other body, the Senate, to vote to extend the VA's obligation to treat these brave men who need and deserve the best possible care available.

This past Sunday we recognized atomic veterans on Atomic Veterans Day. Veterans of northeast Wisconsin, including people like Jack DeMoulin of De Pere, WI, who has worked so hard and selflessly on behalf of the atomic veterans, they are the real heroes of the cold war.

Mr. Speaker, we cannot forget our atomic veterans. They were the ultimate guinea pigs in a new technology whose power of destruction was well-known, but whose long-range health consequences was not. We must lift the burden from the shoulders of dedicated soldiers like Jack DeMoulin and the other atomic veterans.

The war has ended, but the atomic veterans, for them the battle rages on. Let us give them the help and support they so desperately need. I ask the Senate to join the House in this legislation and ask the President to sign it so that we can duly fulfill our obligation to the atomic veterans.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 10 a.m.

Accordingly (at 9 o'clock and 49 minutes a.m.), the House stood in recess until 10 a.m.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker at 10 a.m.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. James David Ford, D.D., offered the following prayer:

Our hearts are thrilled, O gracious God, by the gift of renewal and refreshment in our lives, by a spirit that allows us to put aside any tired ways to find new energy, that permits a new attitude to correct habits and develop meaningful and profound ways of service. While we admit it is easier to follow old ways, we pray, O God, we will be open to Your guidance and be honest with ourselves and in harmony with You, our creator and redeemer.

This is our earnest prayer. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. LAHOOD] come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. LAHOOD led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed bills and a concurrent resolution of the following titles, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 457. An act to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to update references in the classification of children for purposes of United States immigration laws;

S. 790. An act to provide for the modification or elimination of Federal reporting requirements; and

S. Con. Res. 21. Concurrent resolution directing that the "Portrait Monument" carved in the likeness of Lucretia Mott, Susan B. Anthony, and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, now in the Crypt of the Capitol, be restored to its original state and be placed in the Capitol Rotunda.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair will recognize 10 Members on each side for 1-minute speeches.

MEDICARE

(Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, we have heard a lot of hot air from the liberal Democrats about Medicare. But when they talk about Medicare what they really mean is medi-scare. They don't really want to save Medicare from bankruptcy. All they want to do is scare people into voting for their party. For Democrats it is perfectly acceptable to let Medicare go bankrupt—just as long as they have a political issue it doesn't matter what the truth is.

And the truth is that Medicare will be broke in 7 years if we don't take serious action right now. Republicans have not walked away from this issue.

Unfortunately for the American people, liberal Democrats have used Medicare for their twisted scare tactics. You see, liberals can not win elections with the force of their superior ideas. The only strategy that works for liberals is fear and disinformation.

But the American people are smarter than liberals would believe. They will not buy the scare tactics and they will not allow Medicare to go bankrupt. Mr. Speaker, later this month Medicare will turn 30 years old. The Medicare Trustees Board reports that unless something is done quickly, Medicare will not survive another 7 years. Republicans have responded to this warning. We are committed to protecting and preserving Medicare so that it can observe many more anniversaries.

It would be wrong to just ignore the warnings of those in charge of Medicare. But, that is exactly what the Democrats are doing. They ignore the advice of leaders in their own party.

Three of Bill Clinton's cabinet secretaries are on the Medicare Trustees Board, and yet the liberal Democrats here in the House act as if they do not exist. By their silence, liberal Democrats are admitting they would rather see Medicare go bankrupt.

The difference here, Mr. Speaker, is that Republicans want to save Medicare, Democrats do not want to do anything.

REPUBLICAN ABUSE OF POWER

(Mr. HILLIARD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HILLIARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to point out another outrage among the many insults that the Republicans continue to inflict upon this Congress and this country. Since they gained a majority in Congress, the onslaught of injustice has been tremendous.

They have stacked the top committees with the Johnny-come-lately party switchers. They have disenfranchised several Democrats, blocking us from voting, both in committee meetings and on this very House floor.

Legislatively, their crimes against the public have been horrendous. They do not even blush as they cut Medicare, Medicaid, student loans and other educational programs to fund tax cuts for their rich supporters.

The Republicans are drunk with their new found power, and their abuse of this power is rampant and excessive. But America is watching.

TOBACCO FARMERS

(Mr. FUNDERBURK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FUNDERBURK. Mr. Speaker, today and tomorrow thousands of farmers are making their way across my State for the opening of the annual North Carolina tobacco markets; 85,000 North Carolinians grow or manufacture tobacco. Another 154,000 depend on tobacco related spending. It pumps more than $1 billion per year into our economy.

Mr. Speaker, if you have been on a tobacco farm you know it is the most grueling and back-breaking work in agriculture. Most tobacco farmers struggle to survive. Unfortunately, this year they have been hit by twin disasters; bad weather and President Clinton. Too much rain weakened the crop. Too much Clinton and Kessler threaten the industry's survival. Mr. Speaker, the President has let the FDA wage war on thousands of North Carolinians. He talks about jobs, but his politically correct posturing has put over 200,000 jobs on the line in my State. The FDA's charge that the tobacco family is out to addict children is ludicrous on its face.

Mr. Speaker, as tobacco farmers go to market, I want to assure them that the radical left wing of the other party will not get away with its selective persecution of their historic and legal American industry. To the farmers in eastern North Carolina keep up the good work, help is on the way.

TRADE POLICY

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, 20 years ago Gold Star South Korea built radios for Zenith. Then Zenith started to build picture tubes for Gold Star. Yesterday Gold Star South Korea bought out Zenith.

Ladies and gentlemen, Philo T. Fransworth of Utah, father of American television, is rolling over in his grave. This country, the great America, invented television, telephones, typewriters. We do not build one anymore. But do not worry, American workers, you are going to get the high-technology jobs.

Tell me what is more high-technology than a sophisticated electronic device. Beam me up, ladies and gentlemen. Forty-eight billion dollar record quarter trade deficit; $11.5 billion trade deficit for May. Truth is, Democrats are out because they had no trade program. Republicans have no trade program. White House has no trade program.

America is losing our jobs and people are talking about the Mideast. We better start talking about the Midwest.

ANOTHER PROMISE KEPT

(Mr. TIAHRT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, last year Republicans stood before the American people and made a promise that if we took the majority, we would conduct an audit of the operations of the House of Representatives. Today the findings of this audit are presented.

The audit had to be conducted. For years the American people were inundated by countless stories of misuse and abuse of congressional privilege. The light of truth and accountability had to be shown on the institution that is responsible for spending the American tax dollars.

I would just point out that this would never have happened had the other party remained in the majority. It would never have occurred to the other party to put themselves on the same level of accountability that they hold every other financial institution and every business in America under.

Mr. Speaker, today is a good day on the Potomac and a good day for the institution of Congress. By keeping promises and holding ourselves accountable, we have taken steps toward restoring trust with the American people.

HEAD START

(Mr. ROEMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROEMER. Mr. Speaker, children do not have lobbyists in this country. Children do not have political action committees, and children cannot vote.

And it is no wonder, Mr. Speaker, that children are getting the shaft by the Republican cuts in the Head Start Program. Here is a Head Start Program that President Reagan and President Bush wanted to increase funding in. They did not want to cut children out of this program. This goes too far and it is too extreme. This threatens to put children out on the streets.

The Speaker has an earning by learning program, paying children to learn by reading a book. You cannot pay them to read a book if you cannot teach them how to read.

Please support restoring the $137 million cuts to our precious Head Start Programs.

AUDIT RESULTS

(Mrs. SEASTRAND asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. SEASTRAND. Mr. Speaker, business men and women across America know the first thing you do when you acquire a new enterprise is to audit the books. Last November the American people took back the House of Representatives from the liberals who had controlled it absolutely for 40 years. When the new American majority assumed responsibility for this institution last January, we took the practical, prudent step of authorizing a complete audit of the House of Representatives.

Today, the results of that first-ever audit are being made public. It will come as no surprise to the American people that the independent audit by Price Waterhouse has proven once again that power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely.

Competence, waste, expediency, mismanagement, confusion, contradiction, living above the law, no accountability, no security, these are among the findings of the auditors being reported today.

The bottom line is inescapable and undeniable. This House, this cherished institution designed by our constitutional forefathers of this great Nation is once again going to be a people's House because we are going to clean it up.

KEEP PROGRAMS THAT ARE MEANINGFUL TO THE MIDDLE CLASS

(Mr. KLINK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. KLINK. Mr. Speaker, we have been dwelling on Medicare cuts for quite some time during these 1-minute remarks and for good reason. But the gentleman from Indiana who spoke two speakers previous to me talked about cuts in Head Start. He reminded me of a Head Start Program that I visited back in my own district. You could tell when they serve the lunches to these young children at Head Start that some of them had not eaten in quite a long time.

Now, the whole question is, How can you be prepared to learn if you do not have food on your stomach? How can you be prepared to learn when you are not getting that instruction at home? The parents did get them enrolled in the Head Start Program. Teachers talked about the fact that they had made great strides not only with these youngsters preparing them to learn but also with the parents themselves.

Cuts on college loans, cuts on Head Start, cuts in Medicare, cuts in Medicaid, these are going to hurt our people, and also that we can get $245 billion in tax cuts prior to balancing the budget. The elimination of corporate taxes and nonrefundable $500 per child, lower capital gains, this is not going to mean much to the middle class. But Medicare, Head Start, college loans, all of these things mean a great deal.

MORE ON AUDIT RESULTS

(Mr. LINDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, given the Democrats' track record for balancing the Federal budget, it should come as no surprise that they used less than precise bookkeeping during the 40 years of managing or mismanaging the House of Representatives.

According to Roll Call and a Price Waterhouse audit of the House books, Democrats did not pay the bills they ran up, used numbers convenient to their purpose, and made a mockery of the trust of the American people. Sound familiar? That is the exact same Democrat management style that gave this country $5 trillion of debt.

Having heard the demand of the American people, House Republicans are changing the way Congress operates. It is simply common sense to expect the people's House and the Government to pay their bills. That is what small businesses and American families do across the country. The Government of the greatest Nation on Earth should do no less. We will balance the budget in 7 years. Republicans are administering this House of Representatives with seriousness and reverence appropriate for the leading democracy and not the lackadaisical approach taken during the last 40 years.

CRUMBLING ECONOMY

(Mr. DEFAZIO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, as the Republican revolution patters on about the audit of the House of Representatives, the economy is crumbling around us. It is business as usual in Washington, DC, or, rather, as usual, big business and Wall Street are dictating that we continue our failed trade policies with the enthusiastic support of the new Speaker and the new majority.

We ran a record trade deficit in May. According to the Commerce Department, it was an $11.4 billion trade deficit. That means we exported 228,000 jobs to unfair trading partners around the world.

What does the new majority have to say about that? Well, precious little, because they are too busy filling their campaign coffers with special trips to Wall Street rather than addressing the failed trade policy. Yes, this administration, the Clinton administration, has followed Reagan and Bush in this failure. But the new majority is doing nothing to change it. We need a new trade policy for this country, a policy that brings jobs home to America and protects our economy.

RESULTS OF HOUSE AUDIT

(Mr. HAYWORTH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, I listened with great interest to the preceding speaker pooh-pooh the results of the House audit. My goodness, the most profound news to come out of this new Congress, another promise kept that showed by this audit what blatant disregard House officials had for common mathematics.

Listen to this. Records were so inadequate and so incomplete that the auditors would not render an opinion on the reliability of the House's financial statements. This is the worst evaluation that an auditor can issue. The finance office in this institution under the previous rule processed $700 million a year in expenses and salaries using handwritten ledgers that the auditors cannot make sense out of.

The fact is, Mr. Speaker, this new majority with help from dedicated Members of the new minority will remake this institution in the image of the American people. Today the audit symbolizes another promise made, another promise kept, keeping our word and bond with the American people to get back to basics and get back to business.

REPUBLICANS WANT TO PRIVATIZE MEDICARE

(Ms. DELAURO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, a recent Washington Times story confirmed what seniors have feared about Republican plans to cut Medicare. The conservative newspaper reported that the Republican leadership's ultimate goal is to privatize Medicare. Today, the GOP is ready to dismantle Medicare today, to finance their tax cut to the wealthy. But what about tomorrow?

The Gingrich plan to privatize Medicare will mean that seniors will pay more in premiums and deductibles and will lose their choice of doctors. Under the Gingrich plan, recipients who now pay $46.10 per month for Medicare part B would pay more than $110 per month.

Thirty years ago when Medicare was established, 93 percent of Republicans opposed the plan. Now, the Gingrich Republicans are walking in lockstep once again and are out to achieve a 30-year goal, dismantling what they never wanted in the first place—Medicare.

FINDINGS OF FIRST AUDIT

(Mr. LARGENT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LARGENT. Mr. Speaker, this is a small sample of what the House books look like. I think the American people expect us to not only read the House books but also to have an audit of the House books, and today marks the release of findings of the first—America, did you hear that—the first audit of the House books in history.

In this audit, the auditors found in the last Congress a shocking disregard for financial controls, a disregard for businesslike practice and frequently having waived the rules regarding the House books.

Some of the promises that we made on the first day of this Congress was that Congress would live under the same laws that everybody else has to abide by. I think that is only fair. Another one of the promises that we made was that we would have the first audit ever of the House books.

The auditors have come back and said that the House books are in a shambles.

Mr. Speaker, there is an old adage that says if it does not work at home, do not export it.

Let me tell you, it has not worked in this House for a long time. But this year we are making it work in this home and then export it to the rest of the American people.

MAY'S TRADE NUMBERS

(Ms. KAPTUR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, just hot off the press, America ran another budget-busting $11.4 billion trade deficit for the month of May, continuing the recordbreaking hemorrhage for 1995 for our country. For the first 5 months of this year, we recorded a trade deficit with the world of over $52 billion, an increase of 30 percent over the same period last year, more lost wages for this country, more lost wealth. What is the administration, the leadership of this House, and every other "blind trader" around Washington doing about this bleeding of America's wealth?

While we chalked up a deficit of $2.8 billion with China just in May and a projected $32 billion deficit with them for this year, the administration is pushing for extension of most-favored-nation for China. With Mexico, after all the promises of increased exports to Mexico, our country is projected to run a $20 billion trade deficit with them this year. American workers can no longer afford to sustain these kinds of trade losses. Let us bring that wealth back to America.

REPUBLICANS STAND FOR CHANGE, DEMOCRATS STAND FOR THE STATUS QUO

(Mr. JONES asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, we, the Republican majority, are committed to preserving, protecting, and improving the Medicare system. However, the other side continues to play the political games and ignores the writing on the wall. The Clinton Medicare trustees stated that the program will be bankrupt by the 2002. The fact that the system is going bankrupt makes our efforts more important than ever before.

Our plan gives States the flexibility needed to design effective, innovative health programs tailored to meet the special needs of individual citizens. We will not cut the Medicare Program, instead our proposal includes a spending increase of $340 billion over the next 7 years—a 34-percent increase in Medicare spending per retiree.

We will clean up the waste and inefficiency in the system and provide an improved system for current and future generations.

Bottom line, we stand for change, the Democrats stand for the status quo.

CALLING ON THE SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE TO DENOUNCE RACISM

(Mr. FLAKE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Speaker, it is rare that I come to this well with news that is unpleasant. My tendency is to be very positive about most things all the time. However, I will share several events that I would like to call to Members' attention.

On Thursday, as I was in the elevator 5B in the Rayburn House Office Building, on the very elevator door was written these words: "Niggers equal crime." As if that was not enough, the problem for me was exacerbated when about 3 o'clock on Sunday morning I was awakened by a telephone call. That telephone call said to me, in a prank call, "We are going to join NEWT GINGRICH in killing all niggers."

Mr. Speaker, I urge you this morning to mount this well as Speaker of the House of Representatives, as a leader in this Nation, to let this country know that these epithets do not represent you. In the depths of my heart I would hope that you would help us to make all Americans believe that.

EFFORTS TO SAVE MEDICARE ARE NOT MEAN-SPIRITED

(Mr. KIM asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KIM. Mr. Speaker, I had a design engineering firm before I joined in Congress 2½ years ago, and at one time I had 150 employees, and I am an expert in mathematics. Let me tell the Members, this is the flat tax that the political leadership proposed, a 17 percent flat tax. This is what is proposed by my colleagues on the other side of the aisle. It is a different bracket based upon income.

Let me plot this. They insist this is a flat tax also. I would like to ask the American people, does that seem flat to them? Let me take a look at this Medicare. Mr. Speaker, this line is leading into bankruptcy within 7 years. The bottom line is what the Republicans are proposing, trying to save and preserve the Medicare system from bankruptcy. Look at these two lines. This green line is simply trying to slow down the rate of increase just a little bit. Still there is an increase. Each year we are spending more money. My colleagues call it cuts, draconian cuts, mean-spirited cuts. I just do not understand this.

FOLDING OF NEW YORK NEWSDAY

(Mr. SCHUMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Speaker, yesterday morning when I woke up in New York, I did what I customarily do, I go to the door of my apartment and pick up the newspapers. Something was missing. That was New York Newsday, the paper that folded that Sunday. All New Yorkers, and particularly those of us who read Newsday and were covered in Newsday, regret this loss very much.

Whether it was their feisty and comprehensive coverage in New York City or the investigations they did or the thoroughness with which they treated the outer boroughs, Brooklyn, Queens, where I come from, or whether it was the complete, fair, and balanced coverage of Washington which made the reader interested in what went on there, New York Newsday is going to be missed. I regret very much that it is not continuing.

It seemed that it was almost about to turn a profit when its life was untimely ended, and yet those of us who know the reporters and editors and delivery people who made this newspaper tick will tell the Members one thing: It did a great job, it improved all of its competitor papers, as they would be the first to admit, and it made our city a better place. New Yorkers and Americans will miss New York Newsday.

OPPOSE THE ANTIFARMER LOWEY AMENDMENT

(Mr. CHAMBLISS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Speaker, having lived in the middle of Georgia's farm belt all my adult life, I want to make sure the facts are on the table as we debate this year's agriculture appropriations bill.

It concerns me that big city representatives think that cutting farm programs is the simple solution to budget problems. For example, Mrs. LOWEY of New York plans to offer an amendment which would lower the support price of peanuts from $678 per ton to $550 per ton.

Now, she thinks that a cut like this will produce savings, but according to USDA it would cost taxpayers around $100 million. That's right, a cut that would cost taxpayers millions.

But that is not all. She also believes that this cut will spell out savings for consumers. Wrong again. Reduction in the farm price for peanuts will not be passed on to the consumers.

In fact, 74 percent of the consumer's cost for peanut butter is added on by food processors after peanuts are sold by farmers. This amendment would actually increase profits for multinational commodity traders and food companies by paying farmers less for their peanuts.

Oppose the antifarmer Lowey amendment. It will not lower Government costs, it will not lower consumer prices, but it will devastate small, family farmers across the country.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

A message in writing from the President of the United States was communicated to the House by Mr. Edwin Thomas, one of his secretaries.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 2020, TREASURY, POSTAL SERVICE, AND GENERAL GOVERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1996

H. RES. 190

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 1(b) of rule XXIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 2020) making appropriations for the Treasury Department, the United States Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain independent agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. The bill shall be considered by title rather than by paragraph. Each title shall be considered as read. Points of order against provisions in the bill for failure to comply with clause 2 or 6 of rule XXI are waived except as follows: beginning with "Provided further" on page 33, line 2, through "Maryland:" on line 13; and page 42, line 9, through page 43, line 6. Where points of order are waived against part of a paragraph, points of order against a provision in another part of such paragraph may be made only against such provision and not against the entire paragraph. During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may accord priority in recognition on the basis of whether the Member offering an amendment has caused it to be printed in the portion of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD designated for that purpose in clause 6 of rule XXIII. Amendments so printed shall be considered as read. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida [Mr. DIAZ-BALART] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. For purposes of debate only, Mr. Speaker, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. BEILEN-SON], pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for purposes of debate only.

(Mr. DIAZ-BALART asked and was given permission to include extraneous material.)

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 190 is an open rule, providing for the consideration of H.R. 2020, the Treasury, Postal Service, and general government appropriations bill for fiscal year 1996. H.R. 2020 provides funds for the Treasury Department, the United States Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certainly independent agencies.

The rule waives clause 2, prohibiting unauthorized and legislative provisions, and clause 6, prohibiting reapropriations, of rule XXI against provisions in the bill, except as otherwise specified in the rule.

The rule also provides for the reading of the bill by title, rather than by section, for amendment, and each title is considered as read. In addition, the Chair is authorized to accord priority in recognition to members who have preprinted their amendments in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. And finally, the rule provides for one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

I would like to stress that this rule is an open rule, so open that it does not even restrict dilatory tactics. We are hopeful that Members will not utilize stalling techniques that do not advance debate nor improve the substance of legislation.

This rule does not provide waivers of the rules for any amendments to H.R. 2020. It is a standard open rule, and Members who want to move funds around or reduce funding for certain programs will be able to do so within the parameters of House rules. Any battles regarding the level of funding for particular programs or projects can be decided on the floor in a deliberative manner.

I would like to commend Subcommittee Chairman LIGHTFOOT and Chairman LIVINGSTON for their hard work on this bill. As an open rule on this $23 billion measure, House Resolution 190 could not be more fair, and I urge its adoption. Mr. Speaker, for the RECORD, I include the following information regarding amendments:

THE AMENDMENT PROCESS UNDER SPECIAL RULES REPORTED BY THE RULES COMMITTEE,¹ 103D CONGRESS V. 104TH CONGRESS

¹ This table applies only to rules which provide for the original consideration of bills, joint resolutions or budget resolutions and which provide for an amendment process. It does not apply to special rules which only waive points of order against appropriations bills which are already privileged and are considered under an open amendment process under House rules.

² An open rule is one under which any Member may offer a germane amendment under the five-minute rule. A modified open rule is one under which any Member may offer a germane amendment under the five-minute rule subject only to an overall time limit on the amendment process and/or a requirement that the amendment be preprinted in the Congressional Record.

³ A modified closed rule is one under which the Rules Committee limits the amendments that may be offered only to those amendments designated in the special rule or the Rules Committee report to accompany it, or which preclude amendments to a particular portion of a bill, even though the rest of the bill may be completely open to amendment.

⁴ A closed rule is one under which no amendments may be offered (other than amendments recommended by the committee in reporting the bill).

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BEILENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we are not opposed to the rule for H.R. 2020, the bill making appropriations for the Treasury Department and Postal Service, Executive Office of the President, and several independent agencies for the fiscal year beginning October 1.

This is an open rule. It is not, however, the "open-plus rule" that the other side of the aisle requested just a year ago for this same appropriations bill. The rule waives several House rules that are violated by provisions of the bill, including the rule prohibiting unauthorized and legislative provisions in an appropriations bill, and the bill prohibiting reappropriations. Those same waivers were strongly criticized last year by our friends across the aisle, but as we have noted before in recent days, this is a new day, and the new leadership has now discovered the importance of those waivers of standing House rules in order to move legislation that is essential to the Federal Government's day-to-day operations.

We do not oppose the waivers provided by the rule. We are, however, concerned that the majority would not permit the same waivers for several key amendments that Members sought to offer. We attempted to make several amendments in order last night when the Committee on Rules considered this resolution. Of particular importance to many of us was an amendment offered by the gentleman from Colorado [Mrs. SCHROEDER] which would have opened the Federal employees' health benefit plan to all Americans. The gentleman argued, we thought quite convincingly, that since the bill itself opens up the Federal Government's health plan to a significant change, she should be permitted to offer her amendment on this matter.

As my colleagues will recall, this was the one key feature of the health care reform debate that most of us seemed to agree on during that ill-fated debate on the issue last year, that all Americans should be able to participate in the health care plan that Members of Congress, their staffs, and Federal employees have access to. Unfortunately, we will not be permitted to debate that simple proposition today because the majority on the Committee on Rules voted on a straight party line vote not to provide the amendment with the gentleman from Colorado with the waivers it needed.

We also attempted unsuccessfully to make in order the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. WARD] which would have authorized the collection of taxes from former American citizens who renounced their citizenship in order to avoid paying taxes. This is a very clearcut issue, Mr. Speaker. We feel strongly that any wealthy American who renounces his or her citizenship in order to avoid paying taxes on the wealth they have amassed while they have enjoyed the benefits of U.S. citizenship should not be rewarded. Unfortunately, the Members of the House have been denied again the right to vote on this amendment.

We also sought to make in order two amendments dealing with the deficit lockbox issue. The Members, including the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. BREWSTER] and the gentleman from California [Ms. HARMAN], have been tenacious in arguing their position on this important issue. We continue to believe that they should be allowed to offer their amendment to this year's appropriations bills. We understand the leadership has scheduled a markup session for this week on legislation dealing with this issue.

We certainly welcome that response to an issue that we have been discussing for weeks, but it does not completely allay our concerns. That is, after all, only a committee markup session. We do not know what will happen after that.

Mr. Speaker, it simply does not make sense to pass a measure requiring that all money cut be applied directly to deficit reduction after the appropriations process is over. That is too late. The point is to take any spending cut amendments from these appropriations bills, including the one we are discussing today, and apply those to deficit reduction. If we approve a lockbox bill at the end of the process, that is too late. As it is, we are already behind schedule.

As Members should know, one of the Brewster amendments we sought to make in order last night would have amended House rules by creating a deficit reduction lockbox that would have applied all money cut to deficit reduction during not only the remainder of this year's appropriations cycle, but also would have travel locked in any spending cuts made by the House so far this year.

We also sought, Mr. Speaker, to make in order several other amendments, including four offered by the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HOYER], the ranking minority member of the Subcommittee on Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government of the Committee on Appropriations that would have restored badly needed funding for the Federal Elections Commission and for the White House offices. We are particularly concerned about the political nature of these cuts.

As Members of the minority pointed out in their views on the committee report, the cuts in the President's Office are contrary to the longstanding practices of the committee, regardless of the political party in power in the White House. The Office of the White House is the office of the President, and should be treated in a nonpartisan manner.

In addition, the FEC is already operating under severe budgetary constraints, and the cuts in this bill will severely hamper its ability to carry out its responsibilities to assure the integrity of elections. We should all be very concerned about this cut, Mr. Speaker. We talk constantly about the need to protect our process and keep it free from outside interests, but this cut is clearly an attempt to reduce the effectiveness of the one agency that oversees in some objective manner the election process.

Many of us are deeply disappointed that H.R. 2020 prohibits Federal employees from choosing a health care policy that provides a full range of reproductive health services, including abortions. In 1993, we wisely reversed this policy that had been in place for a decade. The reinstatement of this policy threatens the right of Federal employees to choose to have an abortion, a right that has been guaranteed by the Supreme Court, and it discriminates against women in public service. I regret that we are taking one more step against ensuring that all women have the right to a safe and legal abortion.

Mr. Speaker, we are concerned about many other provisions of H.R. 2020, but we feel most of them can be addressed by the open rule this resolution provides. Unfortunately, we will be unable to address the restoration of funds for the Council on Economic Advisers, a panel that has always provided us with a long-term look at the economy that we in this body too often ignore.

The bill also cuts, we believe unwisely, funds for the Internal Revenue Service. That makes no sense to us, when we are trying to balance the budget to improve the ability of the IRS to bring in more revenues. In any event, Mr. Speaker, we do not oppose the rule, although we are very concerned, as I have tried to make clear, that we were unable to make in order several key amendments that should have been provided waivers by the committee on rules.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to my distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. GOSS], a member of the Committee on Rules.

(Mr. GOSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. DIAZ-BALART], for yielding me this time.

He is a very, very energetic member of the Committee on Rules and has brought us a very good rule today. I think it is a very fair rule. It is open. It provides necessary protection under the specific rules for the fact that the Congress as a whole we recognize is somewhat behind in all of our authorizing programs, and this rule was set up to help us get back on schedule in completing our appropriations work as soon as possible, which obviously is priority business for our Nation.

As the chairman of the Legislative and Budget Process Subcommittee, which has jurisdiction over the lockbox issue, I want to address the concern we have heard from a number of Members on this subject both in the Committee on Rules hearings and in the corridors and the cloakrooms, Members on both sides of the aisle.

We need to move ahead with the lockbox measure, and we are. Tuesday of last week, our subcommittee held a joint hearing with the Subcommittee on Government Management, Information, and Technology which is chaired by our colleague, the gentleman from California [Mr. HORN].

Our staff has been working practically nonstop since that time, including over the hot days of this weekend, to craft a workable lockbox mechanism. We now have scheduled a full Committee on Rules markup for this Thursday morning.

I know to some Members it seems that this is a simple concept and we should have gotten this done quickly. I would suggest that moving this fast around here is lightning-like, compared to the usual glacial pace.

Locking in savings for deficit reduction once the Congress votes to make cuts in spending bills sounds like a good idea, and it is, and it should be easy to implement, and it is not. There are important rules and technical considerations that simply have to be worked out. There are a lot of players in this.

The Budget Act is a very complicated document, as we all know, and we want to be sure we are closing all the loopholes while we are retaining the power to make the necessary decisions to bring our budget into balance, which we have also promised we will do and voted to do, and we are on that glide path.

It is incumbent upon all of us to make sure we get the thing right the first time, and I do not think I need to remind my colleagues of the countless times we have rushed headlong into something, swept by the momentum of the moment, only to find we have to go back and rewrite it because we made mistakes. The catastrophic health bill comes to mind, something I remember very well.

It is a bit like speeding to the airport to catch a plane. When the policeman pulls you over and gives you a ticket, you end up missing the plane and having to pay the speeding fine. I do not see any reason to do that.

I assure my colleagues that I and the chairman of our Committee on Rules, who has just entered the Chamber and I am sure will speak to this, are fully committed to bringing forward a workable product on a lockbox that can be applied to the appropriations work we have already done and are continuing to do for the fiscal year. In fact, we have the legislative draft ready and we are working that out now with the interested players. I see no reason why we do not have a good product that will survive the markup very well.

This is on fast track. It will be done. The plane is leaving the runway. We just want to make sure that we get to our destination of deficit reduction without hitting a mountain along the way.

I urge support for this rule. I think it is a good, fair rule. I have spoken on the lockbox because it is an issue of concern to a great many people on both sides. I would point out that if we do this the right way with the lockbox, we will be using as our guideposts our CBO figures, which are considerably better in terms of conserving dollars than the OMB figures, which are statutory, because our budget targets are lower.

I think that is an extremely important point. I realize it is technical, inside-the-beltway baseball to be talking about that, but I think our Members need to be sure that the savings are real and that they are made.

Mr. BEILENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SCHUMER].

Mr. SCHUMER. I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the rule. I rise in opposition because of the lockbox, an issue that I have been greatly concerned with over the last 4 or 5 years. In fact, the origins of this proposal occurred at one of our Democratic retreats when the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. BREWSTER], the gentleman from Texas [Mr. EDWARDS], the gentlewoman from California [Ms. HARMAN], and myself were sitting down and wondering why do we not do something like this?

My question to the majority is, why are we stalling on the lockbox? We all know that without this amendment, all spending cuts in appropriations bills are a sham. The funds cut from one program are transferred to another program during a closed-door conference. We have seen this happen year after year after year.

Let us try something completely novel in the appropriations process—honesty. If we are going to say that we are going to cut spending, if we are going to boast to our constituents that we cut waste and saved taxpayer dollars, let us be honest about it. Let us give Members a chance to dedicate those funds that are cut to deficit reduction.

Our constituents would be shocked to learn that spending cuts won in hard-fought floor battles have absolutely no impact on the deficit. I reject the notion that somehow the lockbox is too complicated to work procedurally. My constituents understand it immediately. Mr. Speaker, if there is a will, there is a way.

The lockbox should have been enacted before the House took up this year's appropriation bills because once again these bills are filled with pork. I have heard what the gentleman from Florida has said, but we have no guarantee a separate bill passes the Senate, where every Senator has lots of little goodies in every appropriation bill. We have no guarantee of anything other than that there will be some bill on the floor here. If you put it in the appropriations process, that is where it is going to happen. So let us not fool people.

Last year the Schumer-Crapo-Brewster-Harman lockbox had the support of 135 Members, including then Minority Whip GINGRICH, Representatives KASICH, SOLOMON, and ARMEY, and a whole bevy of spending cutters on the other side.

I do not understand why a bill that made so much sense to the Republican leadership in 1994 is anathema in 1995. I commend both Democrats and Republicans who say "no" to this restrictive rule and "yes" to the lockbox.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], the chairman of the Committee on Rules, someone, if there is anyone, who proves that where there is a will, there is a way with regard to fiscal responsibility, so much so that on Thursday, just 2 days from now, he has scheduled a markup precisely of legislation on this lockbox issue.

I am very proud of that. I know we have other Members on the floor such as the gentleman from Florida [Mr. GOSS] and the gentleman from Florida [Mr. FOLEY] here who have worked very hard on this issue. I want to thank the chairman of the Committee on Rules for scheduling that markup and for working so hard and diligently with such extraordinary leadership on this issue.

Mr. SOLOMON. I thank the very distinguished gentleman from Miami, FL, for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I sort of hesitate to stand up now because I get my hackles up. I have a Siberian Husky dog. When he really gets concerned, the fur stands up on his back, and he is ready to attack. Well, I am not going to attack right now, but I just have to call attention to the previous speaker. He is a colleague of mine that I served with in the New York State Legislature. I will say this with all due respect because he probably is recognizing his constituency in New York City, but he is, according to the National Taxpayers Union, one of the biggest spenders in the Congress and has been since the day he arrived here—following through with his previous record in the New York State Legislature.

So when I hear people that are worried about a lockbox and they want to enact a lockbox because it is going to save money, I just sort of have to chuckle. But nevertheless, I will assume that he is going to vote for a lockbox. We are going to put a lockbox out on this floor. We are going to go to the Committee on Rules on Thursday.

I see some of the Members on the other side of the aisle flinching, because they really are worried about a lockbox becoming part of the law, not just a rule of the House but the law of the land. They are shrinking over there. But I am not. Neither are the sponsors of this legislation, H.R. 1923. This is 1,200 pages of cuts. It cuts everything. We put this together, our balanced budget task force, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. GOSS] and the other Members, so that it would be a guide to all of the Members who really are serious about getting this terrible, terrible deficit under control, this sea of red ink which is just literally turning this country into a debtor nation. What is less compassionate than that when we become a debtor nation, because you are not going to be able to take care of those people that truly need help?

Let me tell what the lockbox does that we will markup on Thursday. It may be subject to change because every Member should have input.

Number one, let me give an example. The House votes to reduce spending in an appropriations bill by $100 million. I am going to vote for it. I have voted for all of these cuts that we see on the floor day by day, whether it is the National Endowment for the Arts, whatever it is. I am voting for it because we have to get this spending under control. But let us say the House passes a $100 million cut. Maybe it eliminates the space station or whatever it does. The Senate, the other body, enacts a $50 million cut on that particular function in the budget. The difference is between $50 and $100 million. Now we go to conference. I see the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HOYER] sitting over there. This proposal does not tie the hands of the appropriators. It lets the House work its will following the committee system, as it should, because that is the only way we are going to make sure that this body functions as it has functioned for 219 years.

The difference is now between $50 and $100 million. They compromise it out at $75 million. It goes back to both Houses for approval. Both Houses approve it.

The $75 million then is locked in. We automatically lower the 602(a) allocations, we automatically lower the 602(b) allocation. That is confusing to the people in the galleries and in the audience, but what that does is this: It means that once those 602(b) allocations are lowered, the money can never be spent again. It can never be redistributed. It is gone. But this is fair. To change that, we would have to come back on this floor of the House and the Senate and pass a resolution raising those 602(b) allocations or 602(a) allocations back up again.

Mr. Speaker, that is lockbox. This is not some phony thing to supposedly take some invisible money, put it in a box and leave it there for some later Congress, or later on in this particular Congress, for Congress to change its mind. We do not do that at all. We do not appropriate the money in the first place and we do not allow it to be spent in the second place later on. That is what we are going to do.

I am going to challenge everybody on both sides of the aisle, all the so-called deficit hawks. Put your vote where your mouth is. We are going to come to this floor with a lockbox bill. I expect every one of you to vote for it, especially those that have been standing up here saying "we're for it," and we are going to see how this Congress comes down.

I predict that this Congress will pass that legislation. Once we do pass the lockbox as a freestanding piece of legislation, then we have ready an amendment which we can attach to every appropriations bill if necessary, and we will have true savings in this Congress.

Mr. Speaker, that is what is going to happen. I do not know how we can move any faster than this, particularly when we have Members on the other side of the aisle and Members on our side of the aisle that do not want a lockbox. But the vast majority of us do. This is the way to get it.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. HARMAN].

(Ms. HARMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Speaker, deficit hawks—freshmen Members—lockbox supporters—Members of the House—defeat this rule.

Last week, the distinguished chairman of the Rules Committee told this Member on this floor of his intention to have the committee report a rule before the August recess that permitted consideration of the bipartisan lockbox deficit reduction amendment.

The gentleman is sincere and has worked diligently with me, the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. BREWSTER], and other lockbox supporters in that effort. And the news of Thursday's markup is heartening.

But prior experience in a related issue causes me to say, "Fool me once, shame on you; fool me twice, shame on me."

Let me remind my colleagues of similar promises made in the last Congress by leaders of my party. Democratic leaders promised that the A-to-Z bill, cosponsored by a majority of House Members, would come to the floor. "Soon" was the operative word.

Soon Labor Day passed. Soon Halloween passed. Soon Thanksgiving passed. No A-to-Z bill. Soon the Congress adjourned.

Now, with control transferred to the other party, the same kinds of promises are being made. The same kinds of institutional forces are coming into play. The gentleman from New York promised lockbox would be available as an amendment to an appropriations bill. Now we are told that lockbox can't come to the floor until after Labor Day—after the House has passed all its appropriations bills.

Today, however, we can avoid that scenario. We are asking Members to help make the gentleman from New York's commitment a reality. Today, a majority of this House can defeat the bill and direct the Rules Committee to make the bipartisan lockbox amendment in order.

As I said last week, Mr. Speaker, this is the lockbox. Look, it's empty. It's empty despite more than $132 million in savings this body has voted in amendments to five appropriation bills.

It's empty because the Rules Committee has, at the direction of the House leadership, again declined to recommend a rule making in order the Brewster-Harman lockbox amendment requiring spending cuts made to bills during floor debate be used solely for deficit reduction.

And the lockbox will remain empty unless my colleagues join in voting to defeat the previous question and the rule providing for consideration of the Treasury-Postal appropriations bill.

Let the will of majority rule this House.

Vote "no" on ordering the previous question and vote "no" on the rule.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Florida [Mr. FOLEY], someone who has arrived recently in the House and yet in the short time that he has been here has already distinguished himself on a number of issues and especially this issue of requiring deficit reduction by a specific mechanism that will be targeted to that purpose. Of course it has become known as the lockbox issue. As the chairman of the Committee on Rules has stated, on Thursday, just the day after tomorrow, we are going to mark up in the Committee on Rules specific legislation to carry this out.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my friend, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. DIAZ-BALART], the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], chairman of the Committee on Rules, and the gentleman from Florida [Mr. GOSS] for hearing us on this issue.

The lockbox is critical to this freshman and to many like myself who came to Congress. I have heard the discussion from others that suggest that this is merely an attempt to stall and to delay. I have to have some faith in this process and for the Members I serve with in order for this House to work.

I have met with the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON]. I have met with the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. GINGRICH], the Speaker of the House. I have met with the gentleman from Texas [Mr. ARMEY], the majority leader, on this issue. They have looked me in the eye and assured me that the lockbox will be coming to the floor before the August recess.

The gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], chairman of the Rules Committee, has guaranteed us a Thursday hearing on the full bill. He has been a vocal proponent of the lockbox and has gone with us to every meeting so that we would not be on that proverbial branch hanging out by ourselves.

For those of my colleagues who are unaware of what the lockbox is, it is a simple accounting mechanism to ensure that spending reductions made in the House on appropriations bills are applied toward deficit reduction and not inserted as additional spending later in the appropriations process.

My friend, the gentlewoman from California [Ms. HARMAN], knows the frustration of saving money in the process, to have it swept away by another appropriator or another Member of this Congress to help them in their districts.

Mr. Speaker, we were elected to represent the entirety of the United States of America. It is time that each Member of Congress stopped looking at their district as the only thing they have to be concerned about. If we are to save this Nation, it is going to take 435 dedicated men and women preserving this democracy and the fiscal freedom that this Nation deserves for itself and future generations.

With the assurance from the chairman, I rise in support of the rule. The newspapers carry stories we were going to oppose the Treasury-Postal rule on the floor today. But I am going to give them this opportunity to prove me right, that the truth and the word of a Member is a bond to another Member.

It is the one thing I learned when I first got elected to the House of Representatives in the State of Florida. A Member's word was his bond. You had to trust it like the proverbial handshake amongst business associates. We are going to give it this one opportunity. I trust the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], the chairman of the Committee on Rules, I do trust the gentleman from Texas [Mr. ARMEY] is going to give us this vote next week, I say to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. HARMAN], I urge my colleagues, both Democrats and Republicans, to give us this one chance to prove them right. If they are not, we will join together in the next attempt to prove us willing to move this House in the direction of taking savings and making those savings accrue to the benefit of the American taxpayer.

TRIBUTE TO LENORE DONNELLY

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BARRETT of Nebraska). The Chair acknowledges the contributions of Ms. Lenore Donnelly as chief Democratic page as she announces the Presidential messenger and as she plans to embark upon a well-deserved retirement.

Lenny has been truly instrumental in ensuring the integrity of the page program. She has contributed immeasurably to the education and sense of public service of many young men and young women and the House certainly wishes her well. Congratulations.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. HOYER was allowed to speak out of order for 1 minute.)

TRIBUTE TO LENORE DONNELLY

Mr. HOYER. I join the Speaker in his similar, kind remarks regarding Lenore Donnelly; as we affectionately know her, Lenny. She is an extraordinary public official. Too often the public does not see those who labor. They see the people at the front desk on the television from time to time, but there are so many others around this Chamber who are absolutely critical to the functioning of this organization, to the ensuring that we have the materials at our desks, the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD at our desks.

We recruit and appoint, from all over this country, young people to come here to learn about their democracy. I have, and others have, the opportunity to talk about our pages. But we put into the hands of a few people the stewardship of those pages and Lenny Donnelly is one of those people.

Mr. Speaker, you only need to talk to the pages to understand her vision for them, the affection with which she is held, and the respect with which she is held by so many of them.

We want to tell Lenny at this point in time, and there will be an opportunity over the next 24 hours to say some additional words, how very much all of us in this House appreciate the care and the commitment and contribution she has made to the functioning of this House.

Lenny has done an extraordinary service for her country and an extraordinary service for this House. She has befriended all of us who serve here with her and we thank her so much for that.

Mr. BEILENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HOYER].

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I think the rule we have before us today is a mixed blessing. The rule is good because it does not include a number of legislative riders that should be debated on other bills. The Committee on Rules has decided not to make these in order, and I hope it will set an example, frankly, for other bills. We are debating, right now, the VA-HUD bill, which is replete, a third of the bill is authorizing language, very frankly.

But, unfortunately, in an zeal to bring the Treasury-Postal bill to the floor, the Committee on Rules has failed to make in order a number of amendments that I personally wanted to propose. Although they meet the criteria for an appropriation bill, they do not meet the technical qualifications of the new House rule.

It seems to me that this is inappropriate, because they dealt with action taken on appropriations issues within the committee.

For instance, I had hoped to offer an amendment to restore funds for the Council of Economic Advisers, the CEA. The Council of Economic Advisers is a critical agency which advises the President. It was zero-funded in our bill.

This rule, unfortunately, because of the new rule dealing with titles, makes me unable, because there is no language in the bill, to even offer the amendment to have the policy judgment before this House as to whether or not we ought to restore funding, that is an appropriation, for the Council of Economic Advisers. It seems to me that that is right on point on this bill and ought to be allowed. Unfortunately, the Committee on Rules saw fit not to allow that amendment.

In addition, the agency responsible for monitoring Federal mandates, the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, was also eliminated and it is not in order for me to suggest the restoration of that.

Mr. Speaker, I understand neither of these provisions are made in order under the rule. I will, however, continue to press for the approval for both of these important areas of government as this process moves forward.

Mr. Speaker, I am also disappointed that the Committee on Rules did not make in order an amendment by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. WARD] to close a loophole in the so-called billionaires tax. The amendment of the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. WARD] would have given the Secretary of the Treasury the authority to collect taxes from individuals who have renounced their U.S. citizenship; billionaires profiting from being Americans in the greatest economic free-market system in the world and who now simply move overseas and say, "Yeah, it was a great country and I earned a lot of money from it, but I am not going to help pay taxes."

I am sure the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. WARD] will speak about it in the future; billionaires and other wealthy Americans who have renounced their U.S. citizenship yet are no longer participating.

Mr. Speaker, because of these inconsistencies, I regret that I am not going to be able to support this rule and I will oppose the previous question. I am hopeful that that will lose and that then we can offer an alternative rule which will give us an opportunity to consider items which are legitimately within the purview of the appropriations process and are not authorization issues, such as whether we ought to fund certain agencies.

The perverseness of the rule that was adopted at the beginning of this session in effect gags Members, if the Committee on Rules chooses to not protect them, whenever an appropriation committee decides to eliminate an agency. Clearly, Members ought to have the opportunity to come back and say, "No, we ought to restore that agency and have that debate." Under the circumstances of this rule, we will not be able to do that.

Mr. Speaker, I will have a lot to say, of course, on the substance of the bill when and if we get there. But I regret, Mr. Speaker, that I will not be able to support this particular rule.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, at this time, I do not believe we have any other speakers on this side of the aisle, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BEILENSEN. Mr. Speaker, yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. WARD].

Mr. WARD. Mr. Speaker, before I begin my remarks on this issue, I want to join with my colleague, the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HOYER], in talking about Lenny Donnelly. As a new member, she has been helpful and kind and generous with her time and with her advice and she is back doing it again now.

Mr. Speaker, I want to add my thoughts, my comments, to what the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HOYER] has said. There are many people who work here who were not elected to work here and maybe could find jobs where they got to go home at night.

But Ms. Donnelly, Lenny, as of course we know her, has been here. She has stayed and she has worked and she has made a fine contribution to this body and to this Nation and for that I think we all owe her a special debt of appreciation.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak in favor of voting against the previous question and against the rule. I say it that way because what I think Members need to understand is that today's vote on the previous question is the only way, the only opportunity we can get the Members of this body on record on this issue of closing the expatriate billionaire's tax loophole.

I have to say it slowly, because it is a mouthful: The expatriate billionaire's tax loophole. What that means in real English is that people who have succeeded, people who have inherited, people who have benefited financially in an incredibly great way from the success that this country offers people and have become so wealthy, they have become so wealthy that it is economically valuable to them to renounce their citizenship are doing so. It is not hundreds, but it is dozens and it is an incredible thing to me.

Mr. Speaker, I ask myself when I think of this issue, and I ask those in the body to think of it this way, can they imagine, they are at home, they are coming out of church or are at a grocery, somewhere in the neighborhood, and somebody says, "Mike, I haven't seen you in a long time. Where have you been?" Can my colleagues imagine saying, "Well, I had to take up residence in the Bahamas, because I wanted to save on my taxes; I have renounced my citizenship?"

Mr. Speaker, I do not think any who are listening today can imagine saying that, but that is what people are doing. All we are asking, as we have asked 12 times before, all we are asking is that they pay their fair share of taxes.

We are not asking them to pay extra. Gracious no. We are not asking them to go beyond what others are doing. We are saying: Pay your fair share. Do what is right, what is expected of you as a citizen, to share in the obligations we have, really, in return for the success that the greatest economic power offers us.

Mr. Speaker, the reason I need an extra minute is to say that this is the 13th time that this issue has been brought up. The 13th time that the Members of this body have had an opportunity, in one form or another, to deal with this issue and do what is right.

So what I am asking my colleagues to do today is to vote "no" on the previous question and to consider that a vote on the issue of making sure that billionaires do not renounce their citizenship without paying their fair share. A "no" on the previous question will put us all on record on this issue.

Mr. BEILENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. BREWSTER].

(Mr. BREWSTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. Speaker, the House this year has already passed amendments equalling over $132 million in savings. Most of those so-called savings have already been swept up by the Appropriations Committee for additional spending. Just last week the Appropriations Committee reallocated over $800 million in savings for additional spending.

The Brewster-Harman lockbox amendment to the Treasury-Postal appropriations bill would capture all savings achieved from cuts not only from this year, but in the years to come.

This morning I have learned that the Rules Committee has scheduled a markup for the lockbox on Thursday. I commend the committee for also recognizing the urgency and importance of the lockbox.

But, I would point out that the longer we wait to attach the lockbox to an appropriations bill, the more savings we lose, and the more difficult it becomes to ensure the lockbox's passage in the Senate.

I urge the Rules Committee to make a commitment today to bring the lockbox to the floor as an amendment to a appropriations bill before the August recess. We cannot continue to wait any longer to make sure the cuts we make on the floor directly to deficit reduction.

I have worked with many Members of both sides of the aisle over the last 2 years on the lockbox. And, every Member I have worked with agrees that savings from floor amendments should not be swallowed up and spent later. It must go to deficit reduction.

Mr. Speaker, I urge this House to bring the lockbox to the floor today, and allow Members to offer amendments to the lockbox. Let's have a fair and open debate of this House about the merits of the lockbox while we still have the chance to make it apply to this fiscal year.

Vote against this rule, and bring back the lockbox for floor debate today.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BEILENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a "no" vote on the previous question. If the previous question is defeated, we shall offer an amendment to the rule that will add two new sections to the rule. The effect would be, first, to incorporate the Brewster-Harman lockbox amendments into House rules; and to make in order three amendments to the Treasury-Postal appropriations bill: The Brewster amendment to the bill, the Ward amendment and the Schroeder amendment, all of which I alluded to in my opening statement.

The new section 2 of the rule would amend House rules to do three things: First, reduce the 602(a) and 602(b) allocation in the House to reflect any amendments adopted by the House to cut Federal spending; second, to create a lockbox, to require all spending cuts made during the remainder of this year's appropriations cycle to deficit reduction; and, third, to retroactively lock in any spending cuts made in the House so far this year.

The new section 3 of the rule would waive points of order against three amendments I just mentioned, a Brewster amendment to apply the lockbox to all appropriations bills, not just the 13 general appropriations bills, the amendment by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. WARD] to authorize the IRS to collect taxes from former American citizens who renounce citizenship in order to avoid paying taxes, and, finally, the Schroeder amendment to make all Americans eligible to participate in the Federal employees' health benefits plan.

I urge defeat of the previous question so these good amendments can be made in order.

Mr. Speaker, I am including at this point in the RECORD the amendments that we proposed, as follows:

At the end of the resolution add the following:

(a) clause 4(a) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(4)(A) Upon the engrossment in the House of any general appropriation bill (or resolution making continuing appropriations (if applicable)), the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations shall—

"(i) reduce the suballocation of new budget authority to the appropriate subcommittee of that committee made under section 602(b)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 by the net amount of reductions in new budget authority resulting from amendments agreed to by the House to that bill, and

"(ii) reduce the suballocation of outlays made under section 602(b)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 to the appropriate subcommittee of that committee by the net amount of reductions in outlays resulting from amendments agreed to by the House to that bill, and promptly report those revisions to the House.

"(B) The reductions in suballocations made under subdivision (A) may not be reallocated by the Committee on Appropriations to any other subcommittee.

"(C) In the House of Representatives, the revised suballocations made under subdivision (A) shall be deemed to be suballocations made under section 602(b)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974."

(b) Clause 4(b) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: "Upon the reporting of revised suballocations to the House by the Committee on Appropriations under paragraph (a), the chairman of the Committee on the Budget shall make appropriate revisions in the allocations to the Committee on Appropriations to reflect the revised suballocations and report those revisions to the House. In the House of Representatives, those revised allocations shall be deemed to be allocations made under section 602(a)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974."

(c) Rule XXI of the Rules of the House of Representatives is amended by adding at the end the following new clause:

"9. (a) Any appropriation bill that is being marked up by the Committee on Appropriations (or a subcommittee thereof) of either House shall contain a line item entitled 'Deficit Reduction Lock-box'. The dollar amount set forth under that heading shall be an amount not to exceed the amount by which the appropriate 602(b) allocation of new budget authority exceeds the amount of new budget authority provided by that bill as reported by that committee.

"(b) Whenever the Committee on Appropriations of either House reports an appropriation bill, that bill shall contain a line item entitled 'Deficit Reduction Account' comprised of the following:

"(1) Only in the case of the first appropriation bill considered following enactment of this resolution, an amount equal to the amounts by which the discretionary spending limit for new budget authority and outlays set forth in the most recent Office of Management and Budget sequestration preview Report pursuant to section 601(a)(2) exceed the section 602(a) allocation for the fiscal year covered by that bill and the amount by which the appropriate 602(b) allocation of new budget authority for appropriations bills adopted by the House prior to enactment of this resolution exceeded the amount of new budget authority provided by such bill.

"(2) Only in the case of any general appropriation bill (or resolution making continuing appropriations (if applicable)), an amount not to exceed the amount by which the appropriate section 602(b) allocation of new budget authority exceeds the amount of new budget authority provided by that bill (as reported by that committee).

"(3) Only in the case of any bill making supplemental appropriations following enactment of all general appropriation bills for the same fiscal year, an amount not to exceed the amount by which the section 602(a) allocation of new budget authority exceeds the sum of all new budget authority provided by appropriation bills enacted for that fiscal year plus that supplemental appropriation bill (as reported by that committee).

"(e) Whenever a Member of either House of Congress offers an amendment (whether in subcommittee, committee, or on the floor) to an appropriation bill to reduce spending, that reduction shall be placed in the deficit reduction lock-box unless that Member indicates that it is to be utilized for another program, project, or activity covered by that bill. If the amendment is agreed to and the reduction was placed in the deficit reduction lock-box, then the line item entitled 'Deficit Reduction Lock-box' shall be increased by the amount of that reduction."

All points of order are waived against the following amendments:

1. An amendment to be offered by Representative SCHROEDER of Colorado or her designee.

Page 84, after line 17, insert the following: SEC. 618. PROVISIONS TO MAKE FEHBP AVAILABLE TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC.—(a) IN GENERAL.—(1) Chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"§8915. Provisions to require that benefits be extended to the general public

"(a) A contract may not be made or a plan approved unless the carrier agrees to offer to the general public, throughout each term for which the contract or approval remains effective, the same benefits (subject to the same maximums, limitations, exclusions, and other similar terms or conditions) as would be offered under such contract or plan to employees and annuitants and their family members.

"(b)(1) Premiums for coverage under this section shall be established in conformance with such requirements as the Office of Personnel Management shall be regulation prescribe, including provisions to ensure conformance with generally accepted standards and practices associated with community rating.

"(2) In no event shall the enactment of this section result in—"(A) any increase in the level of individual or Government contributions required under section 8906 or any other provision of this chapter, including copayments or deductibles;

“(B) any decrease in the types of benefits offered under this chapter; or

“(C) any other change that would adversely affect the coverage afforded under this chapter to employees and annuitants and their family members.

“(c) Benefits under this section shall, with respect to an individual who is entitled to benefits under part A of title XVIII of the Social Security benefits) to the same extent and in the same manner as if coverage were under the preceding provisions of this chapter, rather than under this section.

“(d)(1) A carrier may file an application with the Office setting forth reasons why it, or a plan provided by such carrier, should be excluded from the requirements of this section.

“(2) In reviewing any such application, the Office may consider such factors as—

“(A) any bona fide enrollment restrictions which would make the application of this section inappropriate, including those common to plans which are limited to individuals having a past or current employment relationship with a particular agency or other authority of the Government;

“(B) whether compliance with this section would jeopardize the financial solvency of the plan or carrier, or otherwise compromise its ability to offer health benefits under the preceding provisions of this chapter; and

“(C) the anticipated duration of the requested exclusion, and what efforts the plan or carrier proposes to take in order to be able to comply with this section.

“(e) Except as the Office may be regulation prescribe, any reference to this chapter (or any requirement of this chapter), made in any provision of law, shall not be considered to include this section (or any requirement of this section).”.

(2) The table of sections for chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“8915. Provisions to require that benefits be extended to the general public.”.

(b) STANDARDIZED CLAIMS PROCESSING.—Section 8902 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(o) A claim for payment or reimbursement under this chapter (whether electronic or otherwise) shall be submitted on such a standard form or in such a standard manner as may be required by the Office in relation to health benefit plans. Each contract under this chapter shall include appropriate provisions to carry out the preceding sentence.”.

(c) ADVANCE DIRECTIVES.—Section 8907 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(c) The Office shall—

“(1) prepare information relating to the use of advance directives regarding the type or intensity of care which an individual desires in the event that such individual becomes unable to communicate by reason of incapacity due to illness or injury; and

“(2) require, as a condition for approval of any contract under section 8902, that appropriate provisions be included so that such information may be made available to enrollees of the plan involved.”.

(d) DEMONSTRATION PROJECT TO EXAMINE THE FEASIBILITY OF OFFERING FEHBP ENROLLEES THE OPTION OF USING ARBITRATION INSTEAD OF LITIGATION TO RESOLVE MEDICAL MALPRACTICE CLAIMS.—(1) The Office of Personnel Management shall conduct a demonstration project to assess the feasibility and desirability of offering the use of arbitration, instead of litigation, to resolve medical malpractice claims arising out of covered health care services.

(2) For the purpose of this subsection, the term “covered health care services” means any care, treatment, or other service for which the individual who receives such service has coverage under chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code.

(3)(A) The demonstration project shall be conducted as a demonstration project under section 4703 of title 5, United States Code.

(B) In developing a plan for such project under section 4703 of title 5, United States Code, the Office shall include (in addition to any information otherwise required)—

(i) suggestions for incentives that may be offered in order to obtain the voluntary participation of enrollees, such as reductions in premiums, copayments, or deductibles;

(ii) the criteria for identifying the types of health benefit plans which are appropriate for inclusion, and the procedures and conditions in accordance with which any such plan may participate;

(iii) the general framework for arbitration, including (to the extent the Office considers appropriate) methods for the selection of arbitrators, length of hearings, and limitations on damages; and

(iv) the effect of an award resulting from the arbitration process, and the extent to which review of such an award may be obtained.

(4) The evaluation required under section 4703(h) of title 5, United States Code, with respect to the demonstration project shall include data and analysis relating to matters such as—

(A) the number of claims brought for arbitration;

(B) how those claims were disposed of (whether by settlement, hearing, or otherwise), and the percentage of the total number of claims represented by each;

(C) the average dollar amount of those awards or settlements;

(D) the various costs involved in connection with those claims; and

(E) the advantages and disadvantages of arbitration, relative to other methods of dispute resolution, and the extent to which arbitration should continue to be used under chapter 89 of such title.

(e) APPLICABILITY.—The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to contract terms beginning after the end of the 6-month period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act.

2. An amendment to be offered by Representative WARD of Kentucky or his designee.

On page 84, following line 17, insert the following provision:

SEC. 664. The Secretary of the Treasury or a designee of the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby granted the authority to collect taxes in the manner prescribed under the provisions of H.R. 1535, which provides tax rules on expatriation.

3. An amendment to be offered by Representative BREWSTER of Oklahoma or Representative HARMAN of California or their designee.

At the end add the following new title:

TITLE VII—DEFICIT REDUCTION LOCK-BOX

DEFICIT REDUCTION TRUST FUND

DEFICIT REDUCTION LOCK-BOX PROVISIONS OF APPROPRIATION MEASURES

SEC. 701. (a) DEFICIT REDUCTION LOCK-BOX PROVISIONS.—Title III of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

“DEFICIT REDUCTION LOCK-BOX PROVISIONS OF APPROPRIATION BILLS

“SEC. 314. (a) Any appropriation bill that is being marked up by the Committee on Appropriations (or a subcommittee thereof) of either House shall contain a line item entitled ‘Deficit Reduction Lock-box’.

“(b) Whenever the Committee on Appropriations of either House reports an appropriation bill, that bill shall contain a line item entitled ‘Deficit Reduction Account’ comprised of the following:

“(1) Only in the case of any general appropriation bill containing the appropriations for Treasury and Postal Service (or resolution making continuing appropriations (if applicable)), an amount equal to the amounts by which the discretionary spending limit for new budget authority and outlays set forth in the most recent OMB sequestration preview report pursuant to section 601(a)(2) exceed the section 602(a) allocation for the fiscal year covered by that bill.

“(2) Only in the case of any general appropriation bill (or resolution making continuing appropriations (if applicable)), an amount not to exceed the amount by which the appropriate section 602(b) allocation of new budget authority exceeds the amount of new budget authority provided by that bill (as reported by that committee), but not less than the sum of reductions in budget authority resulting from adoption of amendments in the committee which were designated for deficit reduction.

“(3) Only in the case of any bill making supplemental appropriations following enactment of all general appropriation bills for the same fiscal year, an amount not to exceed the amount by which the section 602(a) allocation of new budget authority exceeds the sum of all new budget authority provided by appropriation bills enacted for that fiscal year plus that supplemental appropriation bill (as reported by that committee).

“(c) It shall not be in order for the Committee on Rules of the House of Representatives to report a resolution that restricts the offering of amendments to any appropriation bill adjusting the level of budget authority contained in a Deficit Reduction Account.

“(d) Whenever a Member of either House of Congress offers an amendment (whether in subcommittee, committee, or on the floor) to an appropriation bill to reduce spending, that reduction shall be placed in the deficit reduction lock-box unless that Member indicates that it is to be utilized for another program, project, or activity covered by that bill. If the amendment is agreed to and the reduction was placed in the deficit reduction lock-box, then the line item entitled ‘Deficit Reduction Lock-box’ shall be increased by the amount of that reduction. Any amendment pursuant to this subsection shall be in order even if amendment portions of the bill are not read for amendment with respect to the Deficit Reduction Lock-box.

“(e) It shall not be in order in the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider a conference report or amendment of the Senate that modifies any Deficit Reduction Lock-box provision that is beyond the scope of that provision as so committed to the conference committee.

“(f) It shall not be in order to offer an amendment increasing the Deficit Reduction Lock-box Account unless the amendment increases rescissions or reduces appropriations by an equivalent or larger amount, except that it shall be in order to offer an amendment increasing the amount in the Deficit Reduction Lock-box by the amount that the appropriate 602(b) allocation of new budget authority exceeds the amount of new budget authority provided by that bill.

“(g) It shall not be in order for the Committee on Rules of the House of Representatives to report a resolution which waives subsection (c).”.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of contents set forth in section 1(b) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control

Act of 1974 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 313 the following new item:

"Sec. 314. Deficit reduction lock-box provisions of appropriation measures."

CHANGES IN SUBALLOCATIONS

SEC. 702. (a) DOWNWARD ADJUSTMENTS.—The discretionary spending limit for new budget authority for any fiscal year set forth in section 601(a)(2) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as adjusted in strict conformance with section 251 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, shall be reduced by the amount of budget authority transferred to the Deficit Reduction Lockbox for that fiscal year under section 314 of the Budget Control and Impoundment Act of 1974. The adjusted discretionary spending limit for outlays for that fiscal year and each outyear as set forth in such section 601(a)(2) shall be reduced as a result of the reduction of such budget authority, as calculated by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget based upon such programmatic and other assumptions set forth in the joint explanatory statement of managers accompanying the conference report on that bill. All such reductions shall occur within ten days of enactment of any appropriations bill.

(b) DEFINITION.—As used in this section, the term "appropriation bill" means any general or special appropriation bill, and any bill or joint resolution making supplemental, deficiency, or continuing appropriations.

(c) RESCISSION.—Funds in the Deficit Reduction Lockbox shall be rescinded upon reductions in discretionary limits pursuant to subsection (a).

SEC. 703. (a) SECTION 302(E) AMENDMENT.—Section 302(e) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 is amended to read as follows:

"(e) CHANGES IN SUBALLOCATIONS.—(1) After a committee reports suballocations under subsection (b), that committee may report a resolution to its House changing its House changing its suballocations, which resolution shall not take effect unless adopted by that House.

"(2) A resolution reported to the House of Representatives under paragraph (1) shall be placed on the Union Calendar and be privileged for consideration in the Committee of the Whole after the report on the resolution has been available to Members for a least three calendar days (excluding Saturday, Sundays and legal holidays). After general debate which shall not exceed one hour to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee reporting the resolution, the resolution shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. No amendment shall be in order in the House or in the Committee of the Whole Except amendments in the nature of a substitute containing changes in suballocations under subsection (b) which do not breach any allocation made under subsection (a). Priority in recognition for offering the first such amendment shall be accorded to the chairman of the Committee on the Budget or a designee. No amendments to such amendments shall be in order except substitute amendments. Following the consideration of the resolution for amendment, the Committee shall rise and report the resolution to the House together with any amendment that may have been adopted. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the resolution to final adoption without intervening motion. It shall not be in order to consider a motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution is agreed to or disagreed to."

(b) SECTION 602(B)(1) AMENDMENT.—The last sentence of section 602(b)(1) of the Congress-sional Budget Act of 1974 is amended by striking "or revised".

CBO TRACKING

SEC. 704. Section 202 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(i) SCOREKEEPING.—To facilitate compliance by the Committee on Appropriations with section 314, the Office shall score all general appropriation measures (including conference reports) as passed by the House of Representatives, as passed the Senate and as enacted into law. The scorecard shall include amounts contained in the Deficit Reduction Lock-Box. The chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives or the Senate, as the case may be, shall have such scorecard published in the Congressional Record."

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I have enjoyed today's debate. I think it is important to emphasize, to recall that what we are bringing forth this morning is the rule to guide the debate on the appropriations bill for the Treasury Department, the Postal Service and the Office of the President. This is not a tax bill. This is the appropriations bill for those agencies of the Federal Government.

With regard to the lockbox issue that was debated, I think very well and at length, I would simply like to remind Members that day after tomorrow the Committee on Rules will hold a markup precisely on the issue of the lockbox. There is specific legislation to address that issue that has been worked on at considerable length that, of course, is always improvable but that we feel confident achieves the purposes that those who have worked so hard on this issue propose to achieve, and so we will be dealing with that issue with specific legislation that will be marked up in the Committee on Rules, as the chairman of the committee has committed to the day after tomorrow.

So this rule, Mr. Speaker, for the deliberation, the debate on the appropriations legislation, the appropriations bill for the Treasury, the Postal Service and the Office of the President, as I stated before, is an open rule. It is a fair rule. I would urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BARRETT of Nebraska). The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. BEILENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

Pursuant to the provisions of clause 5 of rule XV, the Chair announces that he will reduce to a minimum of 5 minutes the period of time within which a vote by electronic device, if ordered, will be taken on the question of passage of the resolution.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 232, nays 192, not voting 10, as follows:

The Clerk announced the following pair:

On this vote:

Mrs. Waldholtz for, with Mr. Moakley against.

Mr. REED, Mr. BARCIA, Mrs. MEEK of Florida, and Ms. VELÁZQUEZ changed their vote from "yea" to "nay."

Mrs. MEYERS of Kansas, Mr. NEY, and Mr. PORTMAN changed their vote from "nay" to "yea."

So the previous question was ordered.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BARRETT of Nebraska). The question is on the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Member may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on the bill (H.R. 2020) making appropriations for the Treasury Department, the U.S. Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain independent agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes, and that I may be permitted to include tabular and extraneous material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

TREASURY, POSTAL SERVICE, AND GENERAL GOVERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1996

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 190 and rule XXIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 2020.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 2020) making appropriations for the Treasury Department, the U.S. Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain independent agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes, with Mr. DREIER in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered as having been read the first time.

Under the rule, the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LIGHTFOOT] and the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HOYER] will each be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LIGHTFOOT].

(Mr. LIGHTFOOT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to present H.R. 2020, a bill making appropriations for the Department of Treasury, the Executive Office of the President, General Services Administration, and various independent agencies for fiscal year 1996. The bill being considered today was given a very appropriate number, H.R. 2020.

We call it a bill with vision, starting with a strong vision for a future free of debt and deficits. This bill cuts $403 million in real spending from 1995 enacted levels, and that is 3 percent less than last year.

Mr. Chairman, a couple of points I would like to make about the spending portion of the bill that I think may be of interest to some Members.

There are claims that this bill is over 1995 by $401 million in budget authority. That number has been shown in various charts and reflects a comparison of H.R. 2020 to 1995 assuming enactment of the rescission supplemental. The reason this number looks so high is quite simple. H.R. 1944 includes a rescission of $580 million from GSA's Federal Building Fund. As the number for 1995 comes down, the number for 1996 simply looks bigger.

The fact is, the bill is actually a cut in outlays, and that is a real cut in spending by about $403 million. There seems to be a lack of understanding or misunderstanding about the difference between budget authority and outlays among some of our colleagues, particularly some of our newer Members. The fact is, outlays are the money that is spent. It is quite simple. If you can cut outlays, you cut actual spending. We are cutting $403 million in actual spending; these are dollars that will not be spent. That is the number that counts in deficit reduction, not budget authority, because budget authority is simply authority to spend the money. Until you spend it, it does not really count for anything.

As a result, I would like to remind my colleagues the bill is within its section 602(b) allocation in both budget authority and outlays and there are no Budget Act points of order against consideration of the bill.

Mr. Chairman, I will insert a table in the RECORD that compares the bill by account to the amounts appropriated in 1995 and the amounts requested by the President. I would urge my colleagues to look at this chart because, if they review it, I think they will see that each proposed spending level by program is below the 1995 level in every single instance, except for crimes, parts of IRS, and law enforcement activities.

I also would like to thank my colleague, the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HOYER], and members of our subcommittee, for their work in helping us put this package together. I think it is important to note that about 90 percent of our budget was off limits. We could not touch it because it supports salaries and fixed expenses. We had to make our contributions to deficit reduction using only 10 percent of our allocation. The 602(b) number that we received was a tough one, and we had to make some tough decisions in the process. I think that will be reflected in the bill if people will take time to study and go through it.

Again I would like to thank the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HOYER] as well as the other subcommittee Members for their cooperation, and also the great work our staff has done in working through this very difficult bill.

As reported, H.R. 2020 also has a vision of change for programs that are under our jurisdiction. One that requires agencies and activities to tighten their belts, to think better and smarter, and to use their resources more wisely. That vision includes the Executive Office of the President.

Mr. Chairman, this is not a partisan measure, despite some attempts being made to label it so. We have had a lot of years of runaway spending in this body, and, as a result, everyone has shared in the wealth over the years. Unfortunately, that has brought us to the point we are at today, where everyone is going to have to share in the pain of cutting back. That includes the Executive Office of the President as well.

The facts speak for themselves. We held 42 hearings over a three month period, including a week's interruption. We heard from 174 witnesses, including members of the administration, the private sector, and Members of Congress. Everyone was given an opportunity to justify their requests for resources in the upcoming fiscal year.

I would also say that, today, Members have had more than adequate time to take a look at what is in our package. After subcommittee markup, it laid out there for almost a week. I shared it with Mr. HOYER and our colleagues on the minority side several days before we went to subcommittee markup. The full committee markup has been available now for over a week. And if people are running in here at the last minute, I would say maybe we should take a look at some of the staff work that is not being done by Members on both sides who are calling at the last minute saying "We didn't know this." There is no excuse. It has been out there a long time and there has been enough time for people to take a look at it.

In preparing this package, we scrubbed the numbers, we looked at what was being requested, we looked at agency accomplishments, their goals, and their plans for the future because that is an important part of the process. We separated out programs that were merely those that were wanted from programs that were truly needed. After doing that, we sat down and wrote the bill.

First and foremost, H.R. 2020 outright terminates agencies and programs that have outlived their usefulness, that produce work that can be accomplished by others parts of the government or private sector, or simply have a place in a leaner and stronger government.

In many cases we found duplication. Where we found duplication, one of those duplicates departed. We successfully terminated four agencies as a result of that process, for first year savings of $7.7 million and 5-year savings of $40.8 million. Those four agencies are gone, nada, zero. They are zeroed out. They don't exist anymore. There is nothing partisan about it. Not even the termination of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Mr. Chairman, to my critics who claim that we are being partisan, I would simply say, think again. As we prepared the bill, I did not sit down and ponder what would be a strong partisan statement. I do not view myself as a partisan individual. I spent my time a bit more constructively, and simply produced and pondered on what could be and should be good Government. Then we sat down and made the mark.

I will challenge my critics who say this bill goes too far as we debate H.R. 2020 here today on the floor. Ironically, H.R. 2020 is also being criticized by those who believe it does not go far enough.

That is right. On the first hand we are being criticized for going too far, and on the second hand, the measure is being criticized for not going far enough. We have a lot of people angry, so that probably tells us we probably have a pretty good bill. If we have everyone upset on all sides, it may be because we are in the mode of making cuts.

But to our critics who say we have not gone far enough, I would simply say to them, stop and think. We need to be smart about the process.

This is a first step in a multiyear process, the bill we will consider today. We have taken programs, we have merged their activities, and started a serious downsizing. Rome was not built in a day, nor did it burn down in a day. I think it took 3 or 4, if I recall history correctly, and the Federal Government cannot stop in its tracks overnight.

It is a big train, and it has been moving for a lot of years, and it cannot be stopped simply by throwing a brick wall up in front of it. If we are going to avoid a crash, what we have to do is apply the brakes in a very slow, a very deliberate, and a very positive manner, to bring this runaway freight train under control.

I remind my colleagues that the programs and accounts funded in this bill serve specific constituencies and meet specific statutory requirements. Public law requires us to do and fund certain activities, the very activities that are funded in this bill.

I would caution my colleagues who think this bill does not go far enough. Not all of our vision for change can be achieved in a year or a single appropriations bill. It takes longer than that. We have, I think, some well thought out plans to achieve a balanced budget over a period of 7 years, and you have to go about that in a very deliberate fashion. This is step one out of six more steps to go in order to get there.

So I urge my colleagues to support the measure. This measure, with 20/20 vision, a healthy vision for agencies under our jurisdiction, and a bill with a vision for a future free of deficits for our children and our grandchildren.

I would say, Mr. Chairman, that the primary rule that we applied in looking at everything that was in this particular package was the notion that there is a great difference between wanting something and actually needing it. In a case where it was determined that an item was merely wanted, it has been downsized or terminated. In a case where it is a need item, we looked very carefully at the needs. In some cases there are slight increases, particularly in the area of the Secret Service, which is faced with an election cycle with security at the Olympics that are coming up at Atlanta. We tried to use some common sense in putting this thing together, and I very strongly urge my colleagues to support the package.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time.

Mr. Chairman, before I speak about the specifics of the bill, I want to pay tribute to the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LIGHTFOOT]. This is his first year as chairman of the committee. As I said on a number of occasions, I would not have planned that he be chairman of the committee, because it means, of course, that I am not chairman of the committee. But if we had to have a new chairman and I was going to be replaced, I am very thankful that it was the gentleman from Iowa, [Mr. LIGHTFOOT].

The gentleman is one of our finest Members, he is a conscientious, effective leader on his side of the aisle, and he is first an American who cares about the efficiency and effectiveness of the application of the tax dollars of our citizens. He is a pleasure to work with, and I congratulate him for the work he has done to date. He has cooperated with the minority side and with me individually each step of the way, and I would like to thank him for that.

I particularly want to thank the staff, some of whom have been with the committee, and I want to say that they have also cooperated very closely with me individually and other members of the minority side of the committee, and with our staffs. That cooperation, I think, has helped the confidence that each of us have in dealing with one another. We have not agreed on every issue, but we are working cooperatively together.

Having said that, Mr. Chairman, let me make an observation that I make almost every time I start to talk on an appropriations bill. The American public and our colleagues need to understand that we have a financial problem at the Federal level. We have a deficit that must be dealt with. We have a deficit that has been growing. We have a deficit that is crowding out capital funds for economic expansion. I am a supporter of the balance budget amendment, because I believe we need an extrinsic constraint which will force us and, yes, force the American public to make tough choices.

Having said that, Mr. Chairman, it is important for us to realize that the expansion of Federal expenditures has not, and I underline has not, occurred in the discretionary spending items over which the Committee on Appropriations has jurisdiction. In point of fact, as we have pointed out on a number of occasions, the Committee on Appropriations has appropriated less money than the Presidents have asked for since 1981, and, indeed, even before that. But particularly in the administrations of Mr. Reagan and Mr. Bush, Presidents Reagan and Bush, we appropriated about $100 million less than they asked for.

It was not that the appropriation process got out of hand that led to the substantial operating deficits during the last decade. The fact of the matter is entitlements have grown exponentially. The fact of the matter is that we have not come to grips with that, and if we do not come to grips with it, very frankly, we are going to crowd out all discretionary spending, all investment spending, all of the decisionmaking process in which we involve ourselves annually as to where to apply the resources of our Nation.

In point of fact, Mr. Speaker, since 1953 until today, we have gone from spending approximately 18 percent of our Gross Domestic Product in discretionary spending, making decisions where to invest on defense and on the domestic side, to where now less than 8 percent of our GDP at the Federal level is spent on discretionary spending between defense and nondefense discretionary spending.

Why do I make that preface? Because we are going to have on the floor perhaps an amendment to cut this million dollars or $10 million or $20 million. That is significant money, of course. But the fact of the matter is, it will not solve the deficit. And it is not the reason the deficit grew, notwithstanding what the National Taxpayers Union says on the voting on these individual, sometimes small and sometimes significant, dollar amendments.

The Treasury, Postal bill, Mr. Chairman, has been a hard bill to put together for fiscal year 1996. Based on the deck we have been dealt, however, with our 602(b) allocation, it is an inadequate allocation to fund the priorities and responsibilities in this bill for law enforcement, for tax collection and for other matters.

In addition to law enforcement and revenue collection, the Customs is also in this bill, and every American is worried about the integrity of our borders. Every American is worried about the commerce and the stealing of jobs from the U.S. workers. Customs plays a critical role in that, and they are being sorely tested in terms of the resources that have been made available to them in this bill.

Within the limited resources of which I have just spoken, however, I think the chairman and the committee have tried to do the best job possible in funding the allocations of the agencies under this bill. The $23.2 billion provided in the bill is about $322 million below the amount we appropriated last year and $1.8 billion below the amount requested by the administration; in other words, almost 10 percent below what the administration requested. And I might say, of course, this bill is divided about half discretionary spending, half on the mandatory side in terms of Federal retirement and Federal employment health benefits.

On the positive side, Customs and law enforcement have been funded pretty much at the administration's request. The IRS tax system modernization has been accommodated under the administration's new estimate for fiscal year 1996. The committee bill also includes funding for tax systems modernization at the Internal Revenue Service. This broad effort to update all aspects of IRS's computer and processing systems is, Mr. Chairman, a very high priority for our country.

On the negative side, we have not been able to proceed with the funding of the IRS tax enforcement program off budget and, therefore, have had to spread the program over 7 years, a decision with which I did not agree, do not agree now and which will cost us money.

Mr. Chairman, you will recall that last year we unanimously in a bipartisan fashion had agreement that we would fund the tax enforcement program off budget. Why? It was a $2 billion, 5-year initiative that would gain us over $9 billion, in other words a $4 return for every dollar invested. CBO, OMB and the Congress agreed that it made sense to put that off budget in light of the fact it was a money maker, not a money loser.

However, we have not done that this year. In fairness to the chairman, however, the administration suggested that we put it on budget. Now, to the extent that it does appropriately and accurately reflect expenditures, that made sense. On the other hand, it forced the chairman and the committee to stretch this program over 7 years, and that will cost us revenues and make it difficult to administer at the Treasury Department.

Mr. Chairman, those are some of the more positive aspects. Unfortunately, I and this side of the aisle are very concerned about some aspects of this bill. I believe that there are a number of political decisions. I know the chairman disagrees with that. He says these are economic decisions, fiscal decisions, but I believe we are making some political decisions in this bill which are wrong. The elimination of the Council of Economic Advisors, every head of the Council of Economic Advisors, an institution which advises the President on macroeconomic issues, an institution which everybody that I have talked to says is one of the more objective, outside-of-government advisory groups that we have in Government to advise the President on macro- and micro-economic issues, this is critically important. The President, every day, needs to confront issues which are impacted by his information and perception of what the macroeconomic and microeconomic impacts are of decisions to be made by the White House.

It is wrong to eliminate this agency in the way it was done. There were no hearings. Now, I want to say that we cut the Administrative Conference of the United States the same way. I thought we were incorrect and we changed that decision. But the fact of the matter is there were no hearings which were directed at elimination of this agency. And every head, Republican and Democrat, for the last two decades opposes this provision.

The most recent former administration head of the Council of Economic Advisors, Michael Boskin, has written a letter opposing this provision, as have Charlie Schultze and Herb Stein, CEA directors under President Nixon and President Carter.

Furthermore, Mr. Chairman, we have cut the White House office. We have not cut it a great deal, but significantly enough to adversely affect the ability of the White House to run its shop. I will discuss this later in the bill, but this is wrong.

In fact, from 1981 to 1992, under a Democratic House and for the last 6 years of that period, under a Democratic Senate, we essentially accepted the White House's request. For the last 2 years this President has been subjected to cuts from the Republican side not based upon the finances of the office but based upon, in my opinion, the intent to impact adversely the political independence of the President of the United States to make policy judgment as he or she sees fit.

Mr. Chairman, that is wrong. There is not going to be an amendment offered, I understand, which will affect the transportation of the White House. But there are too frequently now folks who are willing to undermine the historical, two-century comity between the President and the legislative branch in the Congress, where the President says to the legislature, you pass your budget, and I will pass mine. Neither will impact the other because both of us have to go to the American public.

I am not talking about the executive departments. I am talking about the White House office. The Office of Management and Budget, and other executive branch offices were cut. I think that is unfortunate. We oppose that.

All reflect an initiative that is politically aimed at the President. The Committee on Appropriations has honored presidential requests, as I have said, in the last period of time that I have been on the committee. I have opposed cuts to President Reagan and President Bush's budget for exactly that reason.

Also, Mr. Chairman, there are cuts to the Federal Election Commission. The inclusion of language restricting the choices for Federal health insurance which we will oppose. They take on a political tone that I do not think is helpful for the bipartisan nature of this bill. I also believe that the elimination of the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations will interfere, Mr. Chairman, with the executive branch's responsibility to monitor unfunded mandates.

The irony of this bill is we eliminate the Administrative Conference on Intergovernmental Relations, the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations for the purposes of saving $1.4 million. We then provide in this bill a committee provision, protected under the rule language, which provides for an advisory committee on the mandates which we have just eliminated another agency to do. In other words, on the one hand we are going to have money spent, $300-some-odd thousands to accomplish the purpose of an agency that we are now doing away with. It simply does not make sense, in my opinion.

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased that the full Committee on Appropriations took out a provision which was very foolishly included by the Subcommittee on Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government at markup that would have provided background checks for rich felons so that they could have received approval to have their guns back. We had information at the subcommittee and the full committee that we brought out where you had murderers reapplying for reinstatement of their privileges to have a gun and they were approved. That made no sense. No taxpayer is asking me to spend their money to make sure that criminals get their guns back. That does not make sense, and I am pleased that the chairman saw fit at the full committee to offer language to reinstate language included in our bill in 1992. That language was good then, it is good now. And I am pleased that the chairman put it back in.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, I am concerned that neither the President nor the committee has provided the full 5.9 percent increase that the Civil Service is due as employment cost index and locality pay increases under the Federal Employees Pay Comparability Act. This was an act signed by President Bush in 1990. It tried to provide and did provide for a rational way to compare the private sector and the public sector and to make sure that our work force would be competitive and would be comparable to the private sector. Unfortunately, the President has only provided 2.4 percent in his recommendation. The bill is silent on this issue. And unless the President provides for a higher sum come August, next month, that will be limited to 2.4 percent.

I will be discussing with the President, and I know others will, as to the distribution of that 2.4 percent between comparability adjustment and locality pay, but it is very unfortunate that we are going to be falling further behind the private sector in pay comparability as a result of the actions of the President and of this committee.

Mr. Chairman, in closing, I hope that the provisions that detract from the positive side of the bill can be changed on the floor and during the full legislative consideration of the bill. Again, I thank the chairman for all of his cooperation and inclusion in the work of this committee. I look forward to working with him as we consider the individual titles of this bill.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would respond very briefly and thank the gentleman from Maryland for his kind words. When neither of us were chairman on this subcommittee, we started to forge a working relationship and that has continued through both of us having the opportunity to serve as chairman of the subcommittee.

Quite frankly, there are certain things that we have agreed to disagree upon and that is what this whole business is all about.

We both realize it is important that we get this spending bill through. It has to go through. We have to do it in a manner that I think has some common sense. Again, I appreciate his kind words and his cooperation as well.

Mr. Chairman, one of those areas that we agree to disagree on is the Council of Economic Advisors. We in effect cut the offices of the White House about 1.8 percent. I would just call to our colleagues' attention that through the legislative branch appropriation that went through the House, we cut our own budgets there about 8 percent. It is just part of the sharing concept, I think that is necessary as we move toward a balanced budget in 7 years.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LAZIO of New York. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2020, the FY 1996 Treasury Postal Service, and General Government Appropriations Act. I particularly would like to commend the chairman of the Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriations Subcommittee, the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LIGHTFOOT] and his colleagues for their efforts in crafting this important legislation.

The bill contains $75.641 million in continued funding for a vitally important project in my district on Long Island, the Central Islip Federal Courthouse. I deeply appreciate the willingness of Chairman Lightfoot and the other members of the subcommittee in working with me to meet this essential need. First announced by the General Services Administration [GSA] in 1991, the Central Islip Courthouse was designed to solve the problems of the only "space emergency" in our nation declared by the U.S. Judicial Conference. That "space emergency" for the Eastern District of New York, was first declared in 1989 and renewed in 1992. These declarations are unique in that these are the only times the Judicial Conference has ever taken such an action.

Without the completion of the Central Islip Federal Courthouse, eastern Long Island's 2.5 million people will continue to have to tolerate what has been described as a "security nightmare," with Federal judges facing the heaviest case load in its history while enduring dangerous, inefficient, costly temporary facilities scattered in five rented locations.

Unlike some other federal courthouse projects, the cost per square foot of the Central Islip Courthouse is well below the GSA average for similar projects. The courthouse will be cost effective, saving taxpayers huge amounts now paid for rent.

I urge my colleagues to support this bill and sufficient funding for the timely completion of the Central Islip Federal Courthouse.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 2020, the Treasury, Postal Service and General Government Appropriations bill, but my enthusiasm for it is tempered by the cuts in valuable programs this legislation proposes.

As a former member of this subcommittee, I feel that the agencies that are funded by this legislation are extremely important to our government. Agencies like the Treasury Department, and its component divisions such as the Customs Service, the Bureau of Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms, the IRS, the Secret Service and others are extremely important to the efficient functioning of our federal government. This legislation also funds the Executive Office of the President, a portion of the Postal Service, and some independent agencies such as the Federal Election Commission, the Federal Labor Relations Commission, the General Services Administration and others.

Because of the importance of all of the above, I am extremely disheartened by some of the cuts this bill makes to some of these agencies. For example, the bill proposes to eliminate the Council of Economic Advisers. The Council has served presidents of both parties for the past 50 years. This group provides long-term economic advice to the President that is both impartial and apolitical. This kind of advice is increasingly important during a time when economic advice a president gets is usually laced with political undertones.

I am also bothered by the reductions made to the Federal Election Commission [FEC] in an upcoming presidential election year. The $2.5 million reduction made to the FEC combined with an earmark of $1.5 million for computer modernization will interfere with the ability of FEC to carry out its duties and ensure the integrity of the upcoming elections. This is not the only agency that suffers a reduction in its budget. Other agencies take significant cuts to their budgets that will affect their ability to carry out their functions.

This bill is also silent on Federal pay. Neither the President nor the Committee has provided the full 5.9 percent increase that the Civil Service is due as employment cost index and locality pay increases under the Federal Employees Pay Comparability Act. Since 1981, Federal employees have lost more than $163 billion in pay and benefits that they were scheduled to receive.

The 2.4 percent raise recommended by the President, which is adopted by this bill, is not fully funded. Even further, this is less than half of the raise owed to Federal workers under existing law. Agencies not involved in law enforcement are forced to absorb the additional cost of the pay increase from their program budgets. This unwise policy results in a hidden 2.4 percent cut in programs at agencies that are already facing severe budget constraints.

Another provision that bothers me directed toward Federal employees is the majority's decision to reinstate a provision in the bill which restricts a Federal employee's choice of a health care insurance plan by prohibiting "Federal funds" from being used to purchase a policy which provides coverage for pregnancy termination, except in instances where the life of the mother is at risk.

Let me be clear, Mr. Chairman, that there are no Federal funds used for the purchasing of health care coverage for Federal employees. The compensation of Federal employees is in the form of salary, health care benefits and retirement benefits. Like private sector employees, they can use their compensation as they see fit. Federal workers choose a health insurance plan and a portion of that is paid for with their health coverage benefit. There are no "Federal funds" involved when a Federal employee decides what to do with his/her salary. The choice of policies is the employee's alone. The reasoning of the Committee that it is the employer's right to restrict the scope of coverage for legal medical services is wrong.

This tampering with the rights of Federal employees is wrong because they are one of our Nation's greatest assets. They are important to my congressional district where they number approximately 13,000 persons. Federal employees are among the finest, most honorable workers in this country. Yet, in this House, many insist on perpetuating an attitude of hostility toward Federal employees. They call them lazy bureaucrats, government vultures or worthless do-nothing Federal employees. This is wrong, Mr. Chairman, and it must be stopped. It should not take an incident like the Oklahoma bombing to change the minds of many in this country with regards to Federal employees.

While I have thus far focused on items I have not liked in this legislation, it does not have some good points. For one, the bill funds the Customs Service at a level that exceeds the President's request. I feel this is important because the Customs Service has a difficult job as the Nation's principal border agency. Customs' responsibilities run the gamut from fighting the scourge of illegal drug trafficking to assessing and collecting duties and tariffs. I would also like to mention that the Customs Service section of the report included items of importance to my congressional district. For instance, there is language supporting: additional Customs inspectors for El Paso, Texas, unified port management, and drug interdiction technologies such as cargo x-ray systems and FLIR's for UH-60 Black Hawk helicopters.

The report also includes $560,000 for security improvements to the El Paso Federal Building. Other items of interest to my congressional district include report language supporting the Gang Resistance Education and Training Program, the Southwest Border High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area, and Operation Alliance.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, I would like to commend the leadership of Chairman LIGHTFOOT. Throughout our hearings and deliberations, the Chairman was very fair and amenable by allowing of minority views and consideration. I am very grateful for his policy of "opening up" the hearings to questioning after allotted time for testimony had expired. The other members of the subcommittee, are also to be complemented for their diligence in pursuing the issues under the subcommittee's jurisdiction. I also would like to thank the staff of both sides for the hard work they displayed in putting together this legislation. They worked many long hours to put together the final product we are debating today.

Mr. Chairman, I will support H.R. 2020, but it is my hope that some of the troubling provisions I have mentioned will be moderated by the Senate and we can settle those differences in conference.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma) having assumed the chair, Mr. DREIER, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2020) making appropriations for the Treasury Department, the United States Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain Independent Agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

PERMISSION FOR CERTAIN COMMITTEES AND THEIR SUBCOMMITTEES TO SIT TODAY DURING 5-MINUTE RULE

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the following committees and their subcommittees be permitted to sit today while the House is meeting in the Committee of the Whole House under the 5-minute rule: the Committee on Agriculture, the Committee on Commerce, the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight, the Committee on House Oversight, the Committee on International Relations, the Committee on the Judiciary, the Committee on Resources, the Committee on Small Business, and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

It is my understanding that the minority has been consulted and there are no objections.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

Mr. HOYER. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, and I will not object, it is my understanding the minority has been consulted about each and every one of these exceptions to the rule that we adopted in the beginning of the year, and we will not object.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

REPORT ON CONTINUING NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA AND THE BOSNIAN SERBS—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. 104-101)

The Speaker pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on International Relations and ordered to be printed.

To the Congress of the United States:

On May 30, 1992, in Executive Order No. 12808, the President declared a national emergency to deal with the threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States arising from actions and policies of the Governments of Serbia and Montenegro, acting under the name of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia or the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, in their involvement in and support for groups attempting to seize territory in Croatia and the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina by force and violence utilizing, in part, the forces of the so-called Yugoslav National Army (57 FR 23299, June 2, 1992). I expanded the national emergency in Executive Order No. 12934 of October 25, 1994, to address the actions and policies of the Bosnian Serb forces and the authorities in the territory of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina that they control. The present report is submitted pursuant to 50 U.S.C. 1641(c) and 1703(c). It discusses Administration actions and expenses directly related to the exercise of powers and authorities conferred by the declaration of a national emergency in Executive Order No. 12808 and Executive Order No. 12934 and to expanded sanctions against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro) (the "FRY (S/M)") and the Bosnian Serbs contained in Executive Order No. 12810 of June 5, 1992 (57 FR 24347, June 9, 1992), Executive Order No. 12831 of January 15, 1993 (58 FR 5253, Jan. 21, 1993), Executive Order No. 12846 of April 25, 1993 (58 FR 25771, April 27, 1993), and Executive Order No. 12934 of October 25, 1994 (59 FR 54117, October 27, 1994).

1. Executive Order No. 12808 blocked all property and interests in property of the Governments of Serbia and Montenegro, or held in the name of the former Government of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia or the Government of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, then or thereafter located in the United States or within the possession or control of U.S. persons, including their overseas branches.

Subsequently, Executive Order No. 12810 expanded U.S. actions to implement in the United States the United Nations sanctions against the FRY (S/M) adopted in United Nations Security Council ("UNSC") Resolution 757 of May 30, 1992. In addition to reaffirming the blocking of FRY (S/M) Government property, this order prohibited transactions with respect to the FRY (S/M) involving imports, exports, dealing in FRY-origin property, air and sea transportation, contract performance, funds transfers, activity promoting importation or exportation or dealings in property, and official sports, scientific, technical, or other cultural representation of, or sponsorship by, the FRY (S/M) in the United States.

Executive Order No. 12810 exempted from trade restrictions (1) transshipments through the FRY (S/M), and (2) activities related to the United Nations Protection Force ("UNPROFOR"), the Conference on Yugoslavia, or the European Community Monitor Mission.

On January 15, 1993, President Bush issued Executive Order No. 12831 to implement new sanctions contained in U.N. Security Council Resolution 787 of November 16, 1992. The order revoked the exemption for transshipments through the FRY (S/M) contained in Executive Order No. 12810, prohibited transactions within the United States or by a U.S. person relating to FRY (S/M) vessels and vessels in which a majority or controlling interest is held by a person or entity in, or operating from, the FRY (S/M), and stated that all such vessels shall be considered as vessels of the FRY (S/M), regardless of the flag under which they sail.

On April 25, 1993, I issued Executive Order No. 12846 to implement in the United States the sanctions adopted in UNSC Resolution 820 of April 17, 1993. That resolution called on the Bosnian Serbs to accept the Vance-Owen peace plan for the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina and, if they failed to do so by April 26, called on member states to take additional measures to tighten the embargo against the FRY (S/M) and Serbian controlled areas of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the United Nations Protected Areas in Croatia. Effective April 26, 1993, the order blocked all property and interests in property of commercial, industrial, or public utility undertakings or entities organized or located in the FRY (S/M), including property and interests in property of entities (wherever organized or located) owned or controlled by such undertakings or entities, that are or thereafter come within the possession or control of U.S. persons.

On October 25, 1994, in view of UNSC Resolution 942 of September 23, 1994, I issued Executive Order No. 12934 in order to take additional steps with respect to the crisis in the former Yugoslavia. (59 FR 54117, October 27, 1994.) Executive Order No. 12934 expands the scope of the national emergency declared in Executive Order No. 12808 to address the unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States posed by the actions and policies of the Bosnian Serb forces and the authorities in the territory in the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina that they control, including their refusal to accept the proposed territorial settlement of the conflict in the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The Executive order blocks all property and interests in property that are in the United States, that hereafter come within the United States, or that are or hereafter come within the possession or control of United States persons (including their overseas branches) of: (1) the Bosnian Serb military and paramilitary forces and the authorities in areas of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina under the control of those forces; (2) any entity, including any commercial, industrial, or public utility undertaking, organized or located in those areas of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina under the control of Bosnian Serb forces; (3) any entity, wherever organized or located, which is owned or controlled directly or indirectly by any person in, or resident in, those areas of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina under the control of Bosnian Serb forces; and (4) any person acting for or on behalf of any person within the scope of the above definitions.

The Executive order also prohibits the provision or exportation of services to those areas of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina under the control of Bosnian Serb forces, or to any person for the purpose of any business carried on in those areas, either from the United States or by a U.S. person. The order also prohibits the entry of any U.S.-flagged vessel, other than a U.S. naval vessel, into the riverine ports of those areas of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina under the control of Bosnian Serb forces. Finally, any transaction by any U.S. person that evades or avoids, or has the purpose of evading or avoiding, or attempts to violate any of the prohibitions set forth in the order is prohibited. Executive Order No. 12934 became effective at 11:59 p.m., e.d.t., on October 25, 1994.

2. The declaration of the national emergency on May 30, 1992, was made pursuant to the authority vested in the President by the Constitution and laws of the United States, including the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.), the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1601 et seq.), and section 301 of title 3 of the United States Code. The emergency declaration was reported to the Congress on May 30, 1992, pursuant to section 204(b) of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1703(b)) and the expansion of that National Emergency under the same authorities was reported to the Congress on October 25, 1994. The additional sanctions set forth in related Executive orders were imposed pursuant to the authority vested in the President by the Constitution and laws of the United States, including the statutes cited above, section 1114 of the Federal Aviation Act (49 U.S.C. App. 1514), and section 5 of the United Nations Participation Act (22 U.S.C. 287c).

3. There have been no amendments to the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro) Sanctions Regulations (the "Regulations"), 31 C.F.R. Part 585, since the last report. The Treasury Department had previously published 853 names in the Federal Register on November 17, 1994 (59 FR 59460), as part of a comprehensive listing of all blocked persons and specially designated nationals ("SDNs") of the FRY (S/M). This list identified individuals and entities determined by the Department of the Treasury to be owned or controlled by or acting for or on behalf of the Government of the FRY (S/M), persons in the FRY (S/M), or entities located or organized in or controlled from the FRY (S/M). All prohibitions in the Regulations pertaining to the Government of the FRY (S/M) apply to the entities and individuals identified. U.S. persons, on notice of the status of such blocked persons and specially designated nationals, are prohibited from entering into transactions with them, or transactions in which they have an interest, unless otherwise exempted or authorized pursuant to the Regulations.

On February 22, 1995, pursuant to Executive Order 12934 and the Regulations, Treasury identified 85 individuals as leaders of the Bosnian Serb forces or civilian authorities in the territories in the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina that they control. Also on February 22, Treasury designated 19 individuals and 23 companies as SDNs of the FRY (S/M). These designations include FRY (S/M)-connected companies around the world that are being directed from Cyprus, two Cypriot-owned firms that have had a central role in helping establish and sustain sanctions-evading FRY (S/M) front companies in Cyprus, and the head of the FRY (S/M)'s Central Bank who is also the architect of the FRY (S/M) economic program.

Additionally, on March 13, 1995, Treasury named 32 firms and eight individuals that are part of the Karic Brothers' family network of companies as SDNs of the FRY (S/M). Their enterprises span the globe and are especially active in former East Bloc countries. These additions and amendments, published in the Federal Register on April 18, 1995 (60 FR 19448), bring the current total of Blocked Entities and SDNs of the FRY (S/M) to 938 and the total number of individuals identified as leaders of the Bosnian Serb military or paramilitary forces or civilian authorities in the territories in the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina that they control to 85. A copy of the notice is attached.

Treasury's blocking authority as applied to FRY (S/M) subsidiaries and vessels in the United States has been challenged in court. In Milena Ship Management Company, Ltd. v. Newcomb, 804 F.Supp. 846, 855, and 859 (E.D.L.A. 1992) aff'd, 995 F.2d 620 (5th Cir. 1993), cert. denied, 114 S.Ct. 877 (1994), involving five ships owned or controlled by FRY (S/M) entities blocked in various U.S. ports, the blocking authority as applied to these vessels was upheld. In IPT Company, Inc. v. United States Department of the Treasury, No. 92 CIV 5542 (S.D.N.Y. 1994), the district court also upheld the blocking authority as applied to the property of a Yugoslav subsidiary located in the United States. The latter case is currently on appeal to the Second Circuit.

4. Over the past 6 months, the Departments of State and Treasury have worked closely with European Union (the "EU") member states and other U.N. member nations to coordinate implementation of the U.N. sanctions against the FRY (S/M). This has included visits by assessment teams formed under the auspices of the United States, the EU, and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (the "OSCE") to states bordering on Serbia and Montenegro; continued deployment of OSCE sanctions assistance missions ("SAMS") to Albania, Bulgaria, Croatia, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Hungary, Romania, and Ukraine to assist in monitoring land and Danube River traffic; support for the International Conference on the Former Yugoslavia ("ICFY") monitoring missions along the Serbia-Montenegro-Bosnia border; bilateral contacts between the United States and other countries for the purpose of tightening financial and trade restrictions on the FRY (S/M); and ongoing multilateral meetings by financial sanctions enforcement authorities from various countries to coordinate enforcement efforts and to exchange technical information.

5. In accordance with licensing policy and the Regulations, FAC has exercised its authority to license certain specific transactions with respect to the FRY (S/M) that are consistent with U.S. foreign policy and the Security Council sanctions. During the reporting period, FAC has issued 109 specific licenses regarding transactions pertaining to the FRY (S/M) or assets it owns or controls, bringing the total as of April 25, 1995, to 930. Specific licenses have been issued (1) for payment to U.S. or third-country secured creditors, under certain narrowly-defined circumstances, for pre-embargo import and export transactions; (2) for legal representation or advice to the Government of the FRY (S/M) or FRY (S/M)-located or controlled entities; (3) for the liquidation or protection of tangible assets of subsidiaries of FRY (S/M)-located or controlled firms located in the U.S.; (4) for limited transactions related to FRY (S/M) diplomatic representation in Washington and New York; (5) for patent, trademark and copyright protection in the FRY (S/M) not involving payment to the FRY (S/M) Government; (6) for certain communications, news media, and travel-related transactions; (7) for the payment of crews' wages, vessel maintenance, and emergency supplies for FRY (S/M) controlled ships blocked in the United States; (8) for the removal from the FRY (S/M), or protection within the FRY (S/M), of certain property owned and controlled by U.S. entities; (9) to assist the United Nations in its relief operations and the activities of the U.N. Protection Force; and (10) for payment from funds outside the United States where a third country has licensed the transaction in accordance with U.N. sanctions. Pursuant to U.S. regulations implementing UNSC Resolutions, specific licenses have also been issued to authorize exportation of food, medicine, and supplies intended for humanitarian purposes in the FRY (S/M).

During the past 6 months, FAC has continued to oversee the liquidation of tangible assets of the 15 U.S. subsidiaries of entities organized in the FRY (S/M). Subsequent to the issuance of Executive Order No. 12846, all operating licenses issued for these U.S.-located Serbian or Montenegrin subsidiaries or joint ventures were revoked, and the net proceeds of the liquidation of their assets placed in blocked accounts.

In order to reduce the drain on blocked assets caused by continuing to rent commercial space, FAC arranged to have the blocked personality, files, and records of the two Serbian banking institutions in New York moved to secure storage. The personality is being liquidated, with the net proceeds placed in blocked accounts.

Following the sale of the M/V Kapetan Martinovic in January 1995, five Yugoslav-owned vessels remain blocked in the United States. Approval of the UNSC's Serbian Sanctions Committee was sought and obtained for the sale of the M/V Kapetan Martinovic (and the M/V Bor, which was sold in June 1994) based on U.S. assurances that the sale would comply with four basic conditions, which assure that both U.S. and U.N. sanctions objectives with respect to the FRY (S/M) are met: (1) the sale will be for fair market value; (2) the sale will result in a complete divestiture of any interest of the FRY (S/M) (or of commercial interests located in or controlled from the FRY (S/M)) in the vessel; (3) the sale would result in no economic benefit to the FRY (S/M) (or commercial interests located in or controlled from the FRY (S/M)); and (4) the net proceeds of the sale (the gross proceeds less the costs of sale normally paid by the seller) will be placed in a blocked account in the United States. Negotiations for the sale of the M/V Bar, now blocked in New Orleans, are underway and are likely to be concluded prior to my next report.

Other than the M/V Bar, the four remaining Yugoslav-owned vessels are beneficially owned by Jugooceanija Plovidba of Kotor, Montenegro, and managed by Milena Ship Management Co. Ltd. in Malta. These vessels have many unpaid U.S. creditors for services and supplies furnished during the time they have been blocked in the United States; moreover, the owner appears to have insufficient resources to provide for the future upkeep and maintenance needs of these vessels and their crews. The United States is notifying the UNSC's Serbian Sanctions Committee of the United States's intention to license some or all of these remaining four vessels upon the owner's request.

With the FAC-licensed sales of the M/V Kapetan Martinovic and the M/V Bor, those vessels were removed from the list of blocked FRY entities and merchant vessels maintained by FAC. The new owners of several formerly Yugoslav-owned vessels, which have been sold in other countries, have petitioned FAC to remove those vessels from the list. FAC, in coordination with the Department of State, is currently reviewing the sale terms and conditions for those vessels to ascertain whether they comply with U.N. sanctions objectives and UNSC's Serbian Sanctions Committee practice.

During the past 6 months, U.S. financial institutions have continued to block funds transfers in which there is an interest of the Government of the FRY (S/M) or an entity or undertaking located in or controlled from the FRY (S/M), and to stop prohibited transfers to persons in the FRY (S/M). Such interdicted transfers have accounted for $125.6 million since the issuance of Executive order No. 12808, including some $9.3 million during the past 6 months.

To ensure compliance with the terms of the licenses that have been issued under the program, stringent reporting requirements are imposed. More than 279 submissions have been reviewed by FAC since the last report, and more than 125 compliance cases are currently open.

6. Since the issuance of Executive Order No. 12810, FAC has worked closely with the U.S. Customs Service to ensure both that prohibited imports and exports (including those in which the Government of the FRY (S/M) or Bosnian Serb authorities have an interest) are identified and interdicted, and that permitted imports and exports move to their intended destination without undue delay. Violations and suspected violations of the embargo are being investigated and appropriate enforcement actions are being taken. There are currently 37 cases under active investigation. Since the last report, FAC has collected nine civil penalties totaling nearly $20,000. Of these, five were paid by U.S. financial institutions for violative funds transfers involving the Government of the FRY (S/M), persons in the FRY (S/M), or entities located or organized in or controlled from the FRY (S/M). Three U.S. companies and one air carrier have also paid penalties related to exports or unlicensed payments to the Government of the FRY (S/M) or persons in the FRY (S/M) or other violations of the Regulations.

7. The expenses incurred by the Federal Government in the 6-month period from November 30, 1994, through May 29, 1995, that are directly attributable to the authorities conferred by the declaration of a national emergency with respect to the FRY (S/M) and the Bosnian Serb forces and authorities are estimated at about $3.5 million, most of which represent wage and salary costs for Federal personnel. Personnel costs were largely centered in the Department of the Treasury (particularly in FAC and its Chief Counsel's Office, and the U.S. Customs Service), the Department of State, the National Security Council, the U.S. Coast Guard, and the Department of Commerce.

8. The actions and policies of the Government of the FRY (S/M), in its involvement in and support for groups attempting to seize and hold territory in the Republics of Croatia and Bosnia and Herzegovina by force and violence, and the actions and policies of the Bosnian Serb forces and the authorities in the areas of Bosnia and Herzegovina under their control, continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States. The United States remains committed to a multilateral resolution of the conflict through implementation of the United Nations Security Council resolutions.

I shall continue to exercise the powers at my disposal to apply economic sanctions against the FRY (S/M) and the Bosnian Serb forces, civil authorities, and entities, as long as these measures are appropriate, and will continue to report periodically to the Congress on significant developments pursuant to 50 U.S.C. 1703(c).

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, July 18, 1995.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 1977, the legislation which we are about to consider, and that I may be permitted to include tables, charts, and other material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1996

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 187 and rule XXIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 1977.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 1977), making appropriations for the Department of the Interior and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes, with Mr. BURTON in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole House rose on Monday, July 17, 1995, title III was open for amendment at any point.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to strike the last word, in order that I may address the House to explain the vote situation.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman from Ohio is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, there are two votes pending at this point that were rolled over from title II last night. The first will be a vote on the question of a sale of 7 million barrels of oil from Weeks Island in order to pay for the cost of moving the balance of the oil from Weeks Island to another location in SPR. Presently, Weeks Island is leaking and the oil has to be moved.

There is an amendment pending that would eliminate the language that allows the sale of the 7 million barrels to provide the necessary funds to move the oil and make whatever repairs would be required on the balance of SPR.

The second amendment, Mr. Chairman is an amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. CHABOT] that would eliminate the funding for the National Endowment for the Humanities. Those would be the two amendments that will be before us. The first will be the amendment of the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SCHAEFER] on the Weeks Island issue; the second will be on the amendment of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. CHABOT] to defend NEH.

Mr. SCHAEFER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REGULA. I yield to the gentleman from Colorado.

Mr. SCHAEFER. Mr. Chairman, I have a very short comment. These both were debated last night in full, and I recognize the work the chairman has put in on this particular piece of legislation. We just disagree on this point.

Mr. Chairman, I would ask, am I understanding this correctly, that both of these amendments will have recorded votes? May I ask if both of these amendments have recorded votes?

The CHAIRMAN. The requests for recorded votes are pending from last night.

Mr. REGULA. That is correct. The plan would be a recorded vote on both, probably 15 minutes on the first, and 5 minutes on the second. Would that be correct, Mr. Chairman?

The CHAIRMAN. The votes have not yet been ordered, but the Chair will put that question shortly.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, there would then be a 15-minute vote on Weeks Island and a 5-minute vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. CHABOT].

The CHAIRMAN. That is the intention of the Chair.

Mr. REGULA. If they are ordered, yes.

Mr. SCHAEFER. Mr. Chairman, I intend to move that a quorum is not present, if indeed it is not ordered.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REGULA. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, as the chairman explained, there are two votes pending on the Department of the Interior appropriation bill. The first, of course, is on the amendment by the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SCHAEFER] respecting Weeks Island; to strike the provision which allows the Secretary of Energy to sell on a one-time basis 7 million barrels of oil from storage at Weeks Island, LA.

The amount to be sold is less than 1 day of oil imports. It is only a little more than 1 percent of the total reserve. If the oil is not sold, this bill will be over its 602(b) allocation, and in conference, $100 million more would have to be covered out of a bill that is already very, very tight. This would place Park Service in jeopardy, Indian health in jeopardy, and place revenue-producing programs in jeopardy.

In addition, Mr. Chairman, if the Department of Energy is unable to attend to the problems at Weeks Island, we are going to be faced with the distinct possibility of an oil spill of far greater magnitude than the Exxon Valdez.

The second amendment we will be voting on is the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. CHABOT] to eliminate all funding for the National Endowment for the Humanities.

His amendment does not accord with either the authorizing committee or the appropriations committee.

As I indicated last night, Mr. Chairman, the National Endowment for the Humanities is a unique organization. It is an organization that promotes the essence, the elements of democracy in our country. To my mind it is one of the most powerful educational forces we have in this country. The NEH helps teachers obtain the tools with which they can better transmit their subjects to more pupils.

The National Endowment for the Humanities has already been cut much too much in my opinion. It has been cut from an appropriation of $172 million to $99.5 million, 42 percent cut. I think that both amendments should be defeated.

SEQUENTIAL VOTES POSTPONED IN COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 189, proceedings will now resume on those amendments on which further proceedings were postponed, in the following order: Amendment No. 41 offered by the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SCHAEFER]; amendment No. 11 offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. CHABOT].

The Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the time for any electronic vote after the first vote in this series.

AMENDMENT NO. 41 OFFERED BY MR. SCHAEFER

The CHAIRMAN. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on amendment No. 41 offered by the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SCHAEFER] on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by division vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 41 offered by Mr. SCHAEFER: Page 57, line 7, strike "$287,000,000" and all that follows through "Reserve" on line 21, and insert the following: $187,000,000, to remain available until expended, which shall be derived by transfer of unobligated balances from the "SPR petroleum account".

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIRMAN. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The CHAIRMAN. This is a 15-minute vote, to be followed by a possible 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 157, noes 267, not voting 10, as follows:

Mrs. CUBIN, Messrs. KIM, WISE, JOHNSTON of Florida, CHRYSLER, ZELIFF, COBLE, TATE, CRANE, PAYNE of New Jersey, GONZALEZ, SMITH of Texas, INGLIS of South Carolina, LAHOOD, and GUTIERREZ changed their vote from "aye" to "no."

Messrs. MENENDEZ, GEJDENSON, KING, KLECZKA, CRAMER, SCOTT, HERGER, ENGEL, NADLER, SALMON, KENNEDY of Massachusetts, Ms. WOOLSEY, and Ms. SLAUGHTER changed their vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to inform the House that I inadvertently missed two votes, rollcall Nos. 516 and 517, earlier today due to a malfunction in the House electronic pager system. Had I been present I would have voted "nay" in each instance.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, will the next amendment eliminate all funding for the National Endowment for the Humanities, after the committee cut it by 40 percent?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman has not stated a proper parliamentary inquiry.

AMENDMENT NO. 11 OFFERED BY MR. CHABOT

The CHAIRMAN. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on amendment No. 11 offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. CHABOT] on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the "noes" prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there amendments to title III?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. OLVER

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, amendment No. 70.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. OLVER:

AMENDMENT No. 70

At the end of the bill add the following new section:

"SEC. . None of the funds made available in this Act may be used by the Department of Energy in implementing the Codes and Standards Program to plan, propose, issue, or prescribe any new or amended standard—

"(1) when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that the Attorney General, in accordance with section 325(o)(2)(B) of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (42 U.S.C. 6295(o)(2)(B)), determined that the standard is likely to cause significant anti-competitive effects;

"(2) that the Secretary of Energy, in accordance with such section 325(o)(2)(B), has determined that the benefits of the standard do not exceed its burdens; or

"(3) that is for fluorescent lamps ballasts."

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania will state his point of order.

Mr. WALKER. At this point in the bill, the amendment is not raised timely. It has to come at the end of this title rather than in the middle of the title.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Massachusetts wish to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. OLVER. I accept the point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. Until the Clerk reads the last two lines of the bill, limitation amendments are not in order where that point is raised.

Are there amendments to title III?

Mr. GUNDERSON. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word for the purposes of entering into a colloquy with the distinguished chairman of the committee.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Wisconsin is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GUNDERSON. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the distinguished chairman of the Interior appropriations subcommittee for engaging in this colloquy with me. All of us in the Congress are faced, as we know, with tough fiscal choices this year. There is nobody who has faced that any more than the chairman of the Interior appropriations subcommittee, as he has tried to deal with the difficult decisions in this area.

I rise, however, this afternoon to caution the chairman that some of the cuts that are being proposed may actually have negative consequences of costing us more than we intended to save. The bill before us does not specify exactly where the money cut from the National Biological Survey is to be taken. However, without specific guidance or direction as to where those cuts should be made, I fear that cuts will be based on some formula that focuses more heavily on meeting the internal agenda of the Department of the Interior rather than on focusing on more broadly what is best for our Nation as a whole.

In fact, this is already illustrated by a recent decision by the Department of the Interior to issue a list outlining labs currently under the jurisdiction of the National Biological Survey that would be closed. One lab slated for closure is the national fisheries lab within the Upper Mississippi Science Center in LaCrosse, WI. I have a letter I would like to insert from Secretary Babbitt at this point in the RECORD that articulates this.

The Upper Mississippi Science Center is a one-of-a-kind research facility. The work this facility performs is unique and essential to the Nation.

Under a contract with 40 different States, the center conducts research which is necessary for registering chemicals and drugs used in aquaculture and marine fisheries. This center is the only research institute in the country with the facilities, personnel, experience, and laboratory practices for the development of information necessary to drug and chemical registration processes.

I am convinced that without an adequate and diverse supply of these chemical and drug products, public safety would obviously be compromised, especially with consumption of seafood products, as that continues to increase. Currently, we inspect seafood products using a system that is both risk-based and science-based. Loss of the national fisheries lab would threaten the supply of products that helps to minimize these risks. Loss of this lab would undoubtedly force us to reinvest greater funding in seafood inspection activities, since a system that is risk-based increases the size and scope in direct proportion with the risk it attempts to curtail.

I would assure the distinguished chairman that my subcommittee, the committee on Agriculture Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy, and Poultry, will be proceeding with legislative reform of our Nation's meat, poultry, and seafood inspection systems.

If we cut at this time funding to the National Biological Survey for this particular lab without providing specific guidance on where the money should be taken from, it would put this entire process in jeopardy and we would simply have to recreate that inspection and that scientific research process later on.

Therefore, I would request that the chairman would take the necessary actions to ensure that we can reach our combined legislative objectives without forcing us to actually raise the budget deficit.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GUNDERSON. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. REGULA. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I thank the distinguished chairman of the Livestock, Dairy, and Poultry Subcommittee for his remarks. I especially appreciate his acknowledgement of and support for the deficit reduction activities that my subcommittee is engaged in.

I do not envy the task ahead of the distinguished chairman as he takes up legislation to reform our Nation's systems of meat, poultry, and seafood inspection.

I recognize the fact that any cuts to the Upper Mississippi Science Center put you in a precarious position of having to potentially develop a more intense and costly system of seafood inspection.

Certainly, maintaining the safest, most abundant, highest quality, and most affordable food supply on the planet is in the best interest of all Americans.

I would like to assure the gentleman that while this bill reduces funding by over $60 million for biological research programs, and transfers programs to a research arm within the U.S. Geological Survey, nothing in this bill specifically requires where specific cuts should be made. Those decisions will be made on a priority basis solely within the Department of the Interior.

Towards that end, I would encourage the Secretary of the Interior to proceed cautiously in determining what the highest priority research needs are for lands administered by the Department of the Interior, making those decisions on the basis of national priorities.

Mr. GUNDERSON. I appreciate the gentleman's remarks and would hope that the Department of the Interior would recognize that the decisions we make here in the National Biological Survey in no way are meant to direct specific decisions regarding specific labs.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to title III?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. OWENS

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. OWENS: Page 94, after line 23, insert the following new section:

SEC. 318. (a) RESERVATION OF ROYALTY.—Production of all locatable minerals from any mining claim located under the general mining laws, or mineral concentrates or products derived from locatable minerals from any mining claim located under the general mining laws, as the case may be, shall be subject to a royalty of 8 percent of the gross income from such production. The claimholder and any operator to whom the claimholder has assigned the obligation to make royalty payments under the claim and any person who controls such claimholder or operator shall be jointly and severally liable for payment of such royalties.

(b) DUTIES OF CLAIM HOLDERS, OPERATORS, AND TRANSPORTERS.—(1) A person—

(A) who is required to make any royalty payment under this section shall make such payments to the United States at such times and in such manner as the Secretary may by rule prescribe; and

(B) shall notify the Secretary, in the time and manner as may be specified by the Secretary, of any assignment that such person may have made of the obligation to make any royalty or other payment under a mining claim.

(2) Any person paying royalties under this section shall file a written instrument, together with the first royalty payment, affirming that such person is liable to the Secretary for making proper payments for all amounts due for all time periods for which such person as a payment responsibility. Such liability for the period referred to in the preceding sentence shall include any and all additional amounts billed by the Secretary and determined to be due by final agency or judicial action. Any person liable for royalty payments under this section who assigns any payment obligation shall remain jointly and severally liable for all royalty payments due for the claim for the period.

(3) A person conducting mineral activities shall—

(A) develop and comply with the site security provisions in operations permit designed to protect from theft the locatable minerals, concentrates or products derived therefrom which are produced or stored on a mining claim, and such provisions shall conform with such minimum standards as the Secretary may prescribe by rule, taking into account the variety of circumstances on mining claims; and

(B) not later than the 5th business day after production begins anywhere on a mining claim, or production resumes after more than 90 days after production was suspended, notify the Secretary, in the manner prescribed by the Secretary, of the date on which such production has begun or resumed.

(4) The Secretary may by rule require any person engaged in transporting a locatable mineral, concentrate, or product derived therefrom to carry on his or her person, in his or her vehicle, or in his or her immediate control, documentation showing, at a minimum, the amount, origin, and intended destination of the locatable mineral, concentrate, or product derived therefrom in such circumstances as the Secretary determines is appropriate.

(c) RECORDKEEPING AND REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.—(1) A claim holder, operator, or other person directly involved in developing, producing, processing, transporting, purchasing, or selling locatable minerals, concentrates, or products derived therefrom, subject to this Act, through the point of royalty computation shall establish and maintain any records, make any reports, and provide any information that the Secretary may reasonably require for the purposes of implementing this section or determining compliance with rules or orders under this section. Such records shall include, but not be limited to, periodic reports, records, documents, and other data. Such reports may also include, but not be limited to, pertinent technical and financial data relating to the quantity, quality, composition volume, weight, and assay of all minerals extracted from the mining claim. Upon the request of any officer or employee duly designated by the Secretary or any State conducting an audit or investigation pursuant to this section, the appropriate records, reports, or information which may be required by this section shall be made available for inspection and duplication by such officer or employee or State.

(2) Records required by the Secretary under this section shall be maintained for 6 years after cessation of all mining activity at the claim concerned unless the Secretary notifies the operator that he or she has initiated an audit or investigation involving such records and that such records must be maintained for a longer period. In any case when an audit or investigation is underway, records shall be maintained until the Secretary releases the operator of the obligation to maintain such records.

(d) AUDITS.—The Secretary is authorized to conduct such audits of all claim holders, operators, transporters, purchasers, processors, or other persons directly or indirectly involved in the production or sales of minerals covered by this title, as the Secretary deems necessary for the purposes of ensuring compliance with the requirements of this section. For purposes of performing such audits, the Secretary shall, at reasonable times and upon request, have access to, and may copy, all books, papers and other documents that relate to compliance with any provision of this section by any person.

(e) COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS.—(1) The Secretary is authorized to enter into cooperative agreements with the Secretary of Agriculture to share information concerning the royalty management of locatable minerals, concentrates, or products derived therefrom, to carry out inspection, auditing, investigation, or enforcement (not including the collection of royalties, civil or criminal penalties, or other payments) activities under this section in cooperation with the Secretary, and to carry out any other activity described in this section.

(2) Except as provided in paragraph (4)(A) of this subsection (relating to trade secrets), and pursuant to a cooperative agreement, the Secretary of Agriculture shall, upon request, have access to all royalty accounting information in the possession of the Secretary respecting the production, removal, or sale of locatable minerals, concentrates, or products derived therefrom from claims on lands open to location under the general mining laws.

(3) Trade secrets, proprietary, and other confidential information shall be made available by the Secretary pursuant to a cooperative agreement under this subsection to the Secretary of Agriculture upon request only if—

(A) the Secretary of Agriculture consents in writing to restrict the dissemination of the information to those who are directly involved in an audit or investigation under this section and who have a need to know;

(B) the Secretary of Agriculture accepts liability for wrongful disclosure; and

(C) the Secretary of Agriculture demonstrates that such information is essential to the conduct of an audit or investigation under this subsection.

(f) INTEREST AND SUBSTANTIAL UNDERREPORTING ASSESSMENTS.—(1) In the case of mining claims where royalty payments are not received by the Secretary on the date that such payments are due, the Secretary shall charge interest on such underpayments at the same interest rate as is applicable under section 6621(a)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. In the case of an underpayment, interest shall be computed and charged only on the amount of the deficiency and not on the total amount.

(2) If there is any underreporting of royalty owed on production from a claim for any production month by any person liable for royalty payments under this section, the Secretary may assess a penalty of 10 percent of the amount of that underreporting.

(3) If there is a substantial underreporting of royalty owed on production from a claim for any production month by any person responsible for paying the royalty, the Secretary may assess an additional penalty of 10 percent of the amount of that underreporting.

(4) For the purposes of this subsection, the term "underreporting" means the difference between the royalty on the value of the production which should have been reported and the royalty on the value of the production which was reported, if the value which should have been reported is greater than the value which was reported. An underreporting constitutes a "substantial underreporting" if such difference exceeds 10 percent of the royalty on the value of production which should have been reported.

(5) The Secretary shall not impose the assessment provided in paragraphs (2) or (3) of this subsection if the person liable for royalty payments under this section corrects the underreporting before the date such person receives notice from the Secretary that an underreporting may have occurred, or before 90 days after the date of the enactment of this section, whichever is later.

(6) The Secretary shall waive any portion of an assessment under paragraph (2) or (3) of this subsection attributable to that portion of the underreporting for which the person responsible for paying the royalty demonstrates that—

(A) such person had written authorization from the Secretary to report royalty on the value of the production on basis on which it was reported, or

(B) such person had substantial authority for reporting royalty on the value of the production on the basis on which it was reported, or

(C) such person previously had notified the Secretary, in such manner as the Secretary may by rule prescribe, of relevant reasons or facts affecting the royalty treatment of specific production which led to the underreporting, or

(D) such person meets any other exception which the Secretary may, by rule, establish.

(7) All penalties collected under this subsection shall be deposited in the Treasury.

(g) EXPANDED ROYALTY OBLIGATIONS.—Each person liable for royalty payments under this section shall be jointly and severally liable for royalty on all locatable minerals, concentrates, or products derived therefrom lost or wasted from a mining claim located or converted under this section when such loss or waste is due to negligence on the part of any person or due to the failure to comply with any rule, regulation, or order issued under this section.

(h) EXCEPTION.—No royalty shall be payable under subsection (a) with respect to minerals processed at a facility by the same person or entity which extracted the minerals if an urban development action grant has been made under section 119 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 with respect to any portion of such facility.

(i) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The royalty under this section shall take effect with respect to the production of locatable minerals after the enactment of this Act, but any royalty payments attributable to production during the first 12 calendar months after the enactment of this Act shall be payable at the expiration of such 12-month period.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. POMBO. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. POMBO. Mr. Chairman, the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. OWENS] violates clause 2 of rule XXI of the Rules of the House. The amendment is clearly a legislative provision and, therefore, should not be added to the appropriations bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from New York desire to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. OWENS. Yes, Mr. Chairman.

The point of order which has been raised against this amendment represents gross hypocrisy.

While my amendment does include authorizing language, that is, by proper observance of the rules, not permitted in an appropriations bill, by now it is crystal clear to all of us that this appropriation bill is riddled with scores of authorization provisions, and there are many more appropriations bills on their way through the subcommittee and the committee process which have even more examples of authorization provisions.

This point of order represents an unbridled hypocrisy because both Democratic and Republican Members on the floor here are prevented from proposing the same types of substantive changes to bills that the authors of the appropriations bills clearly are being allowed to propose in subcommittee and in committee.

I will just give you one example in this particular bill, page 478, line 14.

There is a $50 million earmark to remain available indefinitely for construction of forest roads by timber purchasers, $50 million. That is legislating. It is legislating in favor of corporate welfare, pure and simple, corporate welfare, but in the bill.

Specifically, in this case, by possibly blocking a vote on my amendment, this point of order would rob the American people of the opportunity to reduce the deficit by almost $2 billion over 7 years, and we all want to reduce the deficit.

Here is a creative way to reduce the deficit. Here is a creative way to get new revenue without taxes. We are all looking for new ways to get revenue without taxes, I am sure.

It is a golden opportunity to also exhibit truth in budget balancing. If you really want to balance the budget, let us deal with some of the giveaways that we are always protecting. With all of the talk I hear about deficit reduction from the other side of the aisle, I am shocked some of my Republican colleagues prefer to continue to allow rich mining companies to continue to pocket the money of hard-working American taxpayers.

This amendment would provide that the royalties would be charged, 8 percent royalty would be charged on the value of minerals produced from hardrock mining by private companies on Federal lands. Currently, the Federal Government does not collect a single dollar in royalties from these companies.

This is precisely the type of taxpayer swindle that the Republicans are not willing to talk about. It is a kind of corporate welfare that exists in the budget and in the appropriations process.

Mr. POMBO. Point of order. I do not believe the gentleman is addressing the point of order which I raised. I believe he does feel very strongly about his amendment, which is out of order, but he is not addressing the point of order which I raised.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman's point is well taken. The gentleman will confine his remarks to the point of order.

Mr. OWENS. The point of order relates to the fact that there is in this appropriation bill, and all the others, legislation of this kind. I just gave my colleagues one example, and this is proposing one that will be very beneficial for the American people in that it will reclaim a giveaway of gold—

Mr. POMBO. Again point of order, Mr. Chairman. He is not addressing the point of order in which I raised.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman's point is well taken. The gentleman will confine his remarks to the point of order, whether or not this amendment legislates on an appropriations bill.

Mr. OWENS. Well, I would like to know from the gentleman what is the difference between my amendment at page 47, line 14, of this particular bill which has a $50 million earmark to remain available indefinitely for the construction of forest roads—

Mr. POMBO. Again, Mr. Chairman—

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman's point of order is well taken. The gentleman will confine his remarks to the point of order at hand.

The Chair is prepared to respond to the point of order.

Mr. OWENS. I am responding to the point of order in that there are under way numerous provisions of the same kind that I have here in appropriation bills. There are examples in this bill. I want to know what is the difference between the kind of amendment that I am proposing and the kind of provisions that are routinely based in the appropriations bills now. Mine would be of great benefit to the American people because it would stop allowing mining companies to rake in $1.2 million a year for mining hard-rock minerals on public lands that belong to—

Mr. POMBO. Again, Mr. Chairman, I have to raise a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman's point is well taken.

The Chair is prepared to rule on this point of order.

For the reasons stated by the gentleman from California the point of order is sustained. This amendment legislates on an appropriation bill—

Mr. OWENS. I appeal—

The CHAIRMAN. The fact that the other language is in the bill against which points of order have been waived, is not relevant.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Chairman, I appeal the ruling of the Chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Committee?

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

So the decision of the Chair stood as the judgment of the Committee.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to title III?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GUTKNECHT

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GUTKNECHT:

SEC. 318. None of the funds provided in this Act may be made available for the Mississippi River Corridor Heritage Commission.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT] and a Member opposed will each be recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT].

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself a minute and a half.

(Mr. GUTKNECHT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, Jefferson once said that "The will of the people is the only legitimate foundation of any government." I have heard the will of the people of my district loud and clear and this afternoon I am asking Congress to act upon that will.

These 3 books contain over 12,000 names of constituents from Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Iowa who strongly oppose designating the Mississippi River as a National Heritage Corridor. They believe that such a designation may be the Federal Government's first step towards increased Federal regulation in the 120 counties and parishes along the Mississippi.

The amendment we are offering would eliminate funds for the Mississippi River Heritage Corridor Commission.

Mark Twain once said that the closest thing to eternal life on earth is a government program. Congress created the Commission in 1990 for a 3 year period. They were extended once, and now they're seeking an additional $142,000 for a fifth year. It is time to put an end to this Commission before it grows roots.

There are basically two ways of looking at this Corridor Commission. Either it is, as 12,000 constituents believe, the early stages of a Federal takeover of the Mississippi corridor, or it is, as the Commission supporters have said, an innocuous group with no real power. If the latter is true, continuing to fund the Commission is a waste of taxpayer money. If the people are correct, we should do everything we can to make sure that the Father of Waters does not become the "Mother of all Federal land grabs."

The Commission has had 5 years to get public input on the National Heritage Corridor. To say that it needs an additional $142,000 to conduct 10 meetings is outrageous. Only in Washington could $14,000 per public meeting be considered a bargain.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. EMERSON].

(Mr. EMERSON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. EMERSON. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of the Gutknecht amendment and commend the gentleman's leadership in bringing this important matter for our action.

For those of you who may not be familiar with this issue, the actual Mississippi River Corridor Study Commission Act of 1989 stated that the final report of the Commission must be submitted no later than 3 years after the date of the first meeting of the Commission. Proponents of this Commission believed this would be a sufficient amount of time and money to complete its work. Well, we are in the fifth year and the study has yet to be completed, and now they are asking for more money.

More alarming, however, is the direction taken by the Commission since its creation. The plan would allow the Federal Government to designate the 120 counties and parishes that border the Mississippi River as an environmental corridor along the river with restrictive zoning requirements. If allowed to take place, this plan would seek to control all land use in adjacent river areas and override all local land use plans in these river counties. It's nothing more than a Federal land grab.

Furthermore, the Mississippi River Heritage Corridor would designate preserve areas to be controlled as the Federal Government sees fit. Even the National Park Service admits that while the general public believes the Heritage Corridor to be an economic revitalization program, it is in reality more preservation oriented. Likewise, I object to the cost of this project which would be seized from the pockets of Missouri taxpayers and I am staunchly opposed to giving Federal bureaucrats the say over the use of private property in these river areas.

Property owners, farmers, ranchers, and true conservationists up and down the river are opposed to this unjust governmental takings and other such efforts, such as The Mississippi River Heritage Corridor, to snatch control of their property. Clearly, we cannot allow preservationist and radical environmental interest groups along with a faceless Washington bureaucracy to dictate the use of thousands of acres of farmland in my home State and throughout the Upper and Lower Mississippi River Valley.

Mr. Chairman, I have heard from hundreds of my constituents on this issue and they oppose it. The Mississippi River Valley produces many millions of dollars worth of agricultural products for both domestic use and export throughout the world. This Federal land use undertaking is misguided and ill-conceived. The Gutknecht amendment must be adopted, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT].

Mr. Chairman, I think the gentleman from Missouri has a point, when he talks about the fact that the hearings were to have been completed and a report was to have been issued. Nevertheless, I want to rise in opposition to the amendment because there is nothing in the Corridor Commission feasibility report that would in any way provide for the takeover by the Federal Government of Private lands. The authority of the Commission does not in any way allow them to affect private property rights. It does not threaten property rights at all. It does not impose any regulatory burden on businesses or farms. There is nothing in this report that even suggests big government control of the Mississippi River.

I do not know why the Commission should not be allowed to complete its work. I think that there ought to be a deadline imposed on when the final report should be issued and that deadline should be strictly enforced so that any worries that private property owners along the river have can be allayed. Mr. Chairman, I see no basis for this amendment at all, and I oppose the amendment.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA].

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, we have no problem with this amendment. I think there have been long delays out there in getting anything accomplished, and adding another year of money does not do anything constructive. I have discussed it with the Members up and down the corridors that are involved, and they are very much in favor of the amendment.

Therefore, at least on our side, we are perfectly willing to accept it.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman, I would just say that this amendment is being supported by most of the Members who have property adjoining or have parts of their district that adjoin the Mississippi River.

It is also supported by the Minnesota Farm Bureau, Americans for Tax Reform Foundation, the National Taxpayers Union, the National Hardwood Lumber Association, the Illinois Association of Drainage Districts, Private Landowners of Wisconsin, Ogle County Farm Bureau, Blackhawk Area Landowners Association, CRZLR, Inc., Minnesota Agri-Growth Council, Inc., and B.A. Mulligan Lumber & Manufacturing Co.

Mr. Chairman, I say to my colleagues, "I would appreciate your support."

Mr. GUNDERSON. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would essentially eliminate funding for the Mississippi River Heritage Corridor Study Commission, a commission which, like so many study commissions established by Congress, would endure eternally if given the chance.

The Commission was established in 1990 by Public Law 101-398. The purpose of the Commission was to study and determine the feasibility of designating the Mississippi River corridor a national heritage corridor. In addition, the Commission was directed to make recommendations to Congress for preserving and enhancing the unique natural, recreational, scenic and cultural resources of the river corridor.

The law authorized the Commission for 3 years to complete the study, issue a final report and hold public hearings in each of the 10 States bordering the Mississippi River. The law authorized $500,000 a year for the Commission for a 3-year period beginning on the date the Commission initially met. Since July, 1991, when the Commission held its first meeting, Congress has appropriated to the Commission $200,000 for fiscal year 1991, $150,000 for fiscal year 1993, $149,000 for fiscal year 1994, and $149,000 for fiscal year 1995. The Commission has argued that it has been unable to meet its obligations under the law because it has not received the full funding authorized for the study. Given the current fiscal climate and the nature of the Commission, this was an unrealistic expectation.

Authorization for the Commission expired last year. At that time, the Commission had failed to meet any of its obligations. While the Commission completed a draft final report in March 1995, it returned this year and asked that Congress provide another $149,000 so that it could print its final report and hold the required 10 hearings. Congressman REGULA's subcommittee reduced that funding to $142,000, but I strongly urge that no funds appropriated in this bill be allocated to the Commission.

I want to stress that this amendment is not necessarily anti-Commission or anti-heritage area. I believe in preserving the valuable natural resources of the Mississippi River Corridor and feel Congress should be given the opportunity to consider every alternative for providing such protection. In fact, I have consistently supported the Commission, voting in favor of its appropriations every year since the Commission was formed. The Commission approached me last year during the appropriations process and asked for my support on further funding. While I had reservations about funding an unauthorized commission, I felt obligated to my constituents to ensure that Congress was presented with all the facts surrounding heritage area designation. I supported the $149,000 appropriation for the Commission based on Commission members' assurances that they would meet their obligations under the law and complete a final report by the end of 1995.

Despite those assurances, the Commission has returned to this Congress looking for funds, yet there is no final report, and not one hearing has been held. While I don't necessarily think the Commission was a poor idea, the rules have changed this year. We have made a commitment to balance the budget over the next 7 years. An appropriation of $142,000 may not seem like a great sum of money, but if we are going to act responsibly and balance the budget, we cannot continue to provide funds for perpetual commissions and studies.

The Chairman of the Commission has informed me that the Commission will be able to issue its final report regardless of whether Congress provides them these funds. I am glad that funding provided the Commission since 1991 has not gone to waste and that Congress will have the opportunity to review the Commission's recommendations. In addition, this amendment does not preclude any Member from offering a bill in the future to designate the Mississippi River a heritage corridor.

Study commissions such as this have a history of continuing on interminably if provided the funding. This amendment will simply ensure that Congress does not provide funding for an unauthorized program that is failing to get its job done.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT].

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read the last 2 lines of the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

This Act may be cited as the "Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996".

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. PARKER

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. PARKER:
Amendment No. 61:

At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. . (a) LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS.—None of the funds made available in this Act may be used by the Department of Energy in implementing the Codes and Standards Program to plan, propose, issue, or prescribe any new or amended standard.

(b) CORRESPONDING REDUCTION IN FUNDS.—The aggregate amount otherwise provided in this Act for "DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY—Energy Conservation" is hereby reduced by $12,799,000.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. PARKER] and a Member opposed will each be recognized for 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. PARKER].

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment will effectively block for 1 year new rulemakings under the Department of Energy's codes and standards program. DOE has long conducted research and information campaigns to develop and promote energy conservation and efficiency. I applaud those efforts, and my amendment allows continued funding for the DOE's testing and labeling programs, but my amendment will stop funding of standard setting rulemakings currently underway that actually steal away consumer choice. Such rules are supposed to promote energy efficiency and appliances. The problem is that when DOE wrote these rules, they set product standards so high that they end up banning whole types of products and make others uneconomic. If the DOE rules go into effect, jobs in my State will be eliminated, thousands of jobs across America will be destroyed, U.S. manufactured products will be banned, consumer choice will be limited, and whole factories in this country will close.

This is not a proper function of government. The rule in question does not even make sense. For example, DOE's proposed standard will ban the common magnetic ballast last used in fluorescent lighting and permit only a newer electronic ballast. Aside from the fact that this outright eliminates the magnetic ballast industry, the use of electronic ballast has grown from 2 percent of the market in 1987 to 40 percent today. Clearly the market is being driven towards energy efficiency without a new DOE rule. So why are we wasting tax resources on such rulemaking?

Also consider that the electronic ballast that DOE is promoting is presently manufactured mostly in Asia. The band magnetic ballast is made in the United States. It is not our job to pick light bulbs, or dishwashers or washing machines. That job belongs to the consumer. U.S. manufacturers and workers should be able to produce and sell safe products that meet the needs of their customers. When we let DOE make that decision, our citizens lose their consumer choices, and thousands lose their jobs. We need to stop this.

My amendment will save slightly over 12.7 million taxpayer dollars, will redirect DOE efforts to research and provide consumer information, will save tens of thousands of jobs and preserve billions in investments. This amendment provides a 1-year time out and sends a clear signal to the DOE that they have gone too far. To help the department reform this program, I intend to work with the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BLILEY] and the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SCHAEFER] of the Committee on Commerce on authorizing legislation to fully remedy this situation, and I ask for my colleagues' vote.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I claim the time in opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. YATES] is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

This amendment is a very drastic measure to fix a problem regarding lamp ballast that no longer exists. The rulemaking programs for building codes and equipment standards is absolutely essential. Secretary of Energy O'Leary wrote to Chairman REGULA on July 12 and said, "I am aware that the proposed rule on lamp ballast has created considerable debate and may be the impetus for Mr. PARKER's amendment, but I want to assure you as strongly as I can that we are listening to the National Electrical Manufacturer's Association, the Electronic Industry's Association, and companies like Magnetek and Philips, who fear that the rule could inherently favor electronic over electromagnetic ballasts. We are examining the economic impacts of standards on manufacturers and on competition, whether there are application differences which warrant separate classes, and we will consider issues such as timing and the stringency of standards."

So said the Secretary of Energy, Mrs. O'Leary, and I think that is reassurance that the evils and the wrongdoings suggested by my friend from Mississippi, Mr. PARKER, have no basis.

There are several other points worth noting about the appliance and building standards program, Mr. Chairman. This program will result in energy savings of 23 quads or 4 billion barrels of oil through the year 2015. Consumers and businesses will receive savings of $1.7 billion annually. Federal standards have been supported by manufacturers and other interested parties because they replaced a patchwork of State standards which were unmanageable and burdensome to industry.

This is a most destructive amendment, and I hope it will be defeated.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WALKER].

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Chairman, I want to congratulate the gentleman from Mississippi for this amendment. This amendment simply implements authorization language already adopted by the Committee on Science which I chair. That authorization was passed by a voice vote. In fact, an amendment designed to gut this particular approach was defeated overwhelmingly in the committee by a 27 to 9 vote.

What this amendment does is just implements common sense. It says that the big brother, namely the Federal Government, should not tell the U.S. consumer what products they can and cannot buy. Without this amendment, what you have is DOE bureaucrats intending to impose new Federal regulations that deny consumers certain appliances like lights, televisions, washing machines, air conditioners and ovens. The Government wants to decree that certain appliances that use what it considers too much electricity are going to be illegal. That is right, you will not be able to buy them because they will be illegal in the marketplace. These tend to be the less expensive models that middle and working class families can afford. So what you are going to do is take the middle and working class families out of the market and in favor of high-priced appliances that only the wealthy will be able to buy.

So what we are really doing with the Parker amendment is killing the regressive regulatory tax that is being imposed by DOE, unless we go this particular direction.

Just think, with the heat wave that we had this last week, if you had low income Americans unable to buy low cost air conditioners, the fact is you would have even more people suffering. That is typical of what we get in command and control benevolence when the Federal Government comes in. They simply say to low income people, guess what, folks, we are going to price you out of the marketplace. The Parker amendment says let us not price them out of the marketplace.

When I was asked what would be the practical effect of the new DOE rules, I was told I did not have to worry, because they would only raise the price for low income housing, because of the unavailability of lower priced appliances.

That is exactly the point. What we are doing is taxing the poor through higher prices, and giving them a lower quality of life, to please the idealists who want to keep in place this idea that the Federal Government knows all and can do all. I think this amendment is exactly the right approach. I would urge the adoption of it.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WALKER. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I want to be sure I understand. The gentleman has legislation that is moving through your committee that will actually then modify or repeal the Energy Policy Act of 1992 and the one of 1988, and so on down the list, because this present authority flows from these. I just want to be sure I understand there is a potential authorizing bill to repeal that.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, just to clarify, what we are attempting to repeal is some of the standards for the future. We do maintain the energy efficiency product standards, as does the Parker amendment, the State preemption provisions are retained, and it provides $3.8 million for DOE to continue to test products in order to enforce the current standards, grant waivers and ensure consistent, reliable and uniform product energy efficiency product labeling. We are going to keep the labeling in place; the information would stay in place. We are simply not going to allow the Federal Government to rule products illegal.

Mr. REGULA. But you continue to preempt the States so manufacturers would have one uniform set of standards?

Mr. WALKER. The State preemption standards remain in the Parker amendment, and that is our intention as well.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. OLVER].

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Parker amendment, and I join at the same time the strong disagreement with the fluorescent lamp ballast standard which the Department of Energy proposed last program for national energy efficiency standards.

Now, since the rule that we are operating under prevents me from offering a substitute to the Parker amendment, I will have an alternative to this amendment, one which meets the concerns of fluorescent light ballast manufacturers and workers, as well as the environmental organizations, along the way.

If you total the energy savings for all household appliances from efficiency standards which have been implemented over the last 5 years, each American family is saving $210 and every year. But efficiency helps businesses, too. Well-formulated standards would save industry enough money to create 160,000 additional jobs, and reduced demand for energy helps the environment.

Further, the standard setting process does not have to be contentious. A new standard for refrigerators has been jointly proposed by States, environmental associations, electrical utilities, and the Association of Home Manufacturers. The amendment which has been offered by the gentleman from Mississippi would prevent that new standard from going into effect, even though it has the support of every affected group and would benefit everyone who ever has to buy a refrigerator.

Let us fix the problem of the lamp ballast, which my alternative which I will offer in a few minutes does, by prohibiting any issuance of standards in the fluorescent lamp ballast case, but does not throw out all of our program, which allows us to save money for all Americans.

Mr. Chairman, I would urge that we defeat the Parker amendment and then adopt the Olver amendment, which we will be debating shortly.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 20 seconds.

Mr. Chairman, let me just point out the simple fact that the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. OLVER] is offering an amendment which separates fluorescent lights and ballast is an admission there is a problem with the new rulemaking. That is the reason why my amendment should pass.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. GUTIERREZ].

Mr. GUTIERREZ. Mr. Chairman, I would like to congratulate the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. PARKER] on offering this amendment and ask all the Members to support the amendment.

It is 350 jobs and two plants in my district alone. It is a 1-year moratorium. We can return after that year and after all of the discussions are settled, and then come back and see just what the new rules are. That way everybody can work on a level playing field. Three hundred fifty jobs is something, and thousands of jobs across the country, is something that we should consider before we vote on this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to congratulate the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. PARKER].

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MARKEY].

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, you know, this amendment is really the Luddite amendment of 1955 thus far. In this one amendment, we embody all of the lost lessons of the 1970's in our country. While the Japanese and Germans and others move to a much more energy efficient culture, we continue to pretend that we do not have to make our society more energy efficiency.

In 1987 and 1988 and 1990 again, we passed laws to push the appliance industry, to push these other industries, toward making their appliances, which would in fact otherwise demand we import more oil from the Middle East, to a standard which could meet competition from overseas. We have saved and will continue to save 4 billion barrels of imported oil from the Middle East because of these standards, which have increased the efficiency of every light bulb and every stove and refrigerator in our country. That is all oil fired electricity is, is nothing more than every light bulb and air conditioner being turned on.

If we want to roll back the clock, we can just ignore this morning's news that we have had a dramatic increase in crude oil imports this morning, which resulted in the largest trade imbalance number we have seen for a long time, and we can pretend we live on an island, we can pretend that we do not need to import oil, we can pretend that the Middle East is not in a huge crisis, and we can pretend somehow or another by denying the Federal Government the ability to do it and preempting the States simultaneously, we are not going to fall back into the same trap we had in the 1970's and early 1980's again.

That is why this amendment goes right at the heart of the question of whether or not this Congress has learned the lessons of the crisis in the 1970's in our country. We save on imported oil 4 billion barrels. We in fact make these appliances much more environmentally benign, so we are not polluting as much, and we reduce costs and the need to deal with the Clean Air Act. We in fact create more jobs, which is why Honeywell, Whirlpool, Owens Corning, Firestone, and all the rest of the companies oppose the Parker amendment.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HYDE].

(Mr. HYDE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in enthusiastic support for the Parker amendment. It will save American jobs, jobs which are being threatened by regulatory maneuvering by the Department of Energy. This amendment would cut $12.8 million in regulatory fat from DOE's budget and preserve a competitive marketplace and promote sensible energy conservation. More specifically, it would prohibit further departmental action on a proposed rulemaking concerning energy efficient standards for certain products.

It is no wonder the Department of Energy received over 8,000 comments on the 1994 proposals. We are talking about one absurd regulation after another. For example, were DOE's proposals to take effect, the size of ovens would have to be so drastically reduced they could not even accommodate a traditional 18-pound Thanksgiving turkey. Refrigerators would have to be made so large they would not be able to fit through standard size doors in apartments and many homes. Consumers would be required to purchase larger air conditioners, even if the room size did not require it.

The proposal for fluorescent lamp ballast, the devices used to start and operate fluorescent lamps, was so misdirected it would actually eliminate the primary ballast technology currently in use, known as electromagnetic ballast. DOE would simply wipe out this useful technology, made exclusively in the United States, in favor of another one, known as the electronic ballast manufactured in Mexico and Asia.

Mr. Chairman, I support the Parker amendment.

Mr. Chairman, electromagnetic ballasts are manufactured in my congressional district. And I can tell you first hand, that this proposed regulation would put some of my constituents out of work. Had the proposal gone into effect, literally thousands of American workers involved in the manufacture of electromagnetic ballasts would have faced unemployment, and estimates suggest that manufacturers of electromagnetic ballasts would have lost hundreds of millions of dollars in capital investment writeoffs. The companies that supply materials for ballasts, and their employees, would also have been severely impacted.

Mr. Chairman, the proposals for ballasts and the other products I mentioned not only would cost American jobs but would severely chill free and open marketplace competition. The Department of Justice itself recognizes this. Let me just read an excerpt from a September 1994 letter from the Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Antitrust Division to the Energy Department:

For television sets, fluorescent lamp ballasts and professional-style or high-end kitchen ranges it is the Department's judgment based on the available evidence that significant anticompetitive effects are likely to occur.

So, this administration's own Justice Department told DOE that its regulatory proposal would likely cause significant anticompetitive effects. And these anticompetitive effects don't stop there. The DOJ review also said that such anticompetitive effects might also result, under certain circumstances, from the proposed rule for electric water heaters. For microwave ovens, oil-fired water heaters, room air conditioners, and direct heating equipment, the review found there was evidence indicating that anticompetitive effects could result.

Mr. Chairman, not only is DOE attempting to restrain competition, but the evidence shows that competition, without additional regulation, can achieve the very objective DOE purports to seek. Take ballasts for example. The original fluorescent lamp ballast standards working in tandem with market forces are already achieving the program's energy saving objectives. The market penetration of electronic ballasts, the devices that would have been mandated by DOE's 1994 proposal, has increased from 2 percent in 1987 to almost 40 percent in 1994. Moreover, without the heavy hand of DOE it is expected that electronic ballasts will comprise over 50 percent of the market by 1998. A free market approach is resulting in expansion of electronic ballasts, and it is doing so without causing severe economic hardships, creating significant anticompetitive effects, or sacrificing existing energy saving opportunities.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment would save the thousands of American jobs being threatened by these regulatory activities, result in greater energy conservation, and cut almost $13 million in fat from DOE's proposed budget. In addition, it is important to note that the amendment will not prevent implementation of certain useful aspects of the program, relating to establishing testing procedures for products, labeling, and enforcement.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this common sense amendment to save American jobs, cut more regulatory fat from the budget, preserve a competitive marketplace, and promote sensible energy conservation.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. DINGELL], the distinguished former chairman of the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

□ 1345

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Parker amendment and urge my colleagues to vote against it in the knowledge that they will be able to vote for the Olver amendment which will very shortly afford Members of this body full opportunity to protect the ballast question in a manner which will be satisfactory. It is totally untrue that this is going, that the energy requirements now in place are going to impose burdens on oven manufacturers and on refrigerator manufacturers. That is totally without fact.

My colleagues have forgotten the reason we have these energy efficiency standards. It was to save energy. We did that because of the massive impact on the American economy because of cutoff of oil from the Middle East. If you ever have that happen again, you will understand how Members of Congress react when we have this kind of situation.

I want to observe to my colleagues one thing that is important: The standards-making authority which this amendment would do away with is something which is supported and sought by American industry in the full knowledge that it avoids the problem of standards being imposed by 50 different States. You cannot run a nation when you have 50 different States imposing different standards at the borders. I urge my colleagues to reject this. Vote for the Olver amendment which is coming up next.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. CRAMER].

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Parker-Walker amendment. I hope our colleagues will pay attention to this. This amendment eliminates funding for unnecessary DOE energy efficiency rulemaking. The proposed rulemaking, if left as proposed, would eliminate thousands of American jobs. In my district alone, it would eliminate 1,000 jobs. This amendment solves this problem. The market competition is achieving the objectives sought by the proposed DOE rule. We do not need this kind of rulemaking. Support the Parker amendment.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY].

(Mr. OXLEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment by the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. PARKER].

The energy efficiency standards which our committee so assiduously worked on and finally passed on a strong bipartisan basis is truly in danger if the Parker amendment passes. I want to give a lot of credit to the chairman of the appropriations subcommittee, my friend, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA], for sticking to his principles on this issue. We have set a strong record.

This is the kind of case where the industry came in, as the gentleman from Michigan and the gentleman from Massachusetts talked about, into our committee and said, we need a national standard for these energy efficiency products. Virtually all of the industry that I am aware of signed off on this. Now when we have some industries that have had the foresight to actually follow the rules and regulations, they are going to be punished if the Parker amendment passes.

That does not make a whole lot of sense. So my sense is, let us support the Committee on Appropriations who knew what they were doing when they passed this particular provision in the committee and certainly the Committee on Commerce that did such yeoman work in setting these standards.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. GUNDERSON].

(Mr. GUNDERSON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GUNDERSON. Mr. Chairman, it is one thing for us to lose jobs because we cannot compete with foreign competitors. It is quite another thing for us to intentionally regulate jobs out of existence in this country, and that is exactly what this regulation will do.

They talk about the fact that there are 8,000 comments that have come in. That ought to tell somebody something. But will the department go back and start over? No. What they have done is they have piecemealed this up into eight different sections so nobody knows where anybody is at. That is why we have no choice but to come here today and to try to do something like this.

One of my colleagues on the other side suggested earlier that somehow or another the bipartisan commitment was in opposition to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. PARKER]. Well, I would reject that. I would suggest if you look at those who support the Parker amendment, you will find the National Electrical Manufacturers Association, the Electronic Industries Association, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the Industrial Union Department of the AFL-CIO, the National Association of Home Builders, the Flint Glass Workers Union, the National Multi Housing Council, and the National Apartment Association.

Support the Parker amendment.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Let me just close by saying that a lot has been said about what this amendment will do. The Parker amendment will not affect existing energy efficiency standards and the benefits that they have provided. Its existing national energy efficiency standards will remain in effect. Label requirements to enable consumers to make informed choices among products will remain in effect. Testing procedures to ensure reliability of claims regarding energy efficiency will remain in effect.

People keep talking about pretending. Let us pretend, for instance, that 90 percent of the jobs, 90 percent of the electronic ballasts are not made in Asia. Let us pretend that we are not going to lose all of these jobs.

Please support the Parker amendment. It is the right thing to do, and it gives us a situation where we can correct what has been going on for some time.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California [Mr. BROWN].

(Mr. BROWN of California asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BROWN of California. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the Parker amendment. This amendment would effectively undermine what has been one of our most successful, cost-effective energy conservation programs.

I can only note with bemusement that the sponsors of this effort are many of the staunchest advocates of risk-cost-benefit analysis. Over the past several months, these members have spared no effort to inform us of the costs to society of regulation, which some industry groups have estimated at $600 billion a year.

Now here is a DOE regulatory program that actually has saved or will save American society a total of about $132 billion in energy costs. For some reason, the authors of this amendment have also seen fit to oppose this cost-saving program, and have made an effort in the Science Committee and now here to kill it.

Now this House has, for better or worse, adopted the position that economic cost-benefit analyses should become the new gold standard for Government regulatory action. We should just sum the benefits, sum the costs, subtract, and then reach our decision with arithmetic certitude.

Well, that calculation has in fact been done for the appliance efficiency program. It happens that the costs of the program to consumers are $59 billion, the benefits are $191 billion, and the benefits exceed the costs by a margin of 3.2 to one.

Now the supporters of this amendment would apparently have us believe that we shouldn't really use a cost-benefit test—we should just trust them to make a subjective and political judgment about the value of this program.

Let's look at the real facts concerning the efficiency program. There has been a great deal of controversy about fluorescent light ballasts, and there is a lot of misinformation on this subject. It is true that there are jobs in the magnetic ballast industry in Mississippi and elsewhere that are in jeopardy.

It is also true, however, that other U.S. firms like Motorola in Buffalo Grove, IL, are producing electronic ballasts and reaping large profits. The electronic ballast business, in which several other U.S. firms participate, is a business of the future and it will grow at the expense of older industries regardless of what DOE does with efficiency standards.

In fact, DOE has sufficient confidence in market forces that they have withdrawn the proposed ballast standard and are considering not issuing any standard in this area.

Unfortunately, the controversy over ballasts and televisions, for which the proposed rule was also withdrawn, is being used as ammunition to eliminate the entire appliance efficiency program.

Much of this program is not controversial at all. Last year, for example, the refrigeration industry sat down with the environmentalists and worked out an agreement on refrigeration efficiency standards for the next century. All the significant refrigerator manufacturers were party to this agreement, which will provide a net savings of about $13 billion for U.S. consumers and reduce refrigerator energy consumption by 25 to 30 percent.

DOE was only too happy to accept this universal and hard-won compromise. It seems to me that this process is exactly the kind of enterprise that this House, Republicans and Democrats, should rally around and support. No new bureaucracy—no litigation—just progress and benefits for the environment, for our balance of payments, and for the pocketbooks of ordinary Americans.

Under Parker-Walker, even this refrigeration standard that has already been agreed could not be implemented. The Parker amendment will also prevent DOE from developing the energy efficiency measurement standards that are used for consumer appliance labeling.

The consumer labeling program, although completely nonregulatory, relies upon accurate energy use determination based on DOE standards that promulgated by rule. These measurement standards need to be revised periodically as usage and design patterns change—the washing machine measurement method is already 15 years out of date and is growing older by the day.

Under Parker, not only will there be no baseline efficiency requirements for appliances, but the information accessible to consumers for making their own marketplace decisions will be increasingly unreliable.

Now before this national program was created in 1987, there was an emerging patchwork of State appliance efficiency standards. Industry finally wanted a national program to ensure consistent standards and greatly simplify business planning and manufacturing. The 1987 law does grant DOE the power to allow separate State standards by petition.

If we gut the DOE program here today, it is highly likely that the Department will use its statutory power to grant a number of State requests for waivers. In fact, just in the past few days California has put such a process in motion, anticipating our action today.

Returning to a patchwork system is not in the interests of anyone—industrialists, environmentalists, or consumers.

In summary, the Parker amendment would set a very unwise policy course for this Nation. Let's stop our reflexive environment bashing, regulation bashing, and bureaucrat bashing and take some sensible, moderate steps to save money for consumers and provide for a sound energy future for our children. Defeat the Parker amendment, support Mr. OLVER's compromise, and I yield back any remaining time.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA], chairman of our subcommittee.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA] is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

I would point out to my colleagues that on October 5, 1992, by a vote of 363 to 60, we established in this body the following policy: It added commercial products to a standards program, setting initial standards for electric motors, central air conditioners, heat pumps, gas and oil furnaces, boilers, water heaters, plumbing equipment lamps—that is the subject of this amendment. It requires the DOE to maintain test procedures and establish a labeling program.

We said, as a national policy, there should be a uniform set of standards established by the Department of Energy on energy efficiency. I think that what the gentleman from Mississippi is discussing should be the subject of an authorizing bill. This is not the proper place to deal with this matter. I would hope that the gentleman would take this issue to the authorizing committee, and, if they should recommend that we modify the action of this body, as I just outlined in the Energy Policy Act that is now the law and passed by an overwhelming majority, this should be discussed in that forum.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REGULA. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, I have to say to the gentleman that is exactly what I want to do. That is the reason we need this time out. Because the Committee on Commerce will not be meeting until after the first of the year to discuss this issue.

If we allow the rulemaking to go through, what we are going to wind up with is a situation where the jobs are already going to be destroyed, and we are not going to be getting them back. That is the reason we need a postponement of a year in order to get to the point where the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BLILEY] can take this up in the committee, the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SCHAEFER] can take it up in the subcommittee and we can resolve these issues.

Mr. REGULA. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, I understand the gentleman, but I think he would agree that the Olver amendment would accomplish that objective.

Mr. PARKER. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will continue to yield, it would accomplish the objective for my little part of it, as far as the jobs in my district. But I am more concerned about the total outlook of what we are doing with this rule.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I am reluctant to go to a total repeal. That would invite the states, in effect, to set different standards. I sympathize with the gentleman's problem, but I think the Olver amendment would solve it.

Mr. SCHAEFER. Mr. Chairman, I support the amendment offered by Mr. PARKER to limit funding for the Department of Energy to conduct rulemakings on energy efficiency standards.

In the past, I have been very supportive of energy efficiency standards. Valuable energy resources, as well as money is saved by reducing our consumption of energy. In addition, by adopting national energy efficiency standards, appliance manufacturers and others have had only one standard to comply with rather than 50 conflicting standards.

However, this year, industry representatives have come to us complaining about how DOE is implementing appliance efficiency standards. Complaints that DOE through its rulemaking, is interfering with the operation of free markets.

Thus, I support this amendment. It will slow down the process at DOE and give the authorizing committee time to look at the merits of the issue. In fact my subcommittee will be holding hearings on this issue before the end of the year.

Thus I support this amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. PARKER].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 261, noes 165, answered "present" 1, not voting 7, as follows:

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—1

Upton

NOT VOTING—7

Browder	Moakley	Volkmer
Collins (MI)	Reynolds
Kennedy (RI)	Richardson

□ 1413

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia and Mr. WYNN changed their vote from "aye" to "no."

Messrs. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania, HEFLEY, CLYBURN, BONO, FROST, COSTELLO, and BLUTE changed their vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. UPTON. Mr. Chairman, I voted "present" on the Parker amendment to H.R. 1977, rollcall No. 519 because it almost singularly affects a firm in which I have major personal financial interests.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. OLVER

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. OLVER: Amendment No. 70: At the end of the bill add the following new section:

"SEC. . None of the funds made available in this act may be used by the Department of Energy in implementing the Codes and Standards Program to plan, propose, issue, or prescribe any new or amended standard—

"(1) when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that the Attorney General, in accordance with section 325(o)(2)(B) of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (42 U.S.C. 6295(o)(2)(B)), determined that the standard is likely to cause significant anti-competitive effects;

"(2) that the Secretary of Energy, in accordance with such section 325(o)(2)(B), has determined that the benefits of the Standard do not exceed its burdens; or

"(3) that is for fluorescent lamps ballasts."

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. OLVER] and a Member opposed will each be recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, let me say that my amendment meets the concerns of labor unions such as the IBEW in relation to the fluorescent light ballast issue, and of environmental organizations such as the League of Conservation Voters, and of businesses such as Honeywell and Whirlpool. My amendment specifically and explicitly prohibits the promulgation of the fluorescent lamp ballast standard without throwing national energy efficiency standards out the window.

My amendment prohibits the Department of Energy from promulgating an efficiency standard if the Attorney General has determined in the course of her review, which is required by law, that the standard is likely to be anti-competitive. Furthermore, all proposed standards would have to show benefits greater than costs in an analysis which considers economic impact of the proposed standard on manufacturers and consumers.

By adopting this language, we prevent regulatory excess without killing off a valuable program that saves the average American family hundreds of dollars in hard cash each year. Furthermore, we do not kill off the possibility of new standards being established for things like the refrigerator standards which have been jointly proposed by States, the environmental organizations and electric utilities, and the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers.

Mr. Chairman, the Olver amendment helps consumers, businesses, the environment and the economy, and prohibits the anticompetitive effects of the fluorescent ballast standard. I would urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. Does any Member wish to speak in opposition to the amendment?

If not, does the gentleman wish to speak further?

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. EHLERS].

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by my fellow scientist, Mr. OLVER. Something that many of you may not be aware of is that I spent a considerable amount of my earlier scientific career dealing with subjects relating to energy conservation.

I can assure my colleagues that there is no other source of energy available as cheaply and as readily as that which is obtained through conservation of energy. I believe it is very important for us to have appropriate energy standards which inform the public of the use of energy by the appliances they buy.

I label the Olver amendment as a consumer information amendment. It is very important that the Federal Government serve as a neutral source of information that is available to the public so that they can buy appliances which are energy efficient.

I can relate a simple experience I had when my wife and I first got married and we went shopping for a refrigerator. She decided on the refrigerators she liked because of the features it had, and narrowed it down to two models. One refrigerator cost $250, and one cost $500. Obviously, it seemed, the cheaper refrigerator would be the better buy.

However, I did an energy consumption analysis of those refrigerators, because it was before the time of energy standards, and discovered that in fact the $500 refrigerator over its anticipated lifetime would cost considerably less than the $250 refrigerator. We bought the more expensive model and saved a lot of money.

I hope we, as the Federal Government, can provide enough information so that everyone can make those kinds of decisions.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Washington [Mr. DICKS] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I just want to ask the gentleman a question here. If I read the gentleman's amendment correctly, there is a positive cost-benefit ratio, and if there is not an antitrust problem, can then the Secretary of Energy promulgate a new rule on fluorescent lamp ballasts? She has said here in her letter to us that she has withdrawn the original proposed rule because it was flawed, but could she now do a new rule on this subject, or is that completely barred by your amendment?

Mr. OLVER. If the gentleman will yield, I thank the gentleman for the question. It is not always possible in the art of drafting legislation to take care of every contingency.

As a matter of fact, in the drafting whereby the Attorney General's determination under the law of anticompetitiveness, that would have in fact precluded the fluorescent light ballast standard from going into effect even without the provision that eliminates the ballasts from this year's considerations for rules.

But in fact the gentleman is correct that for this year, because of the controversy, in order to make absolutely certain that the controversy over fluorescent light ballasts was off the table for this year, there would not be, in my understanding, the opportunity for creating another—

Mr. DICKS. I would have to rise, then, in very strong opposition to this amendment.

What the Secretary of Energy is basically telling us in this: Here is the report to our committee. Fluorescent lamp ballasts, after reviewing the comments in the proposed rule, the Department determined the engineering analysis was flawed.

On January 31, 1995, the Department announced its intention to perform a new analysis and prepare a proposed rule based on the new analysis. Since the January notice, the Department has been meeting with the NEMA, individual manufacturers, and representatives of the American Council for an Energy-Efficient Economy, to develop a new engineering analysis. Once the analysis is completed, the Department intends to prepare a new proposed rule.

It seems to me that starting on the first of the fiscal year, we would then for the next 15 months be barring any opportunity to do a rule even if it was an appropriate rule that would save us energy.

Mr. OLVER. If the gentleman would yield further, the fiscal year is only 12 months, but that is a small point.

Mr. DICKS. We are still here, though.

Mr. OLVER. I would point out, if the amendment becomes law that had been offered previously, there would be no rulemaking of any kind anywhere across the area of energy standards, not only the ballast issue but all other issues. This amendment preserves the possibility of allowing the national standards in areas other than the ballast issue to go forward under the constraints of nonanticompetitiveness.

Mr. DICKS. Would the gentleman answer me this one question? If the Department has a good and appropriate rule, obviously the first rule was fatally flawed. If you were blocking the first rule from going into effect, I would have no problem with what the gentleman is attempting to do, but the gentleman has already won the battle. The Secretary of Energy withdrew that rule. She is now listening to all these people and trying to come up with a new rule. What you are doing here with this amendment is prohibiting for the next 15 months a rule to go into effect on that subject. I think that is wrong. I think the Secretary has already given you what you want, and this goes too far.

Mr. OLVER. If the gentleman would yield further, I would merely point out again that we can have standards with this amendment in all other areas of energy efficiency if they are not anticompetitive, and if there is a positive cost-benefit ratio. But without this amendment, we can have no standards in any of these areas, including the one that you are concerned about. Either way, you do not have within the next 12 months the standard issued in the fluorescent lamp ballast concern. But if we do not adopt this amendment, then we are not going to have any standards in any area.

Mr. DICKS. Is the gentleman opposed to this rule, even if it were a positive rule?

Mr. OLVER. Answering that question, in the two other provisions I would be happy to have a rule go into effect, if it were possible. It is not possible either by the previous amendment or by this amendment.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DICKS. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I just want to advise the Members that we will on our side accept the amendment. It is not inconsistent with Parker. It does not reach as far, but we are willing to accept it.

I hope the authorizing committee will then at the earliest possible moment address the entire situation. I can understand the difficulties both the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. OLVER] and the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. PARKER] are having.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MARKEY].

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, this deals with the very specific issue that the gentleman from Mississippi was interested in. It avoids the trap of having the broader repeal of all of the other energy efficiency laws that affect every other appliance. I think that the chairman of the committee is wise in accepting this amendment. It is in fact a very fair compromise that deals with a very specific issue that had been raised by the gentleman from Mississippi. I would hope that the amendment would be accepted.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. OLVER].

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there other amendments to title III?

AMENDMENT NO. 48 OFFERED BY MR. ZIMMER

Mr. ZIMMER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 48 offered by Mr. ZIMMER: Page 94, after line 24, insert the following new section:

SEC. 318. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used (1) to demolish the bridge between Jersey City, New Jersey, and Ellis Island; or (2) to prevent pedestrian use of such bridge, when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that such pedestrian use is consistent with generally accepted safety standards.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER] will be recognized for 5 minutes, and a Member opposed will be recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER].

Mr. ZIMMER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, 40 percent of Americans are descended from immigrants who came to this country by way of Ellis Island. Today Ellis Island is a magnificent museum and a national park. Unfortunately it is accessible to the general public only by ferry for a price of $7 per person. This price makes it prohibitive to many of the American citizens who in fact own Ellis Island.

During the last session, there was a pitched battle on the issue of whether to build a new $15 million bridge from Jersey City to Ellis Island for pedestrian access. That bridge for all practical purposes is dead. It was approved in the last Congress, but the appropriation is slated to be rescinded by this Congress.

My amendment provides a common-sense solution to the problem of access to Ellis Island by providing for the use of an existing bridge for public pedestrian access so long as it is consistent with generally accepted safety standards. I will repeat that.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ZIMMER. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, for the benefit of all of us, how would the gentleman define "generally accepted safety standards"? I just want to be sure that I am comfortable with the fact that safety is of primary concern here.

Mr. ZIMMER. Mr. Chairman, I tried to draft the language as neutrally as possible. Generally accepted safety standards seems like an objective criterion that can be defined by published standards.

The initial definition would, of course, be made by the Park Service itself. Given that fact, the director of the Park Service, with the concurrence of the Secretary of the Interior, has told me that he does not oppose this amendment.

Mr. REGULA. If the gentleman would yield further, then it would be the responsibility of the Park Service to enforce safety standards, and whatever the Department would establish would become the standard that would control access to the structure. Is that correct?

Mr. ZIMMER. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, conceivably someone could litigate that decision, but the initial decision would of course belong to the Park Service.

Mr. Chairman, the bridge of which we speak is some 1,400 feet in length. It is sturdy. It has been in existence since 1886. It is used every day by Park Service personnel and by contractors who are working to renovate the buildings on Ellis Island, and it is being used by their vehicles as well. It has a pedestrian walkway. And the Park Service is planning to upgrade this bridge so it can be used for the several years remaining in the rehabilitation project that is ongoing at Ellis Island.

The Park Service is also planning to extend the permits that are scheduled to expire so this bridge can continue in use.

Safety concerns have been raised by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA] and they have been raised by Roger Kennedy, the director of the Park Service, and that is why I have included the language that we discussed in the colloquy in this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I personally believe the bridge is quite safe at this point and needs little or no upgrading to be suitable for the public. But if I am wrong, and the bridge is unsafe according to generally accepted safety standards, then this legislation would keep the public from using it until it is upgraded.

I do not believe that the Park Service would allow its own employees, on a daily basis, to use a bridge that is unsafe. But in any event, for purposes of this amendment, the issue is moot, because of the language of the legislation. That is why the Park Service and that is why the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA] have agreed that they would accept this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA], chairman of the committee.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, on the basis of the representations of the Secretary of the Interior and the Director of the Park Service that they have no objection to this, we, therefore, would accept it. I do have a concern on the safety standards and I certainly would respond to any requests for additional funds to ensure that it is totally safe.

Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman, it is limited to pedestrians; is that correct?

Mr. ZIMMER. Mr. Chairman, I would say to the gentleman, yes, my amendment would not open it to vehicular traffic, other than the traffic that already traverses it and the occasional vehicle or garbage truck that services the island.

Mr. REGULA. If the gentleman would continue to yield, the Superintendent of the Statue of Liberty has outlined some concerns and I think they will try to address these to ensure that it does meet all accepted safety standards. On that basis, on the Secretary of the Interior's representations, we have no objection.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. YATES] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I want the attention not only of the proponent of this amendment, but the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA], my chairman, as well. In conversations that I had with the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER] before this amendment was offered, he showed me the letter from the Director of the Park Service saying that he no longer had any objection to it. I understand also that the Secretary of the Interior has no objection to it.

And I have some difficulty, concerned as I am, with possible safety questions that were raised by the chairman of the subcommittee. I have a letter here, a copy of a letter here, dated July 11, 1995, which gives me pause and makes me wonder why the Director of the Park Service and the Secretary of the Interior waived whatever objections they had.

This is a copy of a letter dated July 11, to the Director of the National Park Service from the Superintendent of the Statue of Liberty National Museum on Ellis Island. "Subject: Ellis Island Bridge—Unsafe for Public Pedestrian Use," and he gives the reasons under that:

Decking is perforated steel which is difficult to walk on and by Building Official Code and Administrative International definition is a tripping hazard.

Side rails are not in compliance with Building Official Code and Administrative International or ADA because of spacing of intermediate rails. Children would be particularly at risk of falling.

Ellis side of the bridge is currently a construction staging area and a site maintenance yard.

The bridge landing area will continue to be a construction staging area if rehabilitation of historic structures on Ellis Island continues.

Bridge does not meet New York and New Jersey building codes for public pedestrian bridge.

Surface material is designed for traction during ice and snow, therefore, if a person falls, they could receive serious cuts.

There is no protection to separate pedestrians from vehicles.

It is signed by M. Ann Belkov.

I know the gentleman has sought to condition the committee's approval with language, but it seems to me to be somewhat inadequate in view of the criticisms raised by Ms. Belkov. And so, Mr. Chairman, I know that I cannot accept the amendment and of course will do as the House wants to do.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. YATES. I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from New York.

(Mrs. LOWEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to this amendment. There is no good reason for the expenditure of these funds, especially at a time when we face the possibility of actually closing down national parks.

I want to remind my colleagues that there had been an ongoing effort over the past few years by New Jersey to build a permanent bridge between New Jersey and the island. I strongly oppose this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, as the gateway for more than 12 million immigrants between 1982 and 1954, Ellis Island holds a unique position in our Nation's history. While I certainly share the desire to promote visitor access in the Island, I rise in opposition to the amendment by the gentleman from New Jersey.

The temporary construction bridge that was erected in 1986 between Jersey City and Ellis Island was built for trucks—not pedestrians. It does not meet applicable safety codes for pedestrian use and, according to the National Park Service, it would cost at least $1 million to make the necessary structural safety improvements to the bridge.

But, Mr. Chairman, the problems don't stop there. If pedestrians were to be allowed on the bridge, the landings on both the island and the mainland—which are presently routed through service and maintenance yards—would have to be relocated. This would require the abatement of asbestos and fuel-soaked soils and extensive landscaping, at a cost of at least another million dollars.

There is no good reason for the expenditure of these funds, especially at a time when we face the possibility of actually closing down national parks.

Let me remind my colleagues that there has been an ongoing effort over the past few years by New Jersey to build a permanent bridge between New Jersey and the island. Earlier this year this body voted to stop funding for this project, which would cost as much as $25 million and which—in the words of a Park Service report—would have an unmitigateable, adverse impact on the island's historic and cultural resources.

The supporters of this amendment would like you to believe that pedestrian access is critically needed because the ferry is too expensive or inconvenient. The reality is that a family can spend the entire day at Ellis Island and the Statue of Liberty for less than the cost of going to a movie. Is it worth asking the taxpayers to spend millions of dollars to provide another means of access, particularly when the vast majority of visitors to the island say they prefer to take the ferry anyway?

Every year, more than a million and a half visitors from around the world tour the island. Like their predecessors, visitors travel to the island by boat. Not surprisingly, most tourists to the island say they consider the ferry ride to Ellis Island an essential part of their visit.

The Park Service's use of scarce Federal dollars at Ellis Island would be better spent on the island's historic buildings that are in desperate need of repair. I urge my colleagues to vote against this amendment.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. LOWEY. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

(Mr. NADLER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment which would prohibit us from tearing down this bridge which is half in my district. This bridge was constructed with the specific intent of being taken down. It is an Army-designed, temporary Bailey bridge.

The only reason it exists is to allow construction vehicles to travel to and from Ellis Island for an ongoing construction project. It is normally used by an advancing military. It is designed to be laid quickly and efficiently and is meant to be used only as a temporary crossing.

Mr. Chairman, an amendment to make it permanent, to prevent us from tearing it down, is an amendment to circumvent the will of this House which voted not to have a permanent bridge here.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment.

The bridge my colleague is asking to be turned into a pedestrian foot bridge is an Army-designed Bailey Bridge. This bridge was constructed with the specific intent of being taken down. The only reason it exists is to allow construction vehicles to travel to and from Ellis Island for an ongoing restoration project. This type of bridge is normally used by an advancing military and is designed to be laid quickly and efficiently and is meant to be used only as a temporary crossing. A Bailey Bridge is designed for vehicles and troops wearing combat boots. It is made of perforated metal, an extremely unsafe surface for normal pedestrian use.

In fact, the bridge is far from meeting basic safety standards for pedestrian use. The railings and curbs are inadequate. There is no way to separate vehicle from pedestrian traffic further endangering those that would use the bridge. To make this bridge a stable and long lasting structure would also require additional pilings and reinforcement of its frame. The estimated cost to add the railings, curbs, pilings and other safety features necessary for pedestrian traffic is $5 million. This amendment does not provide the funds for the construction of these safety standards, yet it will not allow the bridge to be taken down. So, when the restoration project is over it will sit, useless, nothing more than a potential navigational hazard to industrial and recreational ships alike. As such, in addition to being an unsafe crossing for families visiting Ellis Island, if the bridge is left in place beyond its useful life it could threaten vessels calling at port facilities in Port Newark—Elizabeth, the Military Ocean Terminal in Bayonne, the Howland Hook marine terminal, South Brooklyn Marine Terminal, Red Hook Container Terminal as well as other marine traffic in the Nation's greatest port.

This bridge is not designed for heavy pedestrian use and is not designed to stand the test of time. It is a temporary bridge that will be nothing more than a disaster waiting to happen. I strongly urge my colleagues to defeat this amendment.

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to address the committee for 2 minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. Chairman, this amendment brings the art form in the Congress of looking to appear to do something, but in fact doing nothing, to a new height.

This amendment, as offered, would save a bridge which has already been determined to be unsafe and yet undermine previous efforts of the Congress to provide a new access to the island.

We are telling the American people that, in fact, we are going to avoid this problem of a $7 ferry ride. New access. Well, in the 103d Congress we just did that. We said we were going to build a new bridge and give new access.

And now, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER] comes to the floor offering to save a bridge which for safety reasons no one could walk across, and yet there is no appropriation to fix it or repair it.

There is perhaps no reason to oppose the amendment. It will not do any harm. But there is also no reason to vote for it. We have managed simply to convince people that it looked like we were doing something, while we did nothing.

Now, it may be the impression of some as well, because the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER] has brought this amendment to the floor that, in fact, he represents this district. In fact, he does not. The gentleman from New York [Mr. NADLER] has jurisdiction over parts of the island and the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. MENENDEZ] on the remainder.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TORRICELLI. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

(Mr. MENENDEZ asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Chairman, let me briefly say I would have liked to have joined the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER] in the ranks of those who have been fighting for a pedestrian bridge to give affordable access, but that time was when we had the rescissions vote. That vote, unfortunately, took away the possibility for a pedestrian bridge to go ahead and make sure that lower-income Americans do not have to pay Circle Line, with its exclusive opportunity to bring passengers to the island.

So, Mr. Chairman, this unfortunately, does not do the job that I hoped it would, but the National Park Service has said simply that it will not.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to welcome Mr. ZIMMER to the ranks of those fighting to establish a pedestrian bridge from Liberty State Park in Jersey City to Ellis Island.

I say that I'm welcoming him, because there have been precious few of us who have been out front about making access to one of our most important national historic treasures easy and affordable, and who have worked for legislation that would make that possible. In fact, aside from myself, Senators BRADLEY and LAUTENBERG, and Congressman FRELINGHUYSEN, nobody has really shown much interest at all in helping the millions of families who visit this historic landmark get there easily and safely. As the Representative of the district in which the bridge lies, I'm pleased Mr. ZIMMER has finally joined the effort. We have done all we can to get Governor Whitman to join us, but she still shows no interest in doing so.

This amendment would prevent funds in the bill from being used to demolish an existing bridge to Ellis Island, or being used to prevent pedestrians from using that bridge if it is deemed safe for such use. The bridge is currently used by construction and maintenance vehicles for access to the island.

When I saw Mr. ZIMMER was offering this amendment, I asked people at the Park Service what they thought about it. Their response was most interesting. They told me that they have no intention whatsoever of demolishing the bridge. In fact, they would like to keep the bridge permanently in use for their vehicles, since without it, the cost of transportation for Park Service employees, equipment, trash, and so forth would approach $700,000 annually. It clearly makes little sense to demolish the bridge, and therefore even less sense to bother amending an appropriations bill to prevent a demolition which no one seeks.

Because the Park Service intends to keep the bridge indefinitely for vehicular traffic, there is no hope of its being converted for pedestrian use. This renders the amendment almost entirely moot.

I say almost, because there is still some value to the amendment. Despite its glaring weaknesses, it is one of the best arguments I have seen yet for the construction of a new bridge, exclusively for pedestrian use, which I have been fighting for since my arrival here nearly 3 years ago. Originally, we had wanted to build a pedestrian bridge nearby, because families visiting the island currently must wait in line, sometimes for hours under the summer sun, and then buy tickets from the Circle Line ferry, which has a commercial monopoly on visitor access to the island. During their long wait in the ticket line, these families can all see clearly that there is a bridge linking the island to the shore. Still, they are forced to pay $7 apiece, $20 for a family with two children, for a ferry ride to an island less than a quarter mile off shore. For many of my constituents, who ironically live so close to Ellis Island, the price is a luxury they cannot afford. But, Mr. Chairman, should visiting a treasure of our national heritage be considered a luxury? Certainly it should not.

Unfortunately, the Zimmer amendment provides no funding for the improvements necessary to make the bridge safe for pedestrians, nor for the construction of a new one. Without funds to upgrade the bridge, it will remain permanently unsafe. Permanently, because not only is there no money to improve it, but the amendment prevents us from demolishing it, too. So we are to be eternally stuck with an unusable bridge. That is one effect of the amendment.

The original purpose of the bridge, to provide access for construction vehicles involved in the restoration of the remaining historic buildings on the island, is further defeated by the bill itself. Language appearing on page 18 prohibits the use of Park Service funds to implement an agreement for the redevelopment of the southern end of Ellis Island. The adoption of this amendment and the passage of the bill would leave us with a construction bridge, but no construction. A bridge which we will then maintain for pedestrians, but which is unfit for pedestrian use. A bridge which some argue supposedly damages the historical integrity of an island, an island full of collapsing historic buildings, but which we can neither improve, replace, nor tear down.

There are funds available for the construction of a footbridge, but the project will be killed in the Republican rescissions bill, if it passes the Senate. In fact, if the new version of the bill isn't passed, I understand that it is the intention of Chairman WOLF to kill the project in the Transportation appropriations bill, even though the Park Service's draft environmental impact statement shows that a new bridge is the most preferable method of providing affordable access. The real battle to provide affordable access to Ellis Island was fought months ago. My colleague from New Jersey could have been much more effective if he had joined us in supporting the bridge during the rescissions process.

With the passage of this amendment and the Interior Appropriations bill, however, it will only be a matter of time before even the most casual observer will see plainly the absurdity of what we will have done here today, and be compelled to seek a real solution such as the one we have advocated for years, but which has been consistently frustrated by political gamesmanship.

Mr. ZIMMER. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 1 additional minute to respond.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

Mr. ZIMMER. Mr. Chairman, I would point out to the gentleman who represent the vicinity of the bridge that the mayor of Jersey City endorses this amendment. Jersey City is the New Jersey terminus of the bridge.

Mr. Chairman, I am interested in the statement that this bridge is unsafe for pedestrian use, because it is being used as we speak by pedestrians in the employ of the Park Service. We do not have to spend $15 million for a brand-new bridge. If it is necessary to upgrade this bridge, it would be at minimal cost; certainly far less than $15 million.

I believe we have the best of both worlds here. We can provide for public access without having to spend money which is in fact being rescinded by this Congress, and without giving the Circle Line a monopoly service at $7 a person for access to this national museum.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER].

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. ZIMMER. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 230, noes 196, not voting 8, as follows:

Messrs. YOUNG of Alaska, WAMP, QUILLEN, QUINN, and MASCARA changed their vote from "aye" to "no." Messrs. FORBES, THOMAS of California, CHAPMAN, and WHITE changed their vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to title III?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. KLUG

Mr. KLUG. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. KLUG: On page 44, after line 19, insert the following:

"SEC. 115. No funds appropriated or otherwise made available pursuant to this Act in fiscal year 1996 shall be obligated or expended to accept or process applications for a patent for any mining or mill site claim located under the general mining laws or to issue a patent for any such claim."

The CHAIRMAN. Under the rule, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. KLUG] and a Member opposed will each be recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. KLUG. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to yield 5 minutes of my time in support of my amendment to the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. RAHALL], and that he be permitted to control that time.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. KLUG] yielding me 5 minutes to join him in strong support of this amendment, and, before proceeding with my remarks, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Hawaii [Mr. ABERCROMBIE]. I rise in strong support of the amendment.

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Chairman, the House has supported a patent moratorium for several years now as an interim step to achieving comprehensive mining reform. And, the House, at least, has addressed the overriding need to reform the 1872 mining law by passing comprehensive legislation during the last Congress. Legislation which the House overwhelming supported on a 3 to 1 margin. Fundamental to any discussion of hardrock mining in this country is the need to end the archaic practice of patenting—or practically giving away—public mineral lands.

As you will recall, the old and outdated mining law of 1872, actually encourages the give-away of billions of dollars of gold, silver and other hard rock minerals that belong to the American taxpayer.

Under the 1872 law, which governs mining for precious metals, like gold, silver and platinum of Federal lands, miners who discover one of these minerals are entitled to a patent—or fee-simple title to the land. Since 1872, the United States has transferred over $231 billion worth of mineral assets to mining companies, charging minimal administrative cost for the land transfer and no royalty whatsoever.

As many of you know, it is the patenting system which legally forced Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt to transfer ownership of nearly 2,000 acres of public land in Nevada—land containing an estimated $10 billion in gold—to a Canadian-owned mining company for the appalling sum of just $9,765. If we do not stop patenting, through mining reform or through a patenting moratorium pending achievement of mining reform, we will see more and more such cases in the years to come.

We should move block mining conglomerates from pirating valuable public minerals just because they are able to tie up reform in the Congress.

That is where the provision on a patent moratorium in the Interior appropriations bill comes in.

This patent moratorium would prevent the transfer of 133,000 acres of public land containing an estimated $15.5 billion worth of valuable minerals to international mining conglomerates for practically nothing. This is what we mean by the slogan: "They get the gold, we get the shaft."

That is why we need your vote to maintain the patenting moratorium in this bill.

Unless Congress acts now by enacting this patent moratorium, title to an additional $15.5 billion worth of mineral reserves—which rightfully belong to the American taxpayer—will be signed over to international mining conglomerates for the paltry sum of less than $1 million. These companies will win the golden ring simply by paying $5.00 an acre—and what do the taxpayers get in return? Nothing, an empty pocket.

I understand they dug up Jesse James yesterday. Robbing trains and holding up banks, was just a nickle and dime operation compared to mining public land. Jesse was in the wrong end of the stealing business.

The patent moratorium is not comprehensive mining reform: but it is a very important interim step that will save $15.5 billion worth of minerals from being given away to international corporations.

So, I urge a vote for the Klug-Rahall amendment. I urge an aye vote to put some hard dollar reality into the rhetoric on reducing the deficit. I urge an aye vote to give a break to the American taxpayer instead of a monster giveaway to marauding corporate interests.

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. HARMAN].

(Ms. HARMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to some earlier amendments on the National Endowment for the Arts.

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER].

(Mr. MILLER of California asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, inclusion of the patent moratorium is more important this year than at any other time in the past. As Members will recall, the House voted by a 3 to 1 margin in 1993 to reform the mining law of 1872, a Civil War era law that encourages the giveaway of billions of dollars of gold, silver and other minerals that belong to the American taxpayer. With the support of Members like NEWT GINGRICH, we passed a good bill, a tough bill, but unfortunately the conference committee with the Senate was unable to produce a final bill. And now the Senate, under Republican leadership, is considering a weak bill that will make minor changes that leave the taxpayer and the environment the losers while the mining conglomerates make off with the gold. The Craig bill, if enacted, will result in no royalties, no environmental clean-up, and no reform, which is exactly how the industry lobbyists wrote it.

One of the key issues in the mining reform debate is that of patents. Under the 1872 law, which governs mining for precious metals, like gold, silver and platinum on Federal lands, miners who discover one of these metals are entitled to a patent—or fee-simple title to the land from American citizens and the mineral wealth it contains. Since 1872, the United States has let over 231 billion dollars' worth of mineral assets slip through our fingers in this manner, charging minimal costs for the land transfer and no royalty whatsoever.

We should not give away permanent ownership of the public lands. We don't do that in oil and gas or coal leasing. The states don't do it in hard rock mining. I don't think that many private individuals do it.

Although the mining industry claims patenting is critical to its ability to function, no State gives private companies title to its resources, and yet the companies mine on State land. I know of no private citizens who give mining companies title to their land for mineral exploration and production, and yet they mine on private lands.

And while we are discussing the States, I should point out that mining companies pay royalties to States and private landowners, too, unlike on Federal lands.

The mining industry spent a small fortune last year to prevent reform of the 123-year-old mining law of 1872. It was cheaper for them to pay the lobbyists and make the campaign contributions than to see real reform enacted to safeguard the taxpayers who own this gold. As a result, we can look forward to many more giveaways like the ones Secretary Babbitt signed earlier this year—trading a fortune in public gold for a pauper's ransom.

If we do not stop patenting, through mining reform or through a patenting moratorium pending achievement of mining reform, we will see more and more such cases in the years to come.

The House Appropriations Committee unwisely has not included a moratorium this year. In fact, the committee report includes language which foolishly advocates the rapid transfer of patents presumably to assuage the mining industry which would prefer to continue freeloading off the public lands. If the Department complies with the report language and expedites approval of the 233 patent applications in the pipeline, we will in effect give away 15.5 billion dollars' worth of gold and silver to mining conglomerates. Talk about corporate welfare. I urge Secretary Babbitt to ignore the report language and to continue the careful and cautious route he has pursued in the past.

We cannot be party to the continued looting of the Treasury by foreign gold companies and others. So we should include a patent moratorium because as a practical matter, we should not leave the 1872 law, and particularly the patenting process, on the books should no action be taken on comprehensive reform. If we must again defer until next year—or the year after—comprehensive reform, we should hold the program in abeyance. For while we may not have agreed on the precise design of reform at the point, virtually everyone agrees drastic reform of the mining program is necessary.

So, I urge a vote for the amendment. If we cannot achieve real reform, we will at a minimum stop the giveaway of 15.5 billion dollars' worth of public resources until such time as we do achieve reform.

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, how to get rich at the taxpayers' expense under the patent feature of the mining law of 1872; that is the question here today, and let me count for my colleagues the number of ways:

In Nevada a company that is 70 percent owned by the Anglo-American conglomerate, those wonderful folks from South Africa, is seeking title to Federal lands, Federal lands. All of our names are on the deed with an estimated 1.1 billion dollars' of gold. In return, the American taxpayers would receive a measly $5,080.

Meanwhile, in Montana mining claims have been staked on Federal lands with an estimated 3.4 billion dollars' worth of platinum minerals, and under the mining law of 1872 the Government will have to sell that land to this company for a mere $12,660.

Wow, wow, over 3 billion dollars' worth of valuable minerals owned by the Federal Government in exchange for just over $12,000.

And then, my colleagues, there is my all-time favorite, the amazing and true story of that little old mining claim that grew up into a huge Hilton Hotel. My colleagues, there is this man in Arizona that stakes a mining claim, 61 acres to be exact, and under the mining law he bought them from the Government for just $155. I say to my colleagues, Now, under the mining law, once you receive title to your mining claims, which is called a patent, there is nothing that says you have to actually, well, mine the land. Oh, no. Far from it. Instead, today these mining claims are the site of a huge Hilton Hotel overlooking Phoenix.

Mr. Chairman, for $190 a night guests stay in spacious two-room suites complete with fully stocked refrigerators and wet bars. They are invited to enjoy 18-hole golf courses, desert jeep tours, and sea-salt pedicures, but for their 61 acres, all the taxpayers received was $155, and for the $155 the so-called miner paid the Government for these claims, he estimates that his share of the Hilton Hotel is now worth about $6 billion.

Some of my colleagues may be wondering just how could this be? This is too incredible to be true. Well, it is true.

The bottom line, my colleagues, is that, if we do not pass this Klug-Rahall amendment, the United States may be forced to sell off 133,000 acres of Federal lands, lands owned by all of us as American taxpayers, containing approximately 15 billion dollars' worth of gold, silver, and other hardrock minerals, for either $2.50 or $5 an acre.

That is what is at risk today. That is what is in the patent application pipeline.

This patent moratorium was passed in the previous Congress as part of this same appropriation bill, and I urge my colleagues today to continue this patent moratorium in place until this Congress can enact comprehensive mining law reform. We came close in the last session of Congress. We were not able to finally deliver and see it into law, but this session of Congress I am hopeful we can move with comprehensive mining reform legislation, and, until we do, let us keep this patent moratorium in place.

Mrs. VUCANOVICH. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. KLUG].

The CHAIRMAN. The gentlewoman from Nevada [Mrs. VUCANOVICH] is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mrs. VUCANOVICH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Alaska [Mr. YOUNG], chairman of the Committee on Resources.

(Mr. YOUNG of Alaska asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Chairman, my colleagues, I have heard this argument over and over again about what a great giveaway. This amendment, very frankly, would drive the mining industry, as I have said again and again, off our shores. We would stop what little industry we have left today.

The one bright spot in this industry is the gold mining. Across the United States it employs people, it makes new jobs. This money is not going anywhere. The Federal Government does not make any money, and to say this is a ripoff is the same old litany I have heard time and time again written by the Sierra Club, written by the environmental community, trying to drive our industry off our shores, and all the other countries of the world today, they are trying to get the mining industries to come in, and they are doing it because they delete royalties, they encourage by tax incentives, they give the land away free to get the jobs on their shores.

The 1872 mining law has worked, and I may suggest to the gentleman who just spoke previously he ought to know about the condos, because he has spent many a time in those places.

May I suggest respectfully, if I can, that this amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin and the gentleman from West Virginia was offered last year, was adopted by the majority of them on that side, opposed by our side, and to have our side offering this amendment is wrong. I say to my colleagues, if you want to keep our jobs on our shores, employing people not flipping hamburgers, but doing real jobs that develop a resource and resources on these lands, then you ought to take and turn down this amendment. It is a bad amendment on this legislation, but more than that it is, and sadly the Parliamentarian would not rule in my favor, it is legislation on an appropriation.

And now I remind my leadership we were not going to do that with our side. We are doing it by this amendment today. I do not agree with it. I think it is wrong, it is inappropriate. It is wrong for this Nation, it is wrong for this industry. We must continue to work for America.

Mrs. VUCANOVICH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. CALVERT], who is the chairman of the Subcommittee on Energy and Mineral Resources.

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to this amendment which limits the use of funds for the acceptance and processing of mineral patent applications or the issuance of such patents by the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. Chairman, I am the chairman of the authorizing subcommittee of jurisdiction over the mining law of 1872, as amended. I am also the lead cosponsor of H.R. 1580, the Mining Law Reform Act of 1995. If the amendment to the appropriations bill before us now is adopted, we will have repeated the mistake of the 103d Congress in its attempt to change the mining law.

The real objective of this amendment is to derail attempts to bring about reasonable changes to the 1872 act. The deadlocked end to the conference committee on mining law reform last September 28 followed just 2 days after Congress adopted the fiscal year 1995 conference report which included a mineral patent moratorium for the first time. Was this mere happenstance? Absolutely not.

H.R. 1580 retains the right to receive a patent, after demonstration that a valuable mineral deposit has been discovered, but only upon payment of the appraised fair market value of the land within the claim. The sponsors of this amendment would eliminate patenting altogether without substituting any other provision for making secure the opportunity to mine one's claims. If you want a real solution, vote against this misguided amendment.

□ 1515

Mrs. VUCANOVICH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. HAYWORTH], a member of the Committee on Resources.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin to limit the use of funds for the acceptance and processing of mineral patent applications or the issuance of such patents by the Secretary of the Interior. The amendment before us does not merely continue the mineral patent moratorium in the fiscal year 1995, as we have been led to believe.

The U.S. Supreme Court has consistently opined that a valid mining claim is "private property in the highest sense of the word." The action of the Secretary to grant title to a mining claim which is supported by a discovery of a valuable mineral deposit and for which all other requirements of law have been met is not discretionary. Rather, it is ministerial. I oppose the present patent moratorium, but at least the present moratorium recognized the prevalent court rulings.

The amendment of the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. KLUG] is clearly an infringement on these private property rights. The amendment of my friend from Wisconsin invites a flood of takings litigation by those applicants recognized in last year's bill to have met last year's requirements and for which the Secretary was not barred from spending funds to process or issue mineral patents. The Department's records as of last fall indicated some 388 applications for mineral patents were so vested. This amendment could subject our Government to expensive litigation and a staggering takings liability.

The fact is, Mr. Chairman, this will have a chilling effect on mining companies and on folks who have claims and are filing for the patents. It in essence is a job killer. What we are doing here today is working to create jobs in the private sector, because these jobs are not Republican jobs or Democrat jobs or liberal jobs or conservatives jobs; they are jobs for the people of this country. I stand up and say yes to jobs, and no to the amendment.

Mr. KLUG. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to make some points with my colleagues on the other side of this amendment fight and simply say this is not an amendment about whether or not there should be mining. The bottom line in all of this is the fiduciary responsibility of Members of Congress and whether or not we get the proper return for the mining claims that are before us.

Now, there I think, frankly, some problems in this amendment, and it is a creation of the rule which did not allow us to put in language grandfathering in some of the operations in place.

My colleague from Arizona raises a good point. Let me make it very clear that it is my intention that if this amendment passes, I would be willing to work with the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA] and other members of the Committee on Appropriations to put in language much similar to last year's amendment, which we again were prohibited from doing this time, which would say if mining reform legislation passes then this amendment falls by the wayside.

Second, this amendment, as it said last year, further provides that the Secretary of the Interior shall continue to process patent applications that were filed prior to the date of the enactment of this act if the applicant had fully complied with all the requirements under the general mining laws for such patent.

So I am willing to work with the Committee on Appropriations to get language in place that allows patents in the pipeline to move forward. But the bottom line in all of this, Mr. Chairman, is money. For example, the State of Arizona requires its mining companies to pay anywhere from 2 to 5 percent on current leases; California, 5 percent; Alaska, 3 percent.

If we can get comprehensive mining reform in place which allows the Federal Government to collect the royalties that are due it, I will be glad to work with the gentleman from California [Mr. CALVERT] on passing his legislation. But at the present time, if this moratorium expires on September of 1995, there are three applications pending in front of the Federal Government now worth $5.5 billion: One patent in Nevada on a gold mine worth $1.113 billion, and the taxpayers get from the patent price $5,080; another patent, the McCoy Cove Mine, pending in Nevada, worth $1.4 billion, and the taxpayers get $3,305; the Mount Edmonds Mine in Colorado, recoverable mine value $2.99 billion, and the patent price of $5 an acre, one thousand bucks. So more than $5.4 billion and the taxpayers get $10,000 out of this.

I would be glad to work with my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, because I do not think this is, in my case, whether or not there should be mining in the United States; the bottom line is whether or not we get a fair price for the mining that should and I hope will, take place in the future.

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KLUG. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would like to cosponsor my bill, as he knows, we resolve the issues of a fair royalty on Federal land. This is an improper way to amend this at this time. So I would think the gentleman would like to get on our bill and do it the right way.

Mr. KLUG. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, the gentleman and I have had conversation about this, as he knows. It is not my intention to drive the U.S. mining industry out of the country, but it is my intention to get a fair price for this. I would be willing to work with the gentleman. I said that in the past, and I would be willing to work with him today to get that bill out in the near future or put an incentive in place today to get it done even faster, and that is my intention.

Mrs. VUCANOVICH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Washington [Mr. NETHERCUTT], a member of the committee.

Mr. NETHERCUTT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this moratorium amendment.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment is a temporary solution that in my judgment is detrimental to the mining industry in America. We can agree that mining reform is overdue. We can agree with that. And as the gentleman from California [Mr. CALVERT] mentioned earlier, we have H.R. 1518 that is in the process of being prepared which will address the objections sought to be imposed by this amendment.

I believe this amendment will discourage mining in America. We can have all the anecdotal information or examples in the world of egregious overreaching, but in fact this mining law has worked over the years, and it is very important, I think, that we keep something in place to make sure that we do not discourage mining and send it to foreign shores.

I was one who opposed the elimination of the Bureau of Mines in my own subcommittee. We lost that battle, but we have cut back in mining throughout this country to the point where there is a disincentive, I think, to even get involved in the mining industry, to provide some jobs and assistance to America.

Interim steps have a way of becoming permanent, and I fear that this particular moratorium amendment will do just that. What we do not want to do is discourage mining in this country. We do not want to send mining operations overseas and be dependent on foreign companies for the production of minerals that we use in this country. This amendment will result in such foreign dependence, and it should be opposed and overridden.

Mr. KLUG. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. RAHALL].

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, one important fact that we should not overlook in this debate is that the ability to obtain a patent has nothing whatsoever to do with the ability to mine. Ever since we started, since I started the effort to reform the Mining Law of 1872 in the mid 1980's, hundreds of thousands of applications have gone into the Bureau of Land Management, everybody trying to seek a patent. Yet the Bureau can only approve less than 10 a year. It takes 4 years now before you can have a patent go through the process, and yet mining still goes on these patent applications. So the ability to mine is not affected whatsoever by the ability to obtain a patent. The patent process is obsolete.

Mr. KLUG. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Let me just again make four points, if I can. First of all, the General Accounting Office, a survey of 20 patents examined at random, found that the Government had been paid $4,500 for claims worth somewhere between $14 and $48 million. This is an amendment above and fundamentally about money.

Second, as I have already indicated to my colleagues on the other side, I would support language in the appropriations bill during conferences that would put a grandfather clause in for mining patents that are currently in the pipeline, and also firm language that says if mining reform law passes this amendment is null and void.

Finally, when this moves again in September, I will remind my colleagues, $5.4 billion at stake in three claims and we get 1 thousand bucks.

Mrs. VUCANOVICH. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. The issue of hardrock mining on Federal lands is one that is properly within the purview of the appropriate House and Senate authorizing committees. It is the role of those committees, working with the administration, to determine the parameters of mining on public lands.

Mr. Chairman, I want to emphasize that the amendment before us is not the same as last year's. This amendment would put a blanket moratorium on the processing of all mineral patent applications. In last year's bill, we exempted certain patents that had reached a certain point in the patenting process.

One reason for the exemption in last year's bill, Mr. Chairman, was because of a possible "takings" problem. The U.S. Supreme Court has held that mining claims that have reached a certain point in the patenting process are, in every sense of the phrase, private property. If we pass this amendment we could be looking at substantial liability from a "takings" perspective.

The National Association of Manufacturers and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce oppose this amendment. Likewise, I strongly oppose this amendment and urge my colleagues to do likewise.

I would like to point out, as this chart shows, that the Bureau of Land Management's own study of the true costs to miners for patenting of their claims shows the cost of proving discovery, surveying the claims, preparing the application and other legal requirements to be a minimum of $37,900 per 20-acre lode claim, not $5 an acre by any means. In many cases, millions of dollars have been spent on a property in order to achieve patent.

Mr. Chairman, we should ensure a fair return to taxpayers. Comprehensive mining law reform legislation offers the best chance for that. This amendment would derail such legislation while devastating the mining industry at the same time. I oppose the amendment and urge my colleagues to do likewise.

Mr. LUTHER. Mr. Chairman, I wish to support the amendment to extend the moratorium on mining claim patents. I am also a cosponsor of Congressman RAHALL's legislation to reform the mining patent process because I believe it is time that Congress stop giving away public lands at a fraction of their value at an enormous expense to American taxpayers.

I understand that the patent process played an important role in developing the Western United States. In 1872, there was a legitimate role for the Federal Government to play in providing incentives for Americans to move west and develop that great region of our country.

But today, things have changed and Government policy must likewise change.

Today, we are nearly $4.9 trillion dollars in debt—it is time to establish priorities, identify critical roles for the Government and cut the rest. Whatever national interest our country may once have had in being a provider of cheap land, it is simply not a critical role for the Federal Government to play in 1995. Today American taxpayers do not want their resources turned over to private interests while their national debt continues to rise.

Last November the voters in Minnesota and across the country asked that we change the way Washington operates. When a program has lost its usefulness, we should eliminate it, no matter what the special interests might say. This moratorium amendment is an excellent opportunity for Congress to demonstrate that we can change how Washington operates.

I urge my colleagues to vote for an end to the giveaway of public lands—by voting for the Rahall-Klug amendment.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the amendment offered by Mr. RAHALL and Mr. KLUG to restore the moratorium on the issuance of patents for mining claims. I want to thank the gentleman from West Virginia for his tireless efforts over the last several years to fundamentally reform the anachronistic 1872 mining law.

I can think of no reason why my colleagues would not support this commonsense amendment. Patenting, whereby miners get title to public land, is a thing of the past which should have been done away with long ago. In these times of fiscal crisis, the Federal Government can ill afford to continue to "give away" taxpayers' land for $2.50 or $5 an acre. It boggles my mind that we are still selling our resources for the price established in 1872. According to a 1993 General Accounting Office [GAO] study of other major mining nations, the United States is the only country which allows public lands to be sold to mining companies. The survey of South Africa, Canada, and Australia, the third, fourth, and fifth largest mining nations that year, found that these nations retained title to public lands and provided access to miners through leases. If mining continues to be robust in Canada and South Africa without patenting, why do we need to continue this practice here? The answer is we don't.

The examples of the costs of patenting are legendary. Last year, Secretary of the Interior Bruce Babbitt was forced to approve a patent which transferred 1,038 acres of public land containing minerals valued at $10 billion to the Barrick Gold Corp., a Canadian company, for $5,190. This occurred because the moratorium exempted hundreds of patent applications which had progressed to a certain point in the review process. This case demonstrates that even with the moratorium, the American taxpayers continue to get the "shaft."

In spite of the flaws in the moratorium, it is preferable to allowing all patent applications to move forward. Without the moratorium, the Department of the Interior will be forced to approve hundreds of applications to transfer billions worth of gold, silver, and other valuable minerals to private companies without fair compensation to the taxpayers. According to an analysis by the Mineral Policy Center, if the moratorium is not renewed, more than 230 patents involving nearly 140,000 acres of public lands will move through the system and likely be approved. These lands contain in excess of 15 billion dollars' worth of minerals. Without the moratorium, this acreage will be "sold" to mining companies for no more than $700,000. Moreover, because we impose no royalty on hard rock minerals, the American people stand to lose hundreds of millions in lost revenue by transferring these lands out of public ownership.

Mr. Chairman, I strongly support comprehensive mining reform. However, in the absence of that, we are forced to take a piecemeal approach to protect the interests of the American taxpayer. Patenting is a giveaway to private companies, which are often foreign owned. No other major mining nation in the world turns over public land to miners. Most importantly, patenting undermines the principle that the American people should get a fair return on the use of their resources. I urge my colleagues to support the Rahall-Klug amendment.

Miss COLLINS of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I must wholeheartedly oppose the elimination of the current moratorium on "Patenting" Federal lands subject to hardrock mining claims, and challenge the Republicans to justify this absurd course of action. The General Mining Law of 1872, signed into law by President Ulysses S. Grant, govern the mining of hardrock mineral on about 270 million acres of Federal lands. It allows anyone to buy an acre of land for $5!

Put simply, Mr. Chairman, the Federal Government is selling taxpayer-owned land which contains over $15.5 billion worth of gold, silver and other minerals for $5 an acre!

This country has already let over $231 billion worth of mineral assets slip through the taxpayer's fingers by granting ownership rights to public lands to mining interests at little charge and with no royalty payment. Not only is this robbery, but this is corporate welfare, plain and simple, Mr. Chairman. The only question is, how can the Republicans justify this kind of corporate giveaway program to some of the already wealthiest interests in the United States?

How can they justify this while they continue to complain that we, as Democrats, want to feed starving American children, or educate inner-city youth, or improve the water supply for millions of native Americans? I am appalled, Mr. Chairman. Mostly, I am appalled because I know that Republicans would rather spend crucial tax dollars for their wealthy business friends, like the powerful mining interests that are responsible for the elimination of this moratorium. I am appalled, Mr. Chairman, on behalf of the millions of Americans who still may not realize the extent to which they are being robbed!

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. KLUG].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 271, noes 153, not voting 10, as follows:

Mrs. ROUKEMA and Messrs. MOORHEAD, BISHOP, EHRLICH, WELLER, CAMP, CLINGER, and Mrs.

SEASTRAND changed their vote from "aye" to "no".

Messrs. GOODLATTE, CASTLE, QUINN, KIM, WHITFIELD, GRAHAM, and Ms. MOLINARI changed their vote to "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

(Mr. VOLKMER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, earlier today the House voted by a voice vote on an amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT] which would have and did, because it was adopted on a voice vote in the House, remove the funds available for the Mississippi River Corridor Heritage Commission. Had I been here, and I was not able to be here because of, believe it or not, a very good reason, but had I been here, I would have strongly opposed that amendment and explained the good that that Commission is trying to do. I was not able to be here, and if I had, again, I would have asked for a rollcall vote on it. That has been passed.

I do think the House should hear the other side of this story. This Commission was set up by this Congress in law enacted in 1990. The Commission was to study the corridor of the Mississippi River, which is so dear to many of us from the Midwest, to try not only to bring together the 10 States that border along that Mississippi River, but also the communities and the agencies within those States together to have a better partnership within that corridor, basically, to bring about more strength and economic development along that corridor.

Mr. Speaker, the proponents of the amendment said the law provided that they were supposed to have this study done within the 3 years, and I agree with that, that it was to be done within the 3 years, but the law also provided that they were to hold Commission hearings within each State of those 10 States, and they were to be funded at an amount of $500,000 a year in order to do so.

The problem is, Mr. Chairman, and I think many of the public today questions the wisdom of many of us in Congress, the problem was that the Congress did not fund it adequately to hold those hearings in the first 2 years. Thereafter, the funding started and they had the hearings. They now have a draft report that is being prepared, it is available if Members would like to read it, and I think it is very worthwhile. With the money that was provided in the bill, they would have been able to finish up and make their recommendations working with the Park Service.

By the vote of the House, they are not able to do so. What I find very ironic, though, about his whole thing is the Congress first asks citizens of this great country of ours to participate in the governmental process through this type of a commission. These people that are on this Commission are volunteering their time in order to perform this function of Government. Yet it is the same Congress, maybe a later one, but the same institution that says "We are not going to give you any money to do it, folks. If you want to participate in the governmental process, you are good tax-paying citizens, if you want to make recommendations to make the Midwest a better place to live for everybody, we do not want to give you $142,000."

Mr. Chairman, I wonder sometimes about some of the things that we do up here in Congress. I do not wonder, however, about why many of the general public does not think very much of the Congress. In the first place, if Members do not think the Commission should do the study or anything, then repeal the law that set it up. What we have now done is defunded it. The Commission is still out there, still required by law to make the study, to make the recommendations, and we have not given them any money to do it with.

If you were a private citizen out there, as the one from Missouri who is a good friend of mine, who is a very conscientious person, who believes in this Government of ours and likes to participate, and I have talked to him about this amendment, it makes you wonder why a person would ever accept this type of responsibility when this Congress or the next Congress may decide we are not going to let you do it, we do not want you to participate in this system of government of ours.

At first I had thought that we would have possibly a revote when we get in the House. I know the House has taken a lot of time on this bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. VOLKMER] has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. VOLKMER was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Ohio has been so gracious as to permit me to take this time in order to explain the position of how I would have strongly objected to the amendment, and therefore, when we get into the House, I will not ask for a revote on the amendment. Mr. Chairman, I thank the Chairman of the Committee for giving me this time, and I thank the House for being patient with me.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. CREMEANS

Mr. CREMEANS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

SEC. 318. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act may be used for the purposes of acquiring land in the counties of Lawrence, Monroe, or Washington, Ohio, for the Wayne National Forest.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. CREMEANS] and a Member opposed will each be recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chain recognizes the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. CREMEANS].

Mr. CREMEANS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to save school districts, fire departments, and small businesses in southern Ohio.

Let me first say, this amendment only effects two districts, both of which are in southern Ohio. We are asking that money from this appropriation not be spent in these two districts. I know it is rare to see a Member of this body ask that money not be spent in his or her district, but the Federal Government has bought enough land in my district. Let the Forest Service go buy land somewhere else or spend it on the schools and the communities effected by the Federal forests. They need the money a heck of a lot more than we need more Government owned trees in Southern Ohio.

Mr. Chairman, the Wayne National Forest has been buying up land in my district for years. The Wayne owns nearly 40 percent of one school district, the Frontier Local School District.

The Federal Government has not met its obligation in PILT payments on the land they already own—let alone what they would like to buy. The Federal Government pays Washington County, OH, about 27 cents an acre each year. The average property tax is about $3.34 an acre in Washington County. How in the world is a school system or a fire department supposed to operate when the Federal Government owns half the land but pays less than 10 percent of its share of the tax duplicate?

These schools are going under and I want to send a message to them that the Federal Government is not going to buy up any more land or steal any more tax dollars from them. This amendment is a commitment to them and does not affect anyone outside southern Ohio. I hope that everyone would join with me and let the people of southern Ohio know that we are listening and the Federal Government is going to leave them alone—which is all they ask.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman, for the opportunity to offer this amendment. The students of the Frontier Local School District appreciate your help.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. NEY].

Mr. NEY. Mr. Chairman, I want to applaud my colleague, whose congressional district borders mine, on this very important issue. Members also have to understand that when we look at the Appalachian region, this potential forest goes all the way down from the area of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. CREMEANS], all the way up through my area in Monroe County, OH, and it would be like a 4-hour drive. If we looked at a map of it, it looks like somebody took a shotgun and just shot the map, because it is just pieces of property bought here and there, small parcels.

I encouraged the Wayne National Forest to have a contiguous area, but really, what they have done in the area of Mr. CREMEANS and in this area, for which I want to thank the gentlemen from Ohio, Mr. REGULA and Mr. CREMEANS, it is really going to help us quite a lot. It is also going to protect Monroe County. Additionally, Senator Monroe, and also representative Metzger and many others are worried about development. The area has been hard hit in Monroe County, so we need some help. I really applaud the gentleman's amendment, and thank him for including this.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to strike the last word.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman from Ohio is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We are going to accept this amendment. This bill has a moratorium on land acquisition. We have no money in the bill to acquire lands in the three counties in question. Therefore, there is no problem whatsoever in accepting the amendment. I understand the gentleman's concern, and we are pleased to put it in as part of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. All time has expired. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. CREMEANS].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. SKAGGS

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. SKAGGS: At the end of the bill, add a new section, as follows:

SEC. . None of the funds appropriated to implement the Act of October 20, 1976, as amended (31 U.S.C. 6901-07) shall be used for payments with respect to entitlement lands (as defined in such Act) regarding which it has been made known to the officer or official responsible for such payments that a state or political subdivision of a state has by formal action asserted a claim of ownership.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, let me explain what is involved in this amendment. Under the PILT program, which is an acronym standing for "payment in lieu of taxes," the Federal Government makes cash payments to counties to help cover services like fire protection, law enforcement and so forth that these counties provide on Federal land. We do this because the counties obviously do not get tax revenue from these lands but are expected to provide some services.

Recently some of these counties are claiming that these lands are not Federal lands, after all, even though they all became part of the United States through Federal purchase or acquisition and have never been transferred.

Mr. Chairman, get this: Even though these counties assert that these are not Federal lands for ultimate purposes of title or control, these same counties would still like the U.S. Federal taxpayers to make PILT payments to them as if the lands were Federal lands. If there were ever a case of trying to have it both ways, this is it.

It is all the more offensive because some of these counties are effectively using Federal taxpayer moneys to pay their officials and lawyers to try to perfect their legal claim to the very lands on which they are basing their entitlement to PILT payments.

Give me a break. Or, as our colleague, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. TRAFICANT] might say, "Beam me up."

My amendment simply calls a halt to this absurd practice. If these counties want to claim Federal lands as their own, fine, go ahead, pursue them if you think you have any legal theory to stand on. But do not at the same time be so brash as to claim PILT payments to boot on the very same Federal lands at the very same time.

Let us not permit these jurisdictions to insult our intelligence at the same time that they are tapping the Treasury, especially in these difficult budget times.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I understand why the gentleman might propose this, but this changes the PILT formula. This is a situation that the authorizing committee should address. We have an obligation to make the PILT payments under the law.

Of course these issues are in the courts. The courts need to make a decision. But in the meantime, States have a right to pursue their legitimate claims, but they also have a right to their PILT payments. Their obligations to schools, to the local government, will not stop just because they file a suit in the court.

Let the courts work their will, but in the meantime I think the U.S. Government should honor its obligation as provided in the law. There is nothing in the law that says if there is a lawsuit filed, they do not get the PILT payments. Therefore, we should not interfere with the action by the courts.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REGULA. I yield to the gentleman from Colorado.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I respect the gentleman's point of view on this, but does he really stand for the proposition that these counties, who are pursuing a legal theory that has been repudiated by the Supreme Court, should nonetheless continue to get Federal money even though it can be used to pay for asserting these specious claims?

Mr. REGULA. Reclaiming my time, the gentleman is making an assumption as to how they use their PILT money. I am assuming they use it for their schools. If they use their general budget to pursue their legitimate claims in court, that is perfectly their right. But in the meantime, under the law, we have an obligation to make the PILT payments.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Nevada [Mrs. VUCANOVICH], a member of the subcommittee.

Mrs. VUCANOVICH. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. Counties depend on payment in lieu of taxes, or PILT, to make them whole. In a State such as my own, Nevada, where 87 percent of the land is federally managed, making up for the loss of taxes due to Federal management of the land is only fair.

This amendment is directly aimed at Nye County, NV. Currently Nye County is involved in a Department of Justice-filed lawsuit about who owns the land. If the gentleman would work with me to see the Federal Government relinquish control of the land in question, then I think the county would willingly forgo PILT payments. But until the court renders its decision, the county continues to lose tax revenue. This amendment is an unfunded mandate, and I oppose it.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN], chairman of the Subcommittee on National Parks, Forests and Lands of the Committee on Resources.

(Mr. HANSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HANSEN. I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, I hope the people in this Chamber realize this is really a very tough amendment on people. These little counties are out there, 93 percent, some of them, owned by the Federal Government. People from the East come in, they cause fires, we have to put them out. They get hurt, we have to take care of them. They put debris all over, we have to clean it up.

There are 1,500 of these counties out there in the West and over half of them have a claim against the Federal Government.

If we are going to take these 750 counties and say, "Fine, guys, you're out of business," why are we doing this? You look at the situation of people who have 2,477 roads, half of them in my State have claims against the Federal Government on 2,477 roads. Mineral royalties they have claims against, timber royalties, grazing fees, questions over title.

I think it is an outrageous amendment that would gut the whole program and is designed to hurt some people who are trying to maintain what they think is right and courageous.

Remember years ago we had the sagebrush rebellion. I am glad to see that is gone. Now we are seeing the war on the West. This is the kind of amendment that is devastating to the people in the West. I urge that we oppose this amendment.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. DOOLITTLE].

Mr. DOOLITTLE. Mr. Chairman, I strongly oppose this amendment.

I think it is outrageous to do this to our counties in view of all that is happening throughout the States. We have got whole communities that have been devastated by the various restrictions on the spotted owl and other so-called surrogate species. About the only major activity that can go on is related to public lands.

These communities have substantial expenses in building roads, in providing schools, in providing the services the gentleman from Utah mentioned. Then to put forth an amendment like this that basically will cut off this money that these communities are entitled to receive because of the services they are providing to the Government.

We do not cut off anybody else's money for any reason because they are pursuing a legitimate claim against some branch of the Federal Government. Only here are we seeking to do that. I think that is wrong. I think it comes at a horrible time when our counties are under so much pressure economically right now. I strongly urge Members to defeat this amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA] has 30 seconds remaining, and he has the right to close.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. COOLEY].

Mr. COOLEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the Skaggs amendment. This would be a punitive action against countless rural communities in the West and would devastate their already fragile economies.

Stopping PILT payments would close roads and schools, stop public services, and cut hundreds of rural counties off at the knees. This will be a reality unless we defeat this amendment.

It is understandable that some of my colleagues don't understand what PILT payments are or how they came to be, for our situation in the rural West is very unique. When the Federal Government owns anywhere from 50 to 80 percent of the land like it does in the West, these areas don't have a tax base source like everywhere else in the country. The fact that the Government owns all of this land in the West is historical circumstance, and as a result the Bureau of Land Management makes payments to these counties for lost revenues that would otherwise result if the land were able to derive operational tax revenues like everywhere else in the country.

Stopping these PILT payments would be counterproductive for the Federal Government, and would deliver a harsh blow to many districts like mine. I urge a "no" vote on the amendment.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, I urge all of my colleagues to vote against this amendment. It is simply not fair. Every county has the right, or State, to pursue their claim in court without being penalized. This would be an unfair thing to put a penalty on them for exercising their legitimate rights in the courts.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Colorado is recognized for 2½ minutes.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Chairman, let me just respond to some of the characteristics that have been offered up in the comments in opposition to this amendment.

There is nothing punitive about it. It merely puts counties to the choice whether they want to assert that they own land outright that they are also claiming is Federal lands for purposes of PILT payments. You cannot have it both ways.

The punishment, if there is any, is to the Federal taxpayers who are being expected to pay for something twice. I do not believe that that is fair. This has nothing to do with RS-2477 claims or legitimate boundary disputes or rights of way. Any of those sorts of things are really de minimis, since the effect of this amendment would be to have impact on a prorated basis, not ruling out, not invalidating any PILT payment for a county that may have a 2477 right-of-way issue pending.

The final point is that we are not talking about legitimate claims. That is the whole point. The Supreme Court has ruled on this whole question of the county supremacy movement. It has invalidated the legal underpinnings of the movement. These are not valid claims, and we should not be taken to the cleaners for PILT payments at the same time we are having to incur legal expenses to establish continued Federal title to these lands.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SKAGGS. I yield to the gentleman from Utah.

Mr. HANSEN. I appreciate the gentleman yielding.

I am reading from the gentleman's amendment here. It says asserting a claim. That seems to be the pivotal point of this amendment, a county asserting a claim.

I could name a lot of counties that are asserting a claim on RS-2477 roads.

It that not a claim, debating whether or not it belongs to the county or whether it belongs to the Federal Government?

Mr. SKAGGS. The amendment speaks in terms of a formal action, meaning a county ordinance or other action of the political subdivision. Again, in most of these situations, if I can reclaim my time, the acreage involved, and these RS-2477 issues compared to the total acreage on which PILT payment is based, is really de minimis.

This is not the problem. The problem is the broadside assertions of county title over all Forest Service lands, over all BLM lands, over all Fish and Wildlife lands, that some 58 counties in our part of the country have asserted. I am just saying they cannot have it both ways. You cannot both get a PILT payment and say, "But it is my land, anyway."

Mr. HANSEN. If the gentleman will yield further, between Alaska and Utah there are over 1,000 of these counties asserting a claim on RS-2477, regardless of size.

Mr. SKAGGS. As I say, those are really de minimis in the context of what this amendment would accomplish.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SKAGGS].

The amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to title III?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. KENNEDY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 56 offered by Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts: Page 94, after line 24, insert the following new section:

Sec. 318. None of the funds made available to the Forest Service by this Act may be used for the construction of roads, nor the preparation of timber sales, in roadless areas of 3,000 or more acres in size.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order that the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. KENNEDY] violates clause 2 of rule XXI of the rules of the House by requiring substantial new duties on the part of the Secretary of Agriculture to determine roadless areas on national forest lands; therefore creating legislation on an appropriations bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. KENNEDY] care to respond to the point of order?

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Yes, I do, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment is simply a limitations amendment that states that none of the funds made available to the Forest Service may be used for timber roads construction or timber sales preparation in roadless areas. It seeks to reduce the taxpayers' liability only in roadless areas, the most high-cost areas and most likely to result in below-cost timber sales.

The amendment was filed in accordance with the rules and preprinted in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD and reviewed by the parliamentarian's office. The parliamentarian and I have been in discussions for many, many hours, until late last night and throughout the day today over this issue. I have some extensive remarks that I would like to make with regard to the objections that have been raised.

First the National Forest Management Act of 1976 directs the Forest Service to inventory all lands and resources that they manage. The Forest Service must devise forest plans that include specific land use designations.

According to the National Forest Management Act, title XVI, the Renewable Resource Assessment, the Secretary of Agriculture shall prepare a Renewable Resource Assessment, analyze the present anticipated uses, create an inventory based on the information developed by the Forest Service and other Federal agencies, provide a description of the Federal service program, and provide for a discussion of important policy considerations.

The statute also requires the land management plans to comply with the National Environmental Policy Act, or NEPA, which means that everything in the forest must be inventoried for an environmental assessment or possible full-blown environmental impact statement.

I would make the Chair aware of the National Forest Management Act, which specifies procedures to ensure that land management plans are prepared in accordance with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

They second specify guidelines which require the identification and suitability of lands for resource management, provide for the obtaining of inventory data on the various renewable resources in soil and water, including the pertinent maps, graphic material, and explanatory aids. On and on it goes.

Second, according to the Forest Service regulations, to implement Congress' laws they must conduct an inventory of all roadless land in each of the national forests and I would like to cite for the RECORD section 219.17, the evaluation of roadless areas.

"Unless otherwise provided by law, the roadless areas within the National Forest System shall be evaluated and considered for recommendation as potential roadless areas, including those previously inventoried must be taken into consideration; areas contiguous to existing wilderness, primitive areas, or administratively proposed wildernesses; areas that are contiguous to roadless and undeveloped areas; and areas designated by the Congress for wilderness study, administrative proposals pending before the Congress," and on and on she goes.

Further, the Forest Service Management Act regulations require that all timber sales must be in compliance with the forest plan, including the requirements of 36 CFR, section 219.14, which require detailed analysis of timber volumes, costs, and other matters.

If I would cite that particular code, that directs the Forest Service to conduct benefit analysis as expressed through gross receipts of the Government. Such receipts shall be based on the expected stumpage prices, the payments in kind from timber harvest, considering the future supply and demand. It takes into account the costs, including the anticipated investments maintenance and operating management and planning costs.

In addition, it takes into the long-term yield. You do not have to just count the acreage; you have to count the trees to do this. So, the notion that somehow this amendment is out of order because we call for an indication of 3,000 acres, versus 5,000 acres, is ridiculous.

The fact of the matter is that the 5,000-acre designation is for wilderness areas. In order to comply with this, you have got to get down to the actual number of trees that are counted in the specific area.

Most importantly, continuing on the regulations in section 223.83, specifically requires that timber sales prospectus to include data on acreage, road standards for specified roads to be constructed, and the estimated construction costs.

I would cite in that law, a timber sale prospectus shall specify at a minimum, and it goes through a number of different points, but the location and the area of sale, including harvest acreage. A timber sale prospectus shall also include the road standards and the roads to be constructed, the estimated road construction costs and the purchaser credit limit.

The fact of the matter is that the amendment simply limits the Forest Service discretion to build roads or conduct timber sales in roadless areas which they have already identified as part of their inventory and which are 3,000 acres or greater in size.

Fourth, to show that this information is currently available, the Forest Service produced an analysis of the roads that the Forest Service planned to build into roadless areas in last year's Interior appropriations bill.

Those of you who argue that the Forest Service does not already know its roadless areas ignore the mandate placed upon the Forest Service by this committee. As you can see, the current laws provide substantial evidence that the Forest Service is already mandated to know the extent and character of roadless areas in their forests. If they do not know, they just simply have not followed the law.

I would cite again for the RECORD the 1995 Interior appropriations that required the Forest Service to include in its 1996 budget a specific breakdown of all roadless areas planned for entry in the 1996 program with the justification for each planned entry.

Mr. Chairman, in conclusion, this amendment does not require a new duty on the Forest Service. It simply requires them to carry out the current law and to continue to fulfill the requirements placed upon the Appropriations Committee.

I urge the consideration of the amendment.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Chairman, in defense of my point of order, let me point out the issue that we have raised to the point of order, and not to the amendment, goes to this: In fact, are we asking the Forest Service to create a new duty? Are we asking them to do something? If so, that should come from the authorizing committee, which I maintain is what we are talking about here.

The Forest Service has no duty to collect infinite amounts of information. They already have collected information on roadless areas more than 5,000 acres, not on areas of more than 3,000 acres.

The Forest Service was asked by the Appropriations Committee to respond to this. Here is what they said. "We do not have a good estimate of how many ongoing or planned projects involve roadless areas of 3,000 acres or more. There has not been a need to collect this information."

"This amendment," the Kennedy amendment, "would require the Forest Service to make a determination of the size of every area for which timber sale or a road construction project is planned to assure that it is not an unroaded area of 3,000 acres or more. We do not have the information necessary to make a reasonable estimate of the cost of this requirement."

Now, if that is not asking for a new duty, I do not know what is and new duties come out of the authorizing committee, not out of the appropriation committee and I would urge that the Chair rule accordingly.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from California wish to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak against the point of order. In my view, the Kennedy amendment is an appropriate limitation and does not violate clause 2 of rule XXI which prohibits legislation on a general appropriation bill.

As set forth in book 8 of Deschler's Precedents, a limitation amendment is in order if it restricts criteria which are within the range of choices given to an official by the authorizing law. To quote, "A limitation may, in fact, amount to a change of policy, but if the limitation is merely a negative restriction on the use of funds, it normally will be allowed."

The Kennedy amendment restricts the discretion that Forest Service officials have in the exercise of their duties to conduct road building and hold timber sales in roadless areas of 3,000 acres or greater in the national forests.

The Kennedy amendment does not impose any new or additional data-gathering duty on the Forest Service beyond existing law.

As a general matter, the Forest Service is obligated to develop land and resource management plans for the National Forest System as required by the Forest and Rangeland Renewable Planning Act of 1974, as amended by the National Forest Management Act, 16 U.S.C. section 160, et. seq.

Pursuant to the authorizing act, forest plans determine the availability and suitability of forestlands for resource management. While forest plans are normally revised on 10- to 15-year cycles, section 219.12(D) of the Code of Federal Regulations provides that "[E]ach forest supervisor shall obtain and keep current inventory data appropriate for managing the resources under his or her administrative jurisdiction * * * Data shall be stored for ready retrieval." The forest plans are used as the benchmark for further review and planning of each of the individual sales in compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act.

As a specific matter, CFR section 219.17 directs the Forest Service to evaluate and consider roadless areas as part of their land planning process. The inventory and the evaluation of these roadless areas is to be developed with public participation. The definition of roadless areas are lands which "remain essentially roadless and undeveloped, and which have not yet been designated as wilderness or for nonwilderness uses by law."

It is important to note, as the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. KENNEDY] has, that there is no acreage limitation in the CFR section on roadless areas as there is with wilderness.

Mr. Chairman, the Forest Service has a sophisticated land planning system which now includes the use of GIS technology for mapping. No duties to gather information are required by the Kennedy amendment beyond the existing law. The notion that they are unaware and incapable of determining where 3,000 acre or more blocks of roadless areas exist is an insult to the agency. I would point out to my colleagues that 3,000 acres is 5 square miles of land.

The Forest Service is capable of producing this data on a ready basis for roadless areas on a national scale. For example, in response to the directive for the fiscal year 1995 House Interior appropriations report, they submitted data in their 1996 budget request which itemizes 94.9 miles of construction planned for roadless areas, including 70 miles in the National Forest of Alaska.

The fact that they have not presented data to the Congress on the amount of roadless lands in excess of 3,000 acres is simply off the mark. What is relevant to the amendment is that the Forest Service has the existing capability of providing such data and does so on a regular and current basis on a national scale.

What is even more important is that they have the data which can be applied to the individual timber sales in compliance with the Kennedy amendment.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, let me submit on behalf of the argument against the point of order that this data is readily available and this is nothing more than a ministerial act, and that is 36 CFR, chapter 2, which deals with the contents of the advertisement and the contents of the prospective of the sales.

There are some 35, almost 40, requirements that go into this, which include the location and the estimated qualities of timber and the forest products offered for sale. For each sale outside the State of Alaska, which includes a provision the purchaser the credit for construction of permanent roads with total estimated construction costs exceeding $20,000, a timber sale shall include: One, the total estimated construction costs of all permanent roads. When submitting the bids, they have to say exactly how much it is going to cost to have the Forest Service construct those roads.

Under the contents of the prospective, the Forest Service must provide the location and area of sale, including the harvest acreage; the estimated volumes, including the quality of the volume, the size of the trees, the age of the trees, and the class of the trees. Very specific, on-the-ground determinations they must make now on an ongoing basis.

They must include the road standards for specified roads to be constructed; the estimated road construction costs and the purchaser credit limit. If small businesses are involved, the road standards applicable to the construction of the permanent roads and the reference of source of such information; the date of final completion of all permanent roads, where they will go, and when they will be finished; a statement explaining how the Forest Service intends to plan for road construction by forest account or contract and whether or not the higher bidder shall make that determination.

What, in fact, we have is a very detailed process of counting the trees and taking the inventory. What we have is the overlay of a number of Federal laws that require this inventory, require that the inventory be kept current, that the land base be kept current, that the timber base be kept current so that they can, in fact, comply on an annual and regular basis with the National Environmental Policy Act as they let lands for sale for timber sales.

Mr. Chairman, all of this is done on an ongoing basis. The Kennedy amendment is simply a limitation on those functions and tracts of land of 3,000 acres or more.

What we have here is a simple ministerial task to be carried out by the Forest Service; a task and function which is no additional burden to them because it is part of their ongoing requirements under existing authorization and legislation by the Congress and I think the point of order should be overruled.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Washington [Mr. DICKS] wish to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. DICKS. Yes, Mr. Chairman, I wish to be heard on the point of order.

Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that this is a lot more straightforward than we are trying to make it with these long orations about the technicalities. But let us get to the bottom line. We are changing, and the Forest Service has already said in their letter here, that they have been operating on a 5,000 acre basis. We are now going to restrict that to 3,000 acres. That is going to be a major new responsibility, ministerial duty, on the Department of Agriculture and the Forest Service.

They apparently do not have these areas at that small a size. Therefore, it is going to be an additional burden. I think, therefore, it is legislation and is subject to a point of order.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, in responding to the gentleman's point on the point of order, I would point out the fact is what we have shown, and the gentleman from Washington [Mr. DICKS] may not like the long recitations, but they happen to be the law of the land, is that the Forest Service has this information for every acre of land; for every parcel of land; for every sale they promote.

So to suggest that they do not have it for 3,000 acres, when in fact they have it for every acre, is simply ludicrous on its face.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak in favor of the point of order offered by the gentleman from Utah.

It is not as simple as the gentleman from California would present it. We are trying to open a broad road here to run through a herd of buffalo instead of just some technical amendment. First of all, under the Wilderness Act, the Secretary of Agriculture has surveyed National Forest lands of at least 5,000 acres which are roadless and meet certain other wilderness criteria, such as first, affected primarily by the forces of nature; second, has outstanding opportunities for solitude or a primitive and unconfined type of recreation; and third, contains ecological, geological, or other features of scenic, or historic value.

If a forest area of any size is roadless but does not meet these other criteria, the Secretary can harvest timber, build roads, or engage in other types of multiple use activities.

The Secretary of Agriculture may not have made determinations of roadlessness in nonwilderness forest lands because the lands did not meet other wilderness criteria. This would be a new test.

For forest areas between 3,000 and 5,000 acres, the Secretary has never been required to make a determination of roadlessness. This is a new requirement imposed on the Secretary by the Kennedy amendment.

Determinations of roadlessness cannot be made solely from maps but requires on-site inspections. The Secretary must also conduct legal and historical research to determine if States and counties have pre-existing RS 2477 rights of way for the construction of highways, which by operation of law can be converted into roads and therefore not subject to the prohibition on road construction and timber sales in the Kennedy amendment.

The last time the Secretary of Agriculture had to survey forest lands for road determinations under RARE II, it took 10 years. And in the 10 years since RARE II, more roads have no doubt been built, requiring new surveys to see if these lands are subject to the Kennedy amendment ban.

The Kennedy amendment cannot execute without substantial new determinations of facts based on physical surveys of 191 million acres of National Forest lands, plus legal and historical research conducted by the Secretary of Agriculture.

The Kennedy amendment creates a new class of de facto wilderness by barring timber sales and road construction without meeting all of the Wilderness Act requirements.

The Kennedy amendment creates a new 3,000-acre wilderness requirement in contradiction of the wilderness release language—language which says that multiple use activities are allowed on nonwilderness designated areas—contained in each State's wilderness bill that passed the Congress.

And the Kennedy road amendment deals with timber primarily and does not consider the fact that many of the roads in the national forest are multiple-use roads.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is prepared to rule.

Mr. MILLER of California. Can we be heard on the point raised by the gentleman from North Carolina?

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is prepared to rule on this.

Mr. MILLER of California. I know you are. I want to make sure you have all the evidence.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair has heard enough evidence.

Mr. MILLER of California. The Chair sounds like Judge Ito.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair appreciates the gentleman's sense of humor.

The gentleman from Utah makes a point of order that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. KENNEDY] is not in order as a violation of clause 2 of rule XXI because it imposes new duties not required by law. The amendment limits Forest Service funds in the bill for the construction of roads or for the preparation of timber sales in roadless areas of 3,000 or more acres in size. The Chair notes that, as shown in volume 8 of "Deschler's Precedents," chapter 26, section 22.26, the proponent of an amendment has the burden of showing that the amendment does not change existing law. Under law codified in section 1603 of title 16, United States Code, the Secretary of Agriculture, acting through the Chief of the Forest Service, is required to "develop and maintain on a continuing basis a comprehensive and appropriately detailed inventory of all National Forest System land and renewable resources." The same law, at section 1602 of title 16, requires the Secretary to prepare a recommended renewable resource program providing in appropriate detail for protection, management, and development of the National Forest System including forest development roads and trails. Regulations require the Forest Service to make determinations for the suitability of timber resources to a level of detail that includes direct benefits based on expected stumpage prices to payments in kind from timber harvest considering future supply to vegetation management practices chosen for each type of vegetation. For example, in relation to the timber sale portion of the amendment, the minimum specification for a timber sale prospectus under title 36, Code of Federal Regulations, part 223.83 requires an announcement of harvest acreage for each sale as well as road standards specified for roads to be constructed. Given this level of detail already required of the Secretary, the Chair believes that determinations as to an area's roadlessness by a particular number of acres does not impose new duties on the executive branch. The Chair cites volume 8, section 66.6 of "Deschler's Precedents," where an exception from a limitation that did not prohibit the use of funds for designated Federal activities which were already required by law in more general terms was held in order. In that case the law required a continuing evaluation of the matter as does the law in the case at hand. Therefore the Chair finds the amendment does not legislate and overrules the point of order.

The gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. KENNEDY] and a Member opposed will each be recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. KENNEDY].

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I just want to say that I admire the Chair's logic and his brilliance, and I certainly did not agree with my friend from California who suggested that you were anything like Judge Ito. If that be the case, it would be a good day for O.J. Simpson.

In any event, Mr. Chairman, I rise in order to offer this amendment, No. 56, with my colleagues, the gentleman from New York [Mr. BOEHLERT], the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. KLUG], the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr.

VENTO], the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PORTER], and the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER].

Mr. Chairman, this amendment makes a targeted limitation on the prohibiting of the Forest Service from conducting the most egregious sales, building roads in our so-called roadless areas of this country.

Mr. Chairman, even this amendment provides for a very small reduction of just $18 million to stop building roads into the highest mountain areas and into the areas of our country that provide the greatest wilderness, that provide the greatest opportunities for backpacking, which do the greatest amount of environmental damage and provide the highest cost per board foot of any lumber in this country. Those costs end up being paid for by the American people.

It is an egregious form of the kind of corporate welfare that all of the people in this Chamber have vowed to fight against. We do not need taxpayers writing checks to the lumber companies for excessive cost to build roads to areas that they would never on their own consider building themselves. The only reason why these trees get cut down is because the American taxpayer is willing to foot the bill. If we put this bill on a cost-analysis basis, the lumber companies will not cut these trees down, and we will preserve the finest and most beautiful parts of our land and stop the kind of environmental havoc that is taking place as a result of this egregious program.

I yield 1 minute to my good friend, the gentleman from New York [Mr. BOEHLERT].

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Chairman, I proudly identify with this amendment. I think it makes an awful lot of sense.

The Federal Government has lost $5.6 billion on its timber program, due to timber sales that bring in less than the Forest Service's initial investment and because of subsidies issued for the construction of logging roads.

In fact, timber subsidies are currently several times the Forest Service's annual timber returns.

We are always told that we should operate Government more like a business, and let me tell you, in the private sector this would spell disaster. It would be bankruptcy. They would not do it.

And the problem gets worse when the Government offers subsidies for timber road construction in roadless areas. These areas are usually remote and wild. They are made up of rocky, unmanageable terrain, and the difficulty and cost of building roads in these unmanageable roads and lands is great and nearly impossible for the Forest Service to recoup expenses.

I wish I had a lot of time, but our time is severely limited. I am cooperating as fully as I can, trying to move this along. I proudly identify with this amendment. Let us pass it.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. TAYLOR], a member of the subcommittee.

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, let us see what is going on here. What we have done to our natural resource policy in this country is like the cat eating the grindstone, just a little bit at a time. We take a few acres here, a few acres there.

What have we done to 191 million acres of U.S. forestlands that were heretofore reserved for timber, one of the prime, part of the multiple-use purpose? We have reduced that to about 25 percent. We already have 100 million acres of that 191 million acres in roadless or wilderness areas—25 percent, less than 50 million acres, of the 191 can even be considered for harvest.

This amendment will cost us another 45,000 jobs. It will cost the taxpayer millions of dollars. It will cost the local taxpayer who gets this money—primarily for education—millions of dollars, and these gentlemen know this.

This is another way of saying we do not want any trees cut in the U.S. forests, and we know that is certainly not the policy of the great portion of the people. We voted almost two-thirds in this House to have a timber salvage bill in order to see that we could start saving tens of thousands of jobs we are losing all over this country.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Washington, [Mr. DICKS].

Mr. DICKS. The point I want to make is we are now reinventing government. What that means is the Forest Service has been reduced in personnel by 3,000 people. Timber sales have come down dramatically.

If we change the standard from 5,000 acres to 3,000 acres, they are going to have to redo all of their forest plans throughout this country. That will be a disaster that will mean less timber harvesting.

Timber harvesting nationally has come down by 60 percent. So I have supported wildernesses. I voted for my wilderness bill in my State.

But to come in now after this dramatic reduction in timber harvesting and to come in now and say we have got to reduce this standard and change it, is a mistake.

By the way, this is the Clinton administration. There is Jim Lyons and ALBERT GORE and Jack Ward Thomas. They are not going to go out and tear apart the roadless areas in this country, and I think it is an affront. I think it is an affront to this administration to change this standard after what they have done for ecosystem management and improving our environment, and I am shocked the gentleman from Massachusetts would do such a thing.

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 15 seconds.

Last week I saw the gentleman from Washington throw a yellow flag on the gentleman from Oklahoma because he used a technicality. Another fine football player. I cannot believe the gentleman from Washington State would dare to try to use a technicality to rule us out of order today.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. VENTO].

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the Kennedy amendment in terms of the Clinton administration's programs in terms of timber. The fact is that the question is do you want to spend this money on harvesting trees or building roads? That is what this is all about.

Time and again there is no reduction in terms of the money in terms of this bill in terms of timber harvest or preparation. The thing is, where are we going to do it? Time and again our colleagues have assured us when they had the salvage sales up here and all their discussion about forest health, that they were not going to go into these roadless areas, all of a sudden when you have an amendment on the floor dealing with areas that are roadless, all of a sudden we are going to go in there and we are going to have to construct roads.

So this really belies the type of representations that were made on the floor here with regard to forest health. This bill has less money in it for forest health than the administration asked. This bill has more money for road building.

The fact is you do not produce jobs by building roads unless you are in the roadbuilding business because they cost money. They cost money in terms of credit, which is not represented in this bill, and they cost money in terms of reconstruction. That means closing roads once they are there so the soil is not moving into the streams and destroying the salmon fisheries across the Pacific Northwest and across this country.

Support the Kennedy amendment.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Washington [Mr. NETHERCUTT].

Mr. NETHERCUTT. Mr. Chairman, I rise tonight in strong opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts. In addition to preserving the health of our forests, the timber sale program at the Forest Service is a net revenue generator for the Federal Government and our local communities.

Last year, the agency produced net revenues of $214 million and returned over $280 million to the local counties where our national forests are located. This occurred while funding levels for timber sales have fallen almost 30 percent over the past 5 years.

Similarly, road construction funding has been cut by 38 percent over the last 5 years. The condition of Forest Service roads have severely declined over the last decade. Reduced funding has and will continue to allow roads to deteriorate beyond what can be repaired by routine maintenance. Major reconstruction is the only way to restore these roads to safe conditions. The Forest Service currently has a $440 million backlog in road construction needs. The funds appropriated by the subcommittee are essential for allowing the agency to meet watershed protection and analysis requirements. For the sake of our economy and our rural communities, the time has come to reverse the trend of reduced funding for roads and timber sales.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Alaska [Mr. YOUNG], the chairman of the Committee on Resources.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the Kennedy amendment. I say to the gentleman, "Shame on you, Mr. KENNEDY."

Mr. Chairman, this would cause a loss of $250 million of receipts to the Treasury, and these figures are the Treasury figures, a loss of $60 million in revenue for sharing of counties and schools around these areas, a loss of 15 jobs for every 1 million board feet not harvested, and, if we reduce it by 1 billion board feet, think how many jobs will be lost there, 25-percent reduction to the timber program which is already four times slower than it was 5 years ago.

Let us not kid ourselves. My friends, this amendment is to stop the total timber industry in the United States, especially in the States of Alaska, Washington, Oregon, and California. This is what this is about.

I ask, "Where else do you have 3,000 acres that don't have roads in it already?" This is an attempt to stop all logging so we no longer have the opportunity to reduce a renewable resource.

That is why I say, "Shame on you." This is a renewable source. This is not something that will not grow back. This is something that has to be done, and managed, and should be, and we are not cutting the timber we were 5 years ago, so I suggest respectfully this is a bad amendment, and I urge a "no" vote.

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I yield 40 seconds to the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER], our cleanup hitter.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Washington [Mr. NETHERCUTT] made the point that there is a huge backlog in road construction in the Forest Service. This is about new roads. This is about continuing a program that lost the taxpayers $330 million in fiscal year 1994. This is about the taxpayer, and this is about staying out of the roadless areas because those are the most expensive sales. That is where the litigation is.

Mr. Chairman, we are cutting back on visitor centers, we are cutting back on recreation in this bill. We ought to take that money, and use it, and put it where the people can enjoy it, prosper from it, and the local communities can do the same. We should not be engaging in building new roads and to roadless areas. This amendment itself will save about $18 to $20 million off the current program. That is a huge whopper of a loss. What the Forest Service seeks to do is like if McDonald's said they wanted to build a hamburger stand on the Moon, and they had to use a space shuttle to get its customers there.

This is outrageous. Private enterprise ought to be building these roads, they should not be coming. It is $300 million subsidies. They have been against subsidies all the time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Kennedy amendment to preclude the Forest Service budget from building roads and conducting timber sales in roadless areas of our national forests.

Mr. Chairman, many popular Forest Service programs take significant hits in the bill before us. The budget for land acquisition drops from $65.3 million in fiscal year 1995 to $14.6 million, a 78-percent reduction. The budget for construction of recreational roads, trails, and visitor facilities is $72 million less than the administration's request. Construction of Forest Service visitor facilities is down 63 percent and trail construction is cut by 85 percent from the current fiscal year.

But in the midst of these draconian cuts, the committee has somehow found it desirable to pile on taxpayer subsidies to provide corporate welfare for some of their friends in the timber business. The bill provides $57 million in direct subsidies for construction of timber roads and $50 million more in indirect subsidies through the purchaser credit program where we trade national forest trees for roads to the clearcuts.

The bill also provides $189 million for timber sales management which is about $31 million or 20 percent more than the administration's budget request.

Simply put, Mr. Chairman, this bill devastates the budget for campgrounds, visitor facilities, and trails for people to enjoy and use our national forests. Instead, what the people get is what they don't want—more clearcuts and bigger subsidies for those in the timber industry who become dependent upon taxpayer handouts.

As the Congressional Budget Office has explained, in seven of the nine National Forest System regions, annual cash receipts from Federal timber sales have consistently failed to cover the Forest Service's annual cash expenditures. In other words, the Forest Service Timber Program is below-cost, which means that the Forest Service spends more money annually for roads and administrative expenditures than the Treasury receives in revenues. No private business could stay in business managing its assets in such a cavalier manner.

Why should Members care? According to CBO, we should care because below-cost timber sales lead to an increase in the Federal deficit, wasteful depletion of Federal resources through uneconomic harvest, unwarranted destruction of roadless forests valued by many recreational visitors, and Government interference with private timber markets.

Mr. Chairman, the Kennedy amendment reduces, but does not entirely eliminate, below-cost sales. It is a modest amendment intended to put the brakes on the most expensive, money losing sales by preventing new roads and timber sales in major roadless areas.

Mr. Chairman, in a bill where the majority is demanding significant sacrifice in the name of deficit reduction, it is indefensible to heap more money than even the Forest Service says is necessary on taxpayer subsidies for timber sales and road building. To increase environmentally destructive corporate welfare at the same time the bill is cutting the budget for people to use and enjoy our national forests should be a serious embarrassment to the majority.

I urge Members to vote for the Kennedy amendment that will save the taxpayers money and preserve the increasingly rare roadless areas in our National Forest System.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. BUNN].

Mr. BUNN of Oregon. Mr. Chairman, what is outrageous is that we have an amendment on the floor that proposes locking up 60.2 million acres. That is more than the State of Massachusetts and most of the six States surrounding. It is outrageous that we have had mill closure after mill closure, 10 mills in the State of Oregon, 800 jobs lost last year; since 1989, 111 mills, 16,700 jobs. And then we are told that this is a losing proposition.

We made a net; that is net, not gross, net, $213 million last year when we were told we lost 330 million. We made 800 million a few years ago, but we are barely surviving.

I say to my colleagues, "Don't shut us down."

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, I urge all of my colleagues to vote "no" on this amendment. The roads provide access to harvest the timber crop so that young people can build homes at a reasonable cost. This timber goes into the homes of America, but also it opens up these beautiful forests so the millions of our fellow citizens have an opportunity to fish, to hunt, to camp, to enjoy the forests. We forget that twice the visitor days of the Park Service are in the Forest Service, and these roads provide the necessary access. These forests belong to all Americans, and the people, therefore, should have the right to use them, to use the products of the forest and to enjoy the beauties of the forest for recreational purposes.

I strongly urge a "no" vote on this amendment.

Mr. LUTHER. Mr. Chairman, I support the amendment to prevent the use of funds for timber roads and timber sale preparation in roadless areas. I support it because it makes sound economic sense and will save tax payer over $18 million.

Given the fact that our national debt is approaching $5 trillion, I believe the Federal Government should not bear the responsibility for timber companies to construct logging roads in areas currently without roads. While there may be a case for a logging program, this is an example of where the return to the taxpayer does not justify the cost.

The U.S. Forest Service has already constructed 360,000 miles of logging roads, or 8 times the total number of miles in our interstate highway system. Even with this existing infrastructure, the Forest Service loses money on many timber sales, in part, because of the cost of constructing new roads. And the most, expensive roads to construct are those in roadless areas.

By prohibiting the construction of these roads, we can increase the return on taxpayers' investment in the U.S. Forest Service timber program. This is an example of the type of common sense that voters in Minnesota and across the country are looking for in their elected leaders. It is fiscally responsible.

I urge my colleagues to vote for this common sense amendment.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Kennedy-Boehlert-Vento amendment to stop the construction of new Forest Service roads in roadless areas.

There is a good reason why these areas have remained roadless in the past. It is costly and environmentally unsound to harvest timber from these areas. Most of the roadless areas are extremely remote, mountainous, and generally not well-suited to timber harvesting. The cost of harvesting and removing timber from these areas is tremendous, and because of the difficulty of constructing good roads on steep slopes, timber sales in roadless areas almost always lose money.

Last year, the Wilderness Society reports that 109 of the 120 National Forests lost money. This is $337 million of the taxpayers money which could be used for more productive programs.

Logging and road building in these areas carries enormous environmental costs as well. Roads contribute to soil erosion and sedimentation of rivers that harm fish and other aquatic organisms.

Mr. Chairman, the Forest Service has claimed that it is moving toward "ecosystem management." If this is true—and we certainly take them at their word—it should not be building roads on remote and untouched tracts of forest lands.

Mr. Chairman, why would we knowingly build roads and harvest timber in areas where it is uneconomical and environmentally damaging to do so? The forests belong to the American people, and I believe that they want to put an end to below-cost timber sales. The first sales to be eliminated ought to be those that have the greatest financial and environmental costs—timber in previously roadless areas.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support the Kennedy amendment and protect our wilderness areas and the taxpayers dollars.

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to express my opposition to the amendment by Mr. KENNEDY to the Interior appropriations bill. This amendment is designed to reduce funds to the Forest Service for the construction of roads for the preparation of timber sales, in roadless areas. The amendment is also designed to reduce funds to the Forest Service for timber sales in roadless areas.

If enacted, this amendment would shrink the amount of timber acreage suitable for harvesting by roughly one-third. One-third. The Kennedy amendment would have the effect of taking more than 60 million acres and essentially designating them as "wilderness" areas. Sixty million acres, an area nearly the size of New England.

The proposed road construction budget for fiscal year 1996 will provide a total of less than 100 miles of roads in our forests, 100 miles for a total area of nearly two-thirds of a million acres. This averages out to roughly one mile of road for every 1,000 square miles, an area almost the size of the State of Rhode Island, or one-half the size of Delaware.

Most of all, the Kennedy amendment will have a definite impact on small communities, rural communities already hit hard by the decline in funding of roughly one-third in the Federal timber sales program over the past 5 years. Federal timber sales have declined by 60 percent during this same period, a decline that has brought about closures of hundreds of mills and the unemployment of tens of thousands of Americans. This has been the unfortunate reality for many of my constituents, and I believe my colleague from Massachusetts would agree with this Member from Michigan that the last thing we need in America are more jobless, more closed businesses, and more communities struggling to survive.

I ask my colleagues to help these workers, to help these companies, and to help the many communities that will be impacted by this amendment. I ask my colleagues to oppose the Kennedy amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. KENNEDY].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 166, noes 255, not voting 13, as follows:

The Clerk announced the following pair:

On this vote:

Mr. Richardson for, with Mr. Stearns against.

Mr. GILCHREST and Mr. KASICH changed their vote from "aye" to "no."

Mr. BALDACCIO, Ms. HARMAN, and Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania changed their vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Mrs. CHENOWETH. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I wish to enter into a colloquy with the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. REGULA].

Mr. Chairman, I am concerned with reports about high ranking Forest Service officials telling my constituents and Forest Service employees that direction from the Congress provided in bill language on eco-region management would not really matter. I am alarmed that the Forest Service still wants to go forward with implementation of so-called ecosystem management and eco-region studies.

I do not believe that ecosystem activities have ever been authorized by the Congress, and I was glad to learn that the Nethercutt amendment on this subject would also prevent ecosystem studies in Idaho. I was also glad to learn that the committee report accompanying this bill requires that the Forest Service report by December 1, 1996, on the purposes, the scope, and benefits, as well as the costs associated with ecosystem planning.

I would like to see the report sooner, so that the Committee on Appropriations and the authorizing committees can fully act on and authorize and fund this expensive ecosystem project now under way.

I ask the subcommittee chairman if there is any way to get these reports any sooner?

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. CHENOWETH. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, we will make every attempt to get the ecosystem report before the next appropriations cycle. If the reports that the gentlewoman heard are true, then we can raise the ecosystem issue with the Senate and address the problem in conference. I do, however, think that the authorizing committee should be involved.

Mrs. CHENOWETH. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman. As a member of both authorizing committees, I am working closely with the Committee on Appropriations, and I intend to follow up in our next set of hearings on the reports that the Forest Service plans to proceed with ecosystem assessments. Although your bill recommended $130 million for ecosystem planning, I am troubled by what I heard, and I hope that the subcommittee helps us address this and requests an explanation.

What I heard was reported from three congressional districts in the northwest, and I look forward to addressing this issue in the conference with the Senate.

Mr. Chairman, I will work on making sure that the authorizing committees deal with these issues.

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise to emphasize how important I think it is for the greatest country in the world to support the arts.

I believe very strongly that there should be a Federal role in arts funding.

Civilizations are remembered for their great battles and their cultural contributions.

The United States spends more on defense than any other country in the world—and next year we're giving the Pentagon $8 billion more than they have requested.

Yet, this Congress wants to slash the Arts and Humanities Endowments with funding set to end entirely in 2 years.

What does this say about our Nation's priorities?

We invest in that which destroys and destroys that which creates.

All developed countries in the world support their visual artists, musicians, performing artists, and cultural institutions.

The amount the United States gives to the three Federal arts agencies, the NEA, the NEH and the IMS, is minuscule compared to what Britain, Canada, The Netherlands, France, Germany and Sweden allocate to the arts.

This year in Germany, Berlin alone will devote 1.1 billion marks, or 730 million dollars, to art and culture.

This amounts to $225 per citizen of Berlin.

In comparison, our National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities will each spend less than a quarter of that amount for the entire United States, or a mere 64 cents per U.S. citizen, the cost of 2 postage stamps.

We should be celebrating the contributions of the arts endowments to our country today, rather than trying to destroy them.

Let me remind my friends on the other side that the agencies on the chopping block today were created by President Richard Nixon and defended by President Ronald Reagan.

These Republicans believed in the importance of a vibrant American culture that could be passed on to future generations.

Yes we need to reduce the size of the Federal Government.

Yes we must cut the budget and reduce the deficit.

But we must also keep our priorities straight.

The leading countries of the world support the arts, often ten times as much as we do.

Why should the wealthiest nation in the world choose to slash and destroy its arts and humanities endowments rather than nurture and encourage them?

Assuring a rich American heritage should be one of the primary responsibilities of this and every Congress.

Public arts and humanities funding, along with public education, is an obligation a government has to its people and to history.

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to express my strong opposition to the amendment offered cutting funds for the National Endowment for the Arts.

At home over this weekend, numerous constituents expressed to me their views that cuts for arts programs in public schools and cultural displays at numerous museums and community facilities will deny our kids the chance to develop creativity and to learn about their cultural heritage.

For example, the city of Venice has hosted numerous performing arts events, art displays, and multi-media activities that have been enormously popular. A terrific display of one museum's collection of Navajo and Pueblo textiles was funded with an NEA grant. Several travelling performing arts and theater groups have staged programs for the benefit of the citizens of Redondo Beach and Manhattan Beach. The cities of San Pedro, Venice, Torrance, Playa del Ray, Hermosa Beach, Redondo Beach and Manhattan Beach have enjoyed special education operatic performances. And students attending the elementary, middle and high schools of many of these same cities have participated in improvisational theater sponsored by a touring performing arts and musical company.

Mr. Chairman, private funds will not take up the slack to continue these activities if the Congress cuts the National Endowment for the Arts. While fair revisions may be appropriate in times of budgetary streamlining, wiping out NEA is not reform.

In fact, cutting funding for NEA is short-sighted. NEA is the Federal Government's vehicle for funnelling funds to local and State arts and humanities councils and organizations. Cutting, if not eliminating, NEA is tantamount to cutting locally-controlled resources. Such an action will have long-term repercussions that could lead to the destruction of community-based arts activities and programs. If this amendment had been successful, the greatest losers would have been our children and grandchildren—those for whom arts education is most important.

While I was unavoidably absent last night during consideration of the Stearns amendment that sought to reduce NEA funding, had I been present, I would have voted "no". But my vote against the Interior Appropriations bill on final passage is based, in part, on my concern over the level of funding for NEA and the majority's intention to eliminate all of its funding over the next several years.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to express my strong opposition to an amendment offered by Representative CRANE which would eliminate funding for the National Endowment for the Arts. As presented, the Interior appropriations bill cuts the NEA budget nearly in half; a cut which I believe will devastate many existing educational arts programs nationwide. As the only voice for South Dakota in the House of Representatives, I must speak out against the outright elimination of programs which bring the benefit of theater, music, dance, and visual art to the people of my rural State.

While many opponents of Federal funding for the arts expound on the monopoly on arts funding that more urban States supposedly enjoy, the invaluable benefits that NEA funding brings to rural States like South Dakota continually go unnoticed. Almost 50 percent of the grant applications to the NEA from South Dakota are approved and funded by the NEA, compared to roughly 20 percent of applications from New York and California. NEA programs exemplify the type of public-private partnerships that have traditionally fostered a collective dedication to arts education and cultural enrichment. The NEA gives State and local arts councils the necessary freedoms to meet local arts and educational needs.

In fiscal year 1994, the NEA provided organizations like the South Dakota Arts Council and American Indian Services, Inc. with $779,500 dollars to develop theater, dance, and other visual arts programs. With these funds, children's theater companies from Minneapolis, MN and Richmond, VA toured several of South Dakota's smaller cities. While larger urban areas have the benefit of multiple theaters and art museums, many South Dakota's only exposure to theater and dance is through touring groups funded by NEA grants.

In addition to fulfilling its mission of expanding the cultural and artistic horizon for every American, the NEA serves as an impetus for local economies and contributes to the Nation's fiscal well being. The nonprofit arts industry alone contributes $36.8 billion to the U.S. economy and provides over 1.3 million jobs to Americans nationwide. Business, tourism, restaurants, and hotels thrive on the arts. Nonprofit theaters serve annually an audience that has grown from 5 million in 1965 to over 20 million in 1992. In South Dakota alone the economic impact of the arts can be seen both locally and statewide. In Aberdeen, a town of 27,000, the arts provide an average of $8,867 in local revenues annually. Additionally, 18 full time jobs were supported by the nonprofit arts industries in Aberdeen between 1990 and 1992.

As belts are tightened at the Federal, State, and local levels, we cannot stand by and allow the complete elimination of the seed money for programs vital to cultural enrichment and education funded through the National Endowment for the Arts.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise to oppose this amendment which would devastate the arts in this country.

You know, the average taxpayer invests about 68 cents a year in the NEA; 68 cents.

For that 68 cents, they get a lot back in return.

For 68 cents, their local arts groups are supported.

For 68 cents, their schools and communities are enriched.

For 68 cents, jobs are created in their towns and cities.

That is why, for the life of me, I can not understand why some Members want to bring the curtain down on our theatres and symphonies, especially when these same Members refuse to even look at cutting Pentagon pork.

Mr. Chairman, investing in the arts reaps longterm benefits for our communities and our Nation.

I urge my colleagues to vote against this shortsighted amendment.

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Chairman, I believe the humanities agencies are important to the cultural life and diversity of our country—to people of all ages, to people in our inner cities, in our suburbs, and in our rural communities.

There are many, many positive effects of these dollars and what they help fund—for example:

In Delaware, we are fortunate to have tremendously well-run and highly effective division of the arts, State Arts Council, and Delaware Humanities Forum. These organizations, which receive a combined total of about 75 percent of their funds from the national organizations, help fund such diverse exhibitions and events as:

The Delaware Symphony Orchestra, that provides concerts in all three of our counties.

Operadelaware which provides musical education programs statewide;

The visiting scholars program, that brings University of Delaware professors into 137 Delaware classrooms to talk to 60,000 school children about American Presidents, and many other topics;

The beautiful and historic Winterthur Museum and Gardens;

Exhibitions, lectures, films about World War II and its impact on Delaware, which are offered throughout the State;

The Georgetown Possum Point Players, a local theatre group;

The Mid-Atlantic Chamber Music Society;

The Nanticoke Powwow in Millsboro, DE;

Second Street Players, a community theatre group in Milford;

The Dover Art League; and,

The Southern Delaware Chorale.

This is only a sampling of the many positive, quality programs or exhibits these organizations, fostered by the NEA and the NEH, help provide throughout the State of Delaware.

I support a Federal role in funding the arts and humanities, but I do not believe that in a time of tremendous budget deficits and an enormous Federal debt, that virtually any program should be spared from budget cuts or restructuring.

Having said that, the arts and humanities have not been spared. In fact, they have felt the edge of a heavy axe.

Consequently, I urge my colleagues to support the Appropriations Committee actions by voting against any efforts to eliminate or cut further these organizations. They have fared far enough.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the amendment. Cutting the budget of the National Endowment for the Humanities by 40 percent next year is bad enough. This amendment, however, defies all sense of reasonableness. In a nation of such wealth and cultural diversity, this amendment is a tragic commentary on our priorities.

The total budget for the NEH costs each American less than the price of a can of soda, and it leverages funds many times over that in private dollars.

At a time when we are funding B-2 bombers that we don't even need, why must we slash one of the most modest and cost-effective investments that our Government makes in society?

The National Endowment for the Humanities provides funding for student essay contests, teacher seminars, museum exhibitions, documentary films, research grants, public conferences and speakers, and library-based reading and discussions programs. Throughout all of these programs, the NEH helps to provide a greater understanding of our Nation's history and culture.

Before you cast your vote, I urge my colleagues to heed the words of Ken Burns, producer of the highly acclaimed Civil War and Baseball series on PBS. Testifying before the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee earlier this year, Ken Burns declared emphatically that his Civil War series would not have been possible without the Endowment's support. I dare say the majority of my constituents would be willing to sacrifice the price of a can of Pepsi every year to pay for programs like the Civil War, not to mention all the other programs the NEH supports.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment will harm our Nation's schools and damage our cultural heritage. It must be defeated.

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to H.R. 1977, the Interior appropriations bill for fiscal year 1996. This short-sighted and extreme bill makes drastic cuts in some of America's most successful and important Federal programs. We have heard a lot of Members these past days talking about how responsible this bill is and how important these cuts are to the future of our country. If only this were true!

In reality, the Gingrich Republicans have promised major tax cuts to those that least need it, have hiked up spending for the military and are now looking to cut hundreds of Federal programs for needy people to pay for their skewed priorities. Moreover, the Gingrich Republicans are so entirely committed to protecting their wealthy friends that they are only targeting certain programs for cuts, not the ones that benefit wealthy mining companies, and so forth. This is neither responsible nor in the best interest of this country's future.

Let's look at some of the programs that will be eliminated to give tax cuts for the financially privileged and more money for the peace-time military and compare them to what is protected in this bill. The Department of Energy's Low-Income Weatherization [WAP] Program is cut by 50 percent in H.R. 1977. Fifty percent! Since 1977, WAP has served over 4 million low- and fixed-income households in the Nation. It protects Americans throughout the country, especially in districts like mine where the winter season is long and bitterly cold, from having to choose between feeding themselves and their families or heating their homes.

At the same time, this bill lifts the moratorium on mining claim patents, which allows mining companies to extract mineral wealth from taxpayer-owned Federal land for as little as $5 an acre. Last year, these big mining companies made $1.2 billion from the minerals they extracted from taxpayer-owned land and paid almost nothing back into the U.S. Treasury. Why should these rich corporations receive corporate welfare while the GOP is slashing the programs that help weatherize the homes of senior citizens and poor Americans and lower their winter heating bills? It is unconscionable and irresponsible.

H.R. 1977 also cuts the National Endowment for the Arts [NEA] and the National Endowment for the Humanities [NEH] by 40 percent this year and will completely eliminate them within 3 years. When you compare how much the NEA and NEH cost taxpayers each year to how much they provide, the argument that eliminating these programs is necessary just does not hold up. Since the NEA was created in 1965, the number of professional theaters, orchestras, dance and opera companies have multiplied greatly at a cost of less than a dollar a year per taxpayer.

In my congressional district in Illinois, recent NEA and NEH grants have enabled the Black Ensemble Theatre Corp. to support their theater season and the People's Music School to continue its professional music training program for inner city youth and adults. Other NEA grants have given students from Maywood, Bellwood, Westchester, Oak Park, Berkeley, and River Forest the opportunity to attend special Chicago Symphony Orchestra concerts and gave the director, Roger Quinn, the chance to make the moving and highly acclaimed movie Hoop Dreams. I strongly oppose these cuts and urge my colleagues to oppose any amendments that reduce spending even more radically for these important programs.

H.R. 1977 also eliminates the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation which advises the President and Congress on relevant issues and terminates all funding for the Department of Interior's pre-listing and listing activities of the Endangered Species Act [ESA] until this law is reauthorized. More specifically, it eliminates $4.5 million from the Fish and Wildlife Services budget for prelisting activities. This is exactly the type of short-sighted and extreme provisions that are rampant in H.R. 1977. The ESA's prelisting activities are designed to stabilize and protect species that would otherwise likely end up on the ESA's protection list. This saves funding and resources down the road before bald eagles, and so forth become dangerously close to extinction and extraordinary measures must be taken to ensure their preservation.

Mr. Chairman, this bill is clearly just another move by the Gingrich Republicans to cut programs that Americans care about and depend on so that they can give billion dollar bonuses and give away to the rich. I am voting against this skewed bill and urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, the fiscal year 1996 Interior appropriations bill does a great disservice to the American Indian and Alaska Native tribes of our country. While we were able to restore funding for the education of Indian children in public schools, the bill still eliminates funding under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act for adult Indian education, services to children with disabilities, remedial instruction, gifted and talented student grants, and scholarships for Indian students.

Under this bill, the Bureau of Indian Affairs' budget is $101 million below the President's request and the Indian Health Service's budget is $96 million below the President's budget. The IHS budget does not take into account any growth in population or cover inflationary costs. The BIA budget significantly restricts funding for Self-Governance and Self-Determination contracts, water rights negotiations and settlements, new school and hospital facilities, tribal courts, and community and economic development.

In addition, the report accompanying the bill penalizes tribal self-determination and economic growth by directing the Secretary of the Interior to prepare a means-testing report for Indian tribes with gaming revenues. Further, the report directs the Secretary to ignore the law and halt the distribution to Self-Governance tribes of their rightful share of administrative funding.

These actions demonstrate the attitude of the new Republican-controlled Congress toward Indian country—that it's all right to forget the fact that our Nation signed treaties with Indian tribes promising the delivery of these very services; that it's all right to ignore the fact that our Nation has a legal trust responsibility to protect the well-being of the Indian tribes. We should never forget that these tribes have already borne more than their fair share of budget cuts in the past 200 years and we owe more to them than this bill provides.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I first want to commend Chairman REGULA and his staff for putting this bill together under difficult circumstances. Not only did the chairman have to deal with a tight 602(b) allocation, but—between NBS, the timber program, NEA, NEH, and other programs included in this bill—it has attracted more than its fair share of controversy. I appreciate the chairman's efforts, patience, and perseverance.

The fiscal year 1996 Interior appropriations bill is consistent with the balanced budget resolution Congress recently adopted. It is nearly $1.6 billion below the fiscal year 1995 appropriations—that's a real cut of 11.5 percent.

Nevertheless, I'm confident that the bill responsibly protects and enhances our Nation's priceless natural resources. And as the Member whose district includes the Allegheny National Forest, this is extremely important to me and my constituents.

The bill, I believe, also upholds the multiple-use philosophy of the National Forest System by reversing a 5-year decline in the timber sale budget. Since the late 1980's timber harvest levels on national forests have plummeted over 60 percent. This year's timber sale management appropriation of $188 million represents a modest increase above last year's funding and will allow for a nationwide timber harvest of roughly 4.3 billion board feet.

Some of my colleagues—who supported the piecemeal dismantling of the timber sale program—oppose this funding because, I believe, they want to prevent any timber harvesting on Federal lands. However, I want to point out several points to my colleagues: First, the U.S. Forest Service, by statute, is governed by multiple-use policies. Second, one of the missions of the Forest Service is to help provide the Nation with an adequate supply of timber. And third, timber harvesting is a legitimate and vital forest management tool.

National forests are not national parks, wilderness areas, or wildlife refuges and their management plans must and do reflect this fact.

Having said that, I am proud to say that the Allegheny National Forest is one of the Nation's most environmentally and fiscally well-managed forests. It is a model of how multiple-use policies can work as it balances—with relatively little conflict—the interests of 12 million annual recreational users, the owners of gas and oil rights beneath the forest, and timber harvesters.

Its timber program is above-cost—returning millions of dollars in net receipts to the U.S. Treasury—and, to a large degree, sustains the Allegheny region's economy. In fact, one study from the University of Pittsburgh at Bradford estimated that 42 percent of the jobs in the region, to some extent, rely on harvesting timber in the ANF.

So again, I thank the committee for rejecting the President's inadequate timber program request and for pulling the program back from the brink of extinction and urge my colleagues to defeat any amendment cutting funding from the timber sale program.

Mr. BARRETT of Nebraska. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support for the Appropriations Committee's actions on the National Endowment for the Arts and the Endowment for the Humanities.

As a member of the authorizing committee for the arts and humanities, I'm pleased that the Appropriations Committee has followed our lead. H.R. 1977 represents the first installment on the gradual phase out of federal support for the arts and humanities programs—which is consistent with legislation (H.R. 1557) approved by the Opportunities Committee.

In the past, I've given my support to maintaining federal funding for the arts and humanities because the state councils have provided my rural constituents with access to enriching art and cultural programs. Without these programs, I doubt that my constituents and communities would ever experience the types of programs that our urban neighbors can enjoy daily. But, we have to change our mind set and stop expecting the Federal Government to fund all that we find useful.

And its also time that we recognize that the private sector, which gave $9.6 billion in 1993 for the arts, is already providing the heavy lifting for the arts. Private contributions represented 98 percent of all funds that were spent in 1993 on the arts.

So, if we are ever to get a handle on the deficit and balance our budget, painful but necessary priorities need to be established. And, when I look at the billions being generated by the private sector for the arts, and our own pressing budget problems, then perhaps it is now time for us to cycle out federal funding.

This will not be an easy transition period for our state councils. Many I'm sure will have difficulties in raising the funds from state or private sources to maintain or develop new programs. But I'm ready to lend my private and public support for the state councils. When the House passes H.R. 1557, I'll be giving a donation to Nebraska's arts and humanities councils, and I'll actively encourage my colleagues to also donate funds to their state councils.

Mr. Chairman, H.R. 1977 represents a reasoned and prudent policy that will end immediately the endowments' national grant programs, which have been the subject of so much controversy, and for ending federal support for state arts and humanities councils. The bill cuts arts funding by 39 percent, or $63 million, and cuts humanities funding by 42 percent, or $73 million, from that spend during this past fiscal year. These are sizable cuts and necessary if we are to achieve a balanced budget by 2002.

I encourage my colleague to support the Committee's position and oppose amendments that would either eliminate all funding for the arts and humanities immediately or add monies back to these programs.

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, during this past weekend while I was back in my Congressional District, the heat rose to record high temperatures. Tragically, 179 residents of Cook County, and perhaps as many as 300, died from the heat. I wish to take this opportunity to extend my condolences to the families and friends of these victims and to urge residents across the Chicago Metropolitan Area to check on their elderly neighbors and family members to help ensure that the heat does not claim any more victims.

I also want to urge my colleagues to accommodate any requests by Mayor Richard Daley and Governor Jim Edgar for Federal disaster aid to quickly address this tragic situation.

More than 440,000 Americans over the age of 60 live in the City of Chicago. Many of them live in my Congressional District in Chicago and its western suburbs. Extreme temperatures can have a terrifying impact on these seniors and we need to make sure that every step possible is taken to protect them from severe heat and cold. Programs like the Department of Energy's low-income weatherization program and the Low-Income Housing Energy Assistance program (LIHEAP) are specifically designed to prevent such tragedies from occurring. In fact, for many low-income seniors, these programs can literally mean the difference between life or death.

The Department of Energy's low-income weatherization program provides funding for states to make improvements to the homes of poor Americans so that they are better prepared for extreme weather conditions and to lower their heating and cooling bills. Specifically, this program enables states to install ceiling fans, attic fans, and awnings and to tune-up or replace air conditioners. Why do the Republicans want to cut fifty percent of the funds for this program, knowing that lives are at risk? I am waiting for an answer to this question, Mr. Chairman.

Rest assured that I am not in any way suggesting that the Republicans are responsible for the deaths in Chicago. What I am suggesting, Mr. Chairman, is that it is sadly ironic that this week, before the heat wave has even moved from the Midwest, we are debating and voting on H.R. 1977, the FY96 Interior Appropriations Act, which cuts the low-income weatherization program by fifty percent. It is important that we remember that these are not vague, anti-big government cuts that the Republicans are making. Instead, they are devastating reductions to critically important programs that provide life-or-death services to many of our constituents.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are no further amendments, under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. HEFLEY) having assumed the chair, Mr. BURTON of Indiana, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 1977) making appropriations for the Department of the Interior and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 187, he reported the bill back to the House with sundry amendments adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment? If not, the Chair will put them en gros.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT OFFERED BY MR. YATES

Mr. YATES. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. YATES. In its present form, I am, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. YATES moves to recommit the bill, H.R. 1977, to the Committee on Appropriations.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The motion to recommit was rejected.

The question is on the passage of the bill.

Pursuant to clause 7 of rule XV, the yeas and nays are ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 244, nays 181, not voting 9, as follows:

TREASURY, POSTAL SERVICE, AND GENERAL GOVERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1996

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HEFLEY). Pursuant to House Resolution 190 and rule XXIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 2020.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 2020) making appropriations for the Treasury Department, the U.S. Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain independent agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes, with Mr. DREIER in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose earlier today, all time for general debate had expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the bill shall be considered under the 5-minute rule by titles and each title shall be considered read.

During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may accord priority in recognition to a Member who has caused an amendment to be printed in the designated place in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Those amendments will be considered read.

The Clerk will designate title I.

The text of title I is as follows:

H.R. 2020

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums are appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the Treasury Department, the United States Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain Independent Agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes, namely:

TITLE I—DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

DEPARTMENTAL OFFICES
SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Departmental Offices including operation and maintenance of the Treasury Building and Annex; hire of passenger motor vehicles; maintenance, repairs, and improvements of, and purchase of commercial insurance policies for, real properties leased or owned overseas, when necessary for the performance of official business; not to exceed $2,900,000 for official travel expenses; not to exceed $2,950,000 to remain available until September 30, 1998, shall be available for information technology modernization requirements; not to exceed $150,000 for official reception and representation expenses; not to exceed $258,000 for unforeseen emergencies of a confidential nature, to be allocated and expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury and to be accounted for solely on his certificate; $104,000,500.

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL
SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Office of Inspector General in carrying out the provisions of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, hire of passenger motor vehicles; not to exceed $2,000,000 for official travel expenses; not to exceed $100,000 for unforeseen emergencies of a confidential nature, to be allocated and expended under the direction of the Inspector General of the Treasury; $29,319,000.

FINANCIAL CRIMES ENFORCEMENT NETWORK
SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network, including hire of passenger motor vehicles; travel expenses of non-Federal personnel to attend meetings concerned with financial intelligence activities, law enforcement, and financial regulation; not to exceed $14,000 for official reception and representation expenses; $20,273,000: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Director of the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network may procure up to $500,000 in specialized, unique or novel automatic data processing equipment, ancillary equipment, software, services, and related resources from commercial vendors without regard to otherwise applicable procurement laws and regulations and without full and open competition, utilizing procedures best suited under the circumstances of the procurement to efficiently fulfill the agency's requirements: Provided further, That funds appropriated in this account may be used to procure personal services contracts.

FEDERAL LAW ENFORCEMENT TRAINING CENTER

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center, as a bureau of the Department of the Treasury, including materials and support costs of Federal law enforcement basic training; purchase (not to exceed fifty-two for police-type use) and hire of passenger motor vehicles; for expenses for student athletic and related activities; uniforms without regard to the general purchase price limitation for the current fiscal year; the conducting of and participating in firearms matches and presentation of awards; for public awareness and enhancing community support of law enforcement training; not to exceed $7,000 for official reception and representation expenses; room and board for student interns; and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109: Provided, That the Center is authorized to accept and use gifts of property, both real and personal, and to accept services, for authorized purposes, including funding of a gift of intrinsic value which shall be awarded annually by the Director of the Center to the outstanding student who graduated from a basic training program at the Center during the previous fiscal year, which shall be funded only by gifts received through the Center's gift authority: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, students attending training at any Federal Law Enforcement Training Center site shall reside in on-Center or Center-provided housing, insofar as available and in accordance with Center policy: Provided further, That funds appropriated in this account shall be available for training United States Postal Service law enforcement personnel and Postal police officers, at the discretion of the Director; State and local government law enforcement training on a space-available basis; training of foreign law enforcement officials on a space-available basis with reimbursement of actual costs to this appropriation (except that the Director may waive reimbursement and may pay travel expenses, not to exceed 75 percent of the total training and travel cost, when the Director determines that it is in the public interest to do so); training of private sector security officials on a space-available basis with reimbursement of actual costs to this appropriation; travel expenses of non-Federal personnel to attend State and local course development meetings at the Center: Provided further, That the Center is authorized to obligate funds in anticipation of reimbursements from agencies receiving training at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center, except that total obligations at the end of the fiscal year shall not exceed total budgetary resources available at the end of the fiscal year: Provided further, That the Center is authorized to obligate funds to provide for site security and expansion of antiterrorism training facilities: Provided further, That the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center is authorized to provide short term medical services for students undergoing training at the Center; $36,070,000, of which $8,666,000 for materials and support costs of Federal law enforcement basic training shall remain available until September 30, 1998.

ACQUISITION, CONSTRUCTION, IMPROVEMENTS, AND RELATED EXPENSES

For expansion of the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center, for acquisition of necessary additional real property and facilities, and for ongoing maintenance, facility improvements, and related expenses, $8,163,000, to remain available until expended.

FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT SERVICE
SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Financial Management Service, $181,837,000, of which not to exceed $14,277,000 shall remain available until September 30, 1988 for systems modernization initiatives. In addition, $90,000, to be derived from the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund, to reimburse the Service for administrative and personnel expenses for financial management of the Fund, as authorized by section 1012 of Public Law 101-380.

BUREAU OF ALCOHOL, TOBACCO AND FIREARMS
SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, including purchase of not to exceed six hundred and fifty vehicles for police-type use for replacement only and hire of passenger motor vehicles; hire of aircraft; and services of expert witnesses at such rates as may be determined by the Director; for payment of per diem and/or subsistence allowances to employees where an assignment to the National Response Team during the investigation of a bombing or arson incident requires an employee to work 16 hours or more per day or to remain overnight at his or her post of duty; not to exceed $10,000 for official reception and representation expenses; for training of State and local law enforcement agencies with or without reimbursement; provision of laboratory assistance to State and local agencies, with or without reimbursement; $391,035,000, of which not to exceed $1,000,000 shall be available for the payment of attorneys' fees as provided by 18 U.S.C. 924(d)(2); and of which $1,000,000 shall be available for the equipping of any vessel, vehicle, equipment, or aircraft available for official use by a State or local law enforcement agency if the conveyance will be used in drug-related joint law enforcement operations with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and for the payment of overtime salaries, travel, fuel, training, equipment, and other similar costs of State and local law enforcement officers that are incurred in joint operations with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms: Provided, That no funds made available by this or any other Act may be used to implement any reorganization of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms or transfer of the Bureau's functions, missions, or activities to other agencies or Departments in the fiscal year ending on September 30, 1996: Provided further, That no funds appropriated herein shall be available for salaries or administrative expenses in connection with consolidating or centralizing, within the Department of the Treasury, the records, or any portion thereof, of acquisition and disposition of firearms maintained by Federal firearms licensees: Provided further, That no funds appropriated herein shall be used to pay administrative expenses or the compensation of any officer or employee of the United States to implement an amendment or amendments to 27 CFR 178.118 or to change the definition of "Curios or relics" in 27 CFR 178.11 or remove any item from ATF Publication 5300.11 as it existed on January 1, 1994 without publishing prior notice in the Federal Register and allowing for public comment: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated herein shall be available to investigate or act upon applications for relief from Federal firearms disabilities under 18 U.S.C. 925(c): Provided further, That such funds shall be available to investigate and act upon applications filed by corporations for relief from Federal firearms disabilities under 18 U.S.C. section 925(c).

SEC. 103. Not to exceed 2 per centum of any appropriations in this Act for the Department of the Treasury may be transferred between such appropriations. Notwithstanding any authority to transfer funds between appropriations contained in this or any other Act, no transfer may increase or decrease any appropriation in this Act by more than 2 per centum and any such proposed transfers shall be approved in advance by the Committees on Appropriations of the House and Senate.

SEC. 104. None of the funds appropriated by this title shall be used in connection with the collection of any underpayment of any tax imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 unless the conduct of officers and employees of the Internal Revenue Service in connection with such collection, including any private sector employees under contract to the Internal Revenue Service, complies with subsection (a) of section 805 (relating to communications in connection with debt collection), and section 806 (relating to harassment or abuse), of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (15 U.S.C. 1692).

SEC. 105. The Internal Revenue Service shall institute policies and procedures which will safeguard the confidentiality of taxpayer information.

SEC. 106. The funds provided to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms for fiscal year 1996 in this Act for the enforcement of the Federal Alcohol Administration Act shall be expended in a manner so as not to diminish enforcement efforts with respect to section 105 of the Federal Alcohol Administration Act.

This title may be cited as the "Treasury Department Appropriations Act, 1996".

□ 1800

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. DREIER). Are there any amendments to title I?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MRS. KELLY

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mrs. KELLY: Page 9, line 20, strike "$1,389,829,000" and insert "$1,392,429,000".

Page 14, line 10, strike "$1,575,216,000" and insert "$1,571,616,000".

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Chairman, this amendment is very simple and straightforward. It reduces the appropriated amount for Internal Revenue Service by $3.6 million and transfers this amount to the salaries and expenses account for the Customs Service.

Passage of my amendment will mean that the total appropriation for the IRS will be equal with that of the 1995 level, while assisting the Customs Service with the important work that it does on a daily basis.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment is simple but it sends a strong and direct message to the American people. We are all making tough discussions across the board to reduce spending and live within our means and I see no reason why we should not expect the IRS to do the same.

These moneys can be better spent by the Customs Service, and I urge my colleagues to support this proposal.

Mr. FRISA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mrs. KELLY. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. FRISA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Kelly-Frisa amendment to equalize funding for the Internal Revenue Service to the same amount appropriated under the 1995 fiscal year.

At a time when we are asking other agencies and programs to be more efficient, to use dollars more wisely, in some cases do with less but still maintain the same level of services, and in other cases where we are appropriating smaller increases for programs to still be able to balance our budget, I think it is essential that we provide no more funding for the Internal Revenue Service for the 1996 fiscal year than we have for the past year.

Mr. Chairman, I urge all of my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I have had an opportunity to review the amendment proposed by the gentleman from New York [Mrs. KELLY]. I simply want to state that we have no objection to the amendment and urge its adoption.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I have had the opportunity to discuss this matter with the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LIGHTFOOT]. It is my own view that neither IRS nor Customs have sufficient funds, but I understand the thrust of the amendment and we will not oppose it on this side.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York [Mrs. KELLY].

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to title I?

If not, the Clerk will designate title II.

The text of title II is as follows:

TITLE II—POSTAL SERVICE

PAYMENTS TO THE POSTAL SERVICE

PAYMENT TO THE POSTAL SERVICE FUND

For payment to the Postal Service Fund for revenue forgone on free and reduced rate mail, pursuant to subsections (c) and (d) of section 2401 of title 39, United States Code; $85,080,000: Provided, That mail for overseas voting and mail for the blind shall continue to be free: Provided further, That six-day delivery and rural delivery of mail shall continue at not less than the 1983 level: Provided further, That none of the funds made available to the Postal Service by this Act shall be used to implement any rule, regulation, or policy of charging any officer or employee of any State or local child support enforcement agency, or any individual participating in a State or local program of child support enforcement, a fee for information requested or provided concerning an address of a postal customer: Provided further, That none of the funds provided in this Act shall be used to consolidate or close small rural and other small post offices in the fiscal year ending on September 30, 1996.

PAYMENT TO THE POSTAL SERVICE FUND FOR NONFUNDED LIABILITIES

For payment to the Postal Service Fund for meeting the liabilities of the former Post Office Department to the Employees' Compensation Fund pursuant to 39 U.S.C. 2004, $36,828,000.

This title may be cited as the "Postal Service Appropriations Act, 1996".

The CHAIRMAN. Are there amendments to title II?

If not, the Clerk will designate title III.

The text of title III is as follows:

This title may be cited as the "Executive Office Appropriations Act, 1996".

The CHAIRMAN. Are there amendments to title III?

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I will be brief. In this title, unfortunately, as I mentioned in my opening statement, we find a number of cuts that I think are inappropriate.

Mr. Chairman, I am not, frankly, going to offer any amendments. Some are not in order and I understand that and I have discussed with the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LIGHTFOOT], my friend the gentleman's perception that a couple of these are not in order.

For instance, asking to reinstate the funding for the Council of Economic Advisors, the White House residents, the special assistants to the President, the National Security Council, the Office of Administration and the Office of Management and Budget, all of which have been cut.

Mr. Chairman, I simply rise to express opposition to some of these cuts; not all. The OMB, obviously, is subject to scrutiny review and to such budget action as we deem appropriate. But in terms of the internal agencies of the White House itself, that is the President's personal staff to accomplish his objectives as President, not as leader of the executive department but as President and chief policymaker of the land.

The fact of the matter is, Mr. Chairman, I said earlier, in times past we did not cut those sums under President Reagan and President Bush. There were some exceptions to that statement that I have just made, but it proved the rule.

I regret that we had these cuts, contrary to my chairman, I believe some of them are pretty significant, but we will not be offering amendments at this time and I will hope that we can restore these in conference.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to title III?

If not, the Clerk will designate title IV.

The text of title IV is as follows:

TITLE IV—INDEPENDENT AGENCIES

COMMITTEE FOR PURCHASE FROM PEOPLE WHO ARE BLIND OR SEVERELY DISABLED

This title may be cited as the "Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996".

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any points of order against title IV? Are there any amendments to title IV?

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Again, I am not going to offer an amendment, again because I have not had that amendment protected by the rule. I regret that, and under the rule that we have adopted, unless I cut from this title, I cannot restore an item that has been cut out entirely. I think that is an unfortunate procedural situation into which I have been put and other Members of the Congress have been put.

Having said that, although I will not offer an amendment, I am hopeful that in conference we will restore the ACIR. That is an organization established some years ago to serve as an Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

The new leadership of this House and the Senate has talked about a significant change. That change would incorporate shifting additional responsibilities back to the States and local governments in terms of getting rid of unfunded mandates and in terms of block granting certain programs. All of that gives additional responsibilities to the States and local governments and heightens the focus on how we are interrelating as a Federal Government with our States and localities.

Mr. Chairman, I think it regrettable that a small agency, with which many of us have participated in years past as state legislators, is being put on the chopping block by the committee's action. But, again, it is not in order for me to offer this amendment, so I will not, but I am hopeful, Mr. Chairman, that we will have, if the Senate puts it back in, the ability to retain it in conference. It is a very small sum of money, with, in my opinion, a very large payoff.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to title IV?

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to strike the last word.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, because I have not offered an additional amendment, I understand the Chairman's observation. The Federal Election Commission is an agency that has great interest in this body. Obviously, it deals with each and every one of us in terms of overseeing our accounts.

It has the responsibility of monitoring our campaign finance laws and our disclosure. Clearly the nub of campaign reform was allowing the public to know from whom we receive money, how much money we receive, and how we spend that money so the public can make an informed judgment as to whether or not there is a nexus between the positions we take and the financial support that we get.

That is, in my opinion, the nub of campaign reform. It is critical. But if the public does not get that information in a timely fashion, it is not useful to them.

Therefore, in my opinion, it is important to fully fund the FEC. The Chairman's mark is $2.5 million below the Commission's request. This is not an increase, as the committee suggests. It is only an increase if you assume the $1.4 million rescission that has not been signed into law. As a matter of fact, that rescission languishes in the other body. As a result, this is a cut in the FEC's appropriation.

The impact of the rescission would be to reduce the staff and, therefore, reduce its ability to oversee our accounts. Again, Mr. Chairman, I think this is an unwise move that we have taken. I am not going to offer an amendment to restore the money, but I want the chairman, as I have told him privately, to know and the House to know, that I intend to work to see if this money can be restored as we go to conference.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to title IV?

If not, the Clerk will designate title V.

The text of title V is as follows:

TITLE V—GENERAL PROVISIONS

THIS ACT

SECTION 501. No part of any appropriation made available in this Act shall be used for the purchase or sale of real estate or for the purpose of establishing new offices inside or outside the District of Columbia: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to programs which have been approved by the Congress and appropriations made therefor.

SEC. 502. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 503. The expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for any consulting service through procurement contract, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 3109, shall be limited to those contracts where such expenditures are a matter of public record and available for public inspection, except where otherwise provided under existing law, or under existing Executive order issued pursuant to existing law.

SEC. 504. None of the funds made available to the General Services Administration pursuant to section 210(f) of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 shall be obligated or expended after the date of enactment of this Act for the procurement by contract of any guard, elevator operator, messenger or custodial services if any permanent veterans preference employee of the General Services Administration at said date, would be terminated as a result of the procurement of such services, except that such funds may be obligated or expended for the procurement by contract of the covered services with sheltered workshops employing the severely handicapped under Public Law 92-28. Only if such workshops decline to contract for the provision of the covered services may the General Services Administration procure the services by competitive contract, for a period not to exceed 5 years. At such time as such competitive contract expires or is terminated for any reason, the General Services Administration shall again offer to contract for the services from a sheltered workshop prior to offering such services for competitive procurement.

SEC. 505. None of the funds made available by this Act shall be available for any activity or for paying the salary of any Government employee where funding an activity or paying a salary to a Government employee would result in a decision, determination, rule, regulation, or policy that would prohibit the enforcement of section 307 of the Tariff Act of 1930.

SEC. 506. None of the funds made available by this Act shall be available for the purpose of transferring control over the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center located at Glyncro, Georgia, and Artesia, New Mexico, out of the Treasury Department.

SEC. 507. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes within the United States not heretofore authorized by the Congress.

SEC. 508. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the payment of the salary of any officer or employee of the United States Postal Service, who—

(1) prohibits or prevents, or attempts or threatens to prohibit or prevent, any officer or employee of the United States Postal Service from having any direct oral or written communication or contact with any Member or committee of Congress in connection with any matter pertaining to the employment of such officer or employee or pertaining to the United States Postal Service in any way, irrespective of whether such communication or contact is at the initiative of such officer or employee or in response to the request or inquiry of such Member or committee; or

(2) removes, suspends from duty without pay, demotes, reduces in rank, seniority, status, pay, or performance of efficiency rating, denies promotion to, relocates, reassigns, transfers, disciplines, or discriminates in regard to any employment right, entitlement, or benefit, or any term or condition of employment of, any officer or employee of the United States Postal Service, or attempts or threatens to commit any of the foregoing actions with respect to such officer or employee, by reason of any communication or contact of such officer or employee with any Member or committee of Congress as described in paragraph (1) of this subsection.

SEC. 509. Funds under this Act shall be available as authorized by sections 4501-4506 of title 5, United States Code, when the achievement involved is certified, or when an award for such achievement is otherwise payable, in accordance with such sections. Such funds may not be used for any purpose with respect to which the preceding sentence relates beyond fiscal year 1996.

SEC. 510. The Office of Personnel Management may, during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, accept donations of supplies, services, land and equipment for the Federal Executive Institute, the Federal Quality Institute, and Management Development Centers to assist in enhancing the quality of Federal management.

SEC. 511. The United States Secret Service may, during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, accept donations of money to off-set costs incurred while protecting former Presidents and spouses of former Presidents when the former President or spouse travels for the purpose of making an appearance or speech for a payment of money or any thing of value.

SEC. 512. None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to withdraw the designation of the Virginia Inland Port at Front Royal, Virginia, as a United States Customs Service port of entry.

SEC. 513. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available to pay the salary for any person filling a position, other than a temporary position, formerly held by an employee who has left to enter the Armed Forces of the United States and has satisfactorily completed his period of active military or naval service and has within ninety days after his release from such service or from hospitalization continuing after discharge for a period of not more than one year made application for restoration to his former position and has been certified by the Office of Personnel Management as still qualified to perform the duties of his former position and has not been restored thereto.

SEC. 514. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to provide any non-public information such as mailing or telephone lists to any person or any organization outside of the Federal Government without the approval of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

SEC. 515. COMPLIANCE WITH BUY AMERICAN ACT.—No funds appropriated pursuant to this Act may be expended by an entity unless the entity agrees that in expending the assistance the entity will comply with sections 2 through 4 of the Act of March 3, 1933 (41 U.S.C. 10a-10c, popularly known as the "Buy American Act").

SEC. 516. SENSE OF CONGRESS; REQUIREMENT REGARDING NOTICE.—(a) PURCHASE OF AMERICAN-MADE EQUIPMENT AND PRODUCTS.—In the case of any equipment or products that may be authorized to be purchased with financial assistance provided under this Act, it is the sense of the Congress that entities receiving such assistance should, in expending the assistance, purchase only American-made equipment and products.

(b) NOTICE TO RECIPIENTS OF ASSISTANCE.—In providing financial assistance under this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury shall provide to each recipient of the assistance a notice describing the statement made in subsection (a) by the Congress.

SEC. 517. PROHIBITION OF CONTRACTS.—If it has been finally determined by a court or Federal agency that any person intentionally affixed a label bearing a "Made in America" inscription, or any inscription with the same meaning, to any product sold in or shipped to the United States that is not made in the United States, such person shall be ineligible to receive any contract or subcontract made with funds provided pursuant to this Act, pursuant to the debarment, suspension, and ineligibility procedures described in section 9.400 through 9.409 of title 48, Code of Federal Regulations.

SEC. 518. Except as otherwise specifically provided by law, not to exceed 50 percent of unobligated balances remaining available at the end of fiscal year 1996 from appropriations made available for salaries and expenses for fiscal year 1996 in this Act, shall remain available through September 30, 1997 for each such account for the purposes authorized: Provided, That a request shall be submitted to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations for approval prior to the expenditure of such funds.

SEC. 519. Where appropriations in this Act are expendable for travel expenses of employees and no specific limitation has been placed thereon, the expenditures for such travel expenses may not exceed the amount set forth therefore in the budget estimates submitted for appropriations without the advance approval of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations: Provided, That this section shall not apply to travel performed by uncompensated officials of local boards and appeal boards in the Selective Service System; to travel performed directly in connection with care and treatment of medical beneficiaries of the Department of Veterans Affairs; to travel of the Office of Personnel Management in carrying out its observation responsibilities of the Voting Rights Act; or to payments to interagency motor pools separately set forth in the budget schedules.

SEC. 520. Notwithstanding any other provision of law or regulation: (1) The authority of the special police officers of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, in the Washington, DC Metropolitan area, extends to buildings and land under the custody and control of the Bureau; to buildings and land acquired by or for the Bureau through lease, unless otherwise provided by the acquisition agency; to the streets, sidewalks and open areas immediately adjacent to the Bureau along Wallenberg Place (15th Street) and 14th Street between Independence and Maine Avenues and C and D Streets between 12th and 14th Streets; to areas which include surrounding parking facilities used by Bureau employees, including the lots at 12th and C Streets, SW, Maine Avenue and Water Streets, SW, Maiden Lane, the Tidal Basin and East Potomac Park; to the protection in transit of United States securities, plates and dies used in the production of United States securities, or other products or implements of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing which the Director of that agency so designates; (2) The exercise of police authority by Bureau officers, with the exception of the exercise of authority upon property under the custody and control of the Bureau, shall be deemed supplementary to the Federal police force with primary jurisdictional responsibility. This authority shall be in addition to any other law enforcement authority which has been provided to these officers under other provisions of law or regulations.

SEC. 521. Section 5378 of Title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding: "(8) Chief—not more than the maximum rate payable for GS-14."

SEC. 522. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, there is hereby established in the Treasury of the United States, a United States Mint Public Enterprise Fund (the "Fund"): Provided, That all receipts from Mint operations and programs, including the production and sale of numismatic items, the production and sale of circulating coinage, the protection of Government assets, and gifts and bequests of property, real or personal shall be deposited into the Fund and shall be available without fiscal year limitations: Provided further, That all expenses incurred by the Secretary of the Treasury for operations and programs of the United States Mint that the Secretary of the Treasury determines, in the Secretary's sole discretion, to be ordinary and reasonable incidents of Mint operations and programs, and any expense incurred pursuant to any obligation or other commitment of Mint operations and programs that was entered into before the establishment of the Fund, shall be paid out of the Fund: Provided further, That not to exceed 6.2415 percent of the nominal value of the coins minted, shall be paid out of the Fund for the circulating coin operations and programs: Provided further, That the Secretary of the Treasury may borrow such funds from the General Fund as may be necessary to meet existing liabilities and obligations incurred prior to the receipt of revenues into the Fund and the General Fund shall be reimbursed for such funds by the Fund within one year of the date of the loan and retain receipts from the Federal Reserve System from the sale of circulating coins at face value for deposit into the Fund; and transfer to the Fund all assets and liabilities of the Mint operations and programs, including all Numismatic Public Enterprise Fund assets and liabilities, all receivables, unpaid obligations and unobligated balances from the Mint's appropriation, the Coinage Profit Fund, and the Coinage Metal Fund, and the land and buildings of the Philadelphia Mint, Denver Mint, and the Fort Knox Bullion Depository: Provided further, That the Numismatic Public Enterprise Fund, the Coinage Profit Fund and the Coinage Metal Fund shall cease to exist as separate funds as their activities and functions are subsumed under and subject to the Fund, and the requirements of 31 USC 5134(c)(4), (c)(5)(B), and (d) and (e) of the Numismatic Public Enterprise Fund shall apply to the Fund: Provided further, That at such times as the Secretary of the Treasury determines appropriate, but not less than annually, any amount in the Fund that is determined to be in excess of the amount required by the Fund shall be transferred to the Treasury for deposit as miscellaneous receipts: Provided further, That the term "Mint operations and programs" means (1) the activities concerning, and assets utilized in, the production, administration, distribution, marketing, purchase, sale, and management of coinage, numismatic items, the protection and safeguarding of Mint assets and those non-Mint assets in the custody of the Mint, and the Fund; and (2) includes capital, personnel salaries and compensation, functions relating to operations, marketing, distribution, promotion, advertising, official reception and representation, the acquisition or replacement of equipment, the renovation or modernization of facilities, and the construction or acquisition of new buildings: Provided further, That the term "numismatic item" means any medal, proof coin, uncirculated coin, bullion coin, or other coin specifically designated by statute as a numismatic item, including products and accessories related to any such medal, coin, or item.

SEC. 523. Section 531 of Public Law 103-329, is amended by inserting, "of the first section", after "adding at the end".

SEC. 524. No funds appropriated by this Act shall be available to pay for an abortion, or the administrative expenses in connection with any health plan under the Federal employees health benefit program which provides any benefits or coverage for abortions.

SEC. 525. The provision of section 524 shall not apply where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term.

SEC. 526. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Administrator of General Services shall delegate the authority to procure automatic data processing equipment for the Tax Systems Modernization Program to the Secretary of the Treasury: Provided, That the Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall have the authority to revoke such delegation upon the written recommendation of the Administrator that the Secretary's actions under such delegation are inconsistent with the goals of economic and efficient procurement and utilization of automatic data processing equipment: Provided further, That for all other purposes, a procurement conducted under such delegation shall be treated as if made under a delegation by the Administrator pursuant to 40 U.S.C. 759.

SEC. 527. RELIEF OF CERTAIN PERIODICAL PUBLICATIONS.—For mail classification purposes under section 3626 of title 39, United States Code, and any regulations of the United States Postal Service for the administration of that section, a weekly second-class periodical publication which—

(i) is eligible to publish legal notices under any applicable laws of the State where it is published;

(ii) is eligible to be mailed at the rates for mail under former subsection 4358 (a), (b), and (c) of title 39, United States Code, as limited by current subsection 3626(g) of that title; and

(iii) the pages of which were customarily secured by 2 staples before March 19, 1989; shall not be considered to be a bound publication solely because its pages continue to be secured by 2 staples after that date.

SEC. 528. None of the funds in this Act may be obligated or expended for employee training that does not meet identified needs for knowledge, skills and abilities bearing directly upon the performance of official duties.

SEC. 529. (a) Prior to February 15, 1996, none of the funds appropriated by this Act may, with respect to an individual employed by the Bureau of the Public Debt in the Washington metropolitan region on April 10, 1991, be used to separate, reduce the grade or pay of, or carry out any other adverse personnel action against such individual for declining to accept a directed reassignment to a position outside such region, pursuant to a transfer of any such Bureau's operations or functions to Parkersburg, West Virginia.

(b) Subsection (a) shall not apply with respect to any individual who, prior to February 15, 1996, declines an offer of another position in the Department of the Treasury which is of at least equal pay and which is within the Washington metropolitan region.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to title V?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. HOYER

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. HOYER:
Amendment No. 6: Strike everything from "Sec. 524" on page 63 line 22 through "term." on line 5 page 64.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOYER. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close in 30 minutes, since we have got this 7 o'clock cutoff that we are supposed to meet here tonight to go to the other provision.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, we had put an hour on this, but I have a lot of Members on my side of the aisle. I would agree to a limitation to 7 o'clock, but I would not want to go further than that.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, that is agreeable. That is fine with me. That way we could finish the amendment up.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman's unanimous consent request is that all debate end by 7 o'clock on this amendment and all amendments thereto?

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. And equally divided on the time.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I agree to this time restraint, notwithstanding the fact this is an issue of great emotional impact and great political interest in this body and throughout the country.

This issue deals with the question of abortion. But I would suggest to the Members of this House, it does not deal with the public funding of abortion and that is the issue on which we have substantial disagreement.

The fact of the matter is, we have carried in this bill for some period of time the issue of the Federal employee health benefit plans. During the last 3 years we struck from the bill a prohibition on the use of funds which the public employees supply to the purchase of their Federal employment health policies.

Now, let me put this in context. There are available to Federal employees approximately 345 health benefit plans. A substantial number of those plans provide for the termination of pregnancy. The choice of whether to secure those plans is that of the employees.

Mr. Chairman, a Federal employee, like private sector employees, is paid three ways in their compensation package. Now, the private sector may have additional. They may have stock options, educational options, training options, all sorts of things of that nature, but essentially a Federal employee has three options.

Those three options are: Salary. A Federal employee is paid X number of dollars as salary.

In addition, the Federal employee is told, if you work for us, part of your compensation package will be the payment of 72 percent of your health care premium, your being the employee's, not the Federal Government's. That is part of the employee's benefit package.

Third, part of that benefit package is their pension; and we make a contribution towards their retirement, of course, as we do on all other Federal and State and local and private sector employees, a FICA contribution since 1983.

Now, what does that mean? That means the employee has, as a compensation package, those three elements. What the amendment that the Chairman has put back, that the committee and full committee has put back in the bill is a provision that again says that none of the funds in this bill may be used to purchase health care insurance which covers the termination of pregnancy, that is, abortion.

Now, again, I said, this is a very controversial and emotional debate. But ladies and gentlemen of this House, this deals with the employee's choice, not the Federal Government's choice. When we had the health care debate in this House, many Members on the other side of the aisle and this side of the aisle said that they believed that individuals ought to have their choice in purchasing their health care program, not the Government's choice, not Members of Congress's choice, but the individual's choice. And because they work for the Federal Government they should have no less rights than any other person who works in America and gets a health care benefit as part of their compensation package, not the Federal Government's.

This is no more Federal money than their salary is. After all, and I would hope that everybody would pay attention, we pay them the salary. That is out of Federal dollars. Are we to say you can't spend that money except in certain ways and only as we choose because that is Federal money? Is that what our position is, that we are going to control their salary dollars?

The Federal employee compensation, health care contribution is their money. This amendment undermines their compensation package. It is wrong. It undermines their own free choice, not of an abortion but of how they spend their money.

I want to tell my friends on that side of the aisle who perceive themselves as conservatives, I would hope that a number of them I see on that side of the aisle who are conservatives, who perceive themselves as conservative—the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON] is pointing to himself. I presume he will vote with me on this amendment. I hope he will.

The fact of the matter is, I perceive conservatives taking the position that really government ought to stay out of, to the greatest extent possible, personal decisions, personal lives. That is how I perceive conservatives, and that you perceive liberals as those who want to get government into people's lives and making decisions for them that you think can be better made by the individual.

I suggest if that is your philosophy you ought to vote with me to strike this language, because you are substituting the Government's decision here for the individual's decision here.

Mr. Chairman, I would urge my colleagues to vote "yes" on the Hoyer amendment to strike this prohibition.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by my friend from Maryland. Basically, what we did in the bill, between 1984 and 1993, language was carried in the bill which prohibited paying for health coverage that included abortions under the Federal Health Benefit Plan. This was changed in 1993 to allow that to happen. Very simply, we took the language out that put that restriction in place, returning us back to the original language which had been in place since 1984.

At this point in time, the issue I think boils around should we force taxpayers to pay for something to which there is a great deal of opposition. I think we can argue this thing for hours, and we are not going to change some people's positions on the issue one way or the other. And I certainly understand that and respect people who feel very strongly on both sides of the issue.

But because it is a controversial issue, I believe that is why the original language was put in place back in 1984 which basically said that we would not, through any taxpayer funds, be funding abortions. In essence, as I have mentioned, we are just going back to that original language. That is all we did.

There is concern, I understand, from a number of my colleagues, and quite frankly I share their concern, that the language says that it is only in the case of the life of the mother. It does not include the incest and rape provision that is in what we have come to know as the Hyde amendment.

Unfortunately, to put that language in becomes legislating on an appropriations bill. We are very loathe to do that sort of thing, and we have never carried that language in this bill. So that is the reason it is not in there.

I would say to my colleagues who feel very strongly that that should be part of it, that I agree with them and would work during conference to try to get that language included as well.

Just a brief history on the situation, if you look at how FEHB works, perhaps some enlightenment to those who don't participate in the plan is in order. It is a private insurance system. The Federal Government has a set of private companies who offer insurance to Federal employees. All of us who work for the Federal Government get a list of 25 or 30 insurance companies, and we can select from those companies which one we want to provide our coverage, and we pay the premiums and so on.

In 1995, there were 345 insurance companies under the Federal Employee Health Benefit Plan. Abortion coverage was offered by 178 of them. Not quite half.

Since taxpayer money comes in to make up the Government's matching part of the premium and is used for the Government's matching part of the premium, a portion of this premium is also paid out of the employee's pocket, which obviously they have the right to do with whatever they want to do.

There have been attempts, I think, to compromise on the issue allowing Federal employees to pay for the abortion coverage themselves.

The biggest problem we had, and I offered to work with the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY] on that, is that it will not work for the simple reason that OPM indicates insurance companies would charge a high price for the coverage, almost as high as the cost of the abortion itself, since the companies would assume that the only employees likely to use it would want it. That means that the only viable option is that contained in this bill which says a Federal employee who wants an abortion would have to pay for it themselves.

The bill prohibits any insurance company from offering abortion coverage under FEHB unless the life of the mother is threatened. It is the same language, again, that was carried from 1984 up until 1993 when insurance coverage for abortions was reinstated after having been banned over that period of years.

I think it is a grave matter of personal conscience. I would urge Members to think this through carefully to try to take the emotion out of the argument, which is difficult to do, but I think it is necessary to do, and oppose the amendment, and really allow us just to return our bill back to what has been in place since 1984.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I thank my good friend for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, I urge Members to vote no on the Hoyer amendment, which would gut the every effective language that was put into the legislation by the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LIGHTFOOT]. Let me just remind Members, as the chairman pointed out so well, the language that is in the bill was current law throughout the 1980's and into the 1990's, but regrettably during the last Congress we were unable to get the language put back into the appropriations bill so we began paying for abortion on demand as part of the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program.

Mr. Chairman, I think it is becoming increasingly clear by way of public opinion polls, by way of the kind of feedback that we are all getting from our home districts, that people do not want to subsidize abortion on demand, they do not want taxpayer funds or premium funds being used to subsidize for willful killing of unborn children simply because they are inconvenient, simply because it is a matter of a birth control abortion or for some other reason.

Make no mistake about it. The Hoyer amendment, if it succeeds, would usher in abortion on demand at any time during the pregnancy, and we would have situations where babies are literally dismembered or chemically poisoned simply because we were subsidizing and providing the wherewithal to kill those babies.

Taxpayers do not want any part of this. Let me make that clear. We saw with the national health care reform debate last year, which unfortunately never happened because all of us heard from our constituents that they did not want to provide premium dollars or tax dollars for this grisly business.

Let me remind Members, too, that as part of the Federal employees health benefits plan taxpayers foot approximately 70 percent of the contribution. I think everyone knows that Federal employees, including Members of Congress, do not pay the whole freight, if you will, the entire bill when it comes to our Federal Employees Health Benefits Program.

An overwhelming amount of it, 70 percent, 72 percent to be exact, is footed by the taxpayer. So this is a government-taxpayer-funded issue, not unlike the Hyde amendment. So I would remind Members that if they are for the Hyde amendment they have to be against the Hoyer amendment and for the underlying language that Chairman LIGHTFOOT put in.

You know, I think it is becoming increasingly clear as well, Mr. Chairman, and the fight and debate that is going on in the Committee on the Judiciary on the partial birth abortion whereby children are literally almost completely born only to be killed by the abortionist by sucking the brain out of the baby. And this goes on. And those who accuse those of us on this side of trying to inflame or in any way emotionalize this issue, it is the pro-abortion side, I would submit, that has to apologize or at least explain why they do this kind of violence, why they inflict this kind of violence on unborn children.

Well, the dirty secret of the abortion movement itself are the methods themselves, the chemical poisonings that go on, the injections of high concentrated salt solutions that literally pickle the baby alive inside the mother's uterus, usually takes about 2 hours for the baby to die. It is a very slow and gruesome death. The child swallows, gulps the salt-filled amniotic water, the water inside the amniotic sac, to die a very cruel death.

That is what we would subsidize if we go with the Hoyer amendment, because saline abortions are done in those HMO's and in those hospitals and under the auspices of the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program.

We would also be subsidizing the dismemberment of unborn children, again, the dirt secret of the abortion movement, a child literally dismembered, arms, legs, torso, head, completely cut.

Nobody wants to talk about that. People roll their eyes and say we are bringing emotion into this. These are the plain facts of what abortion does to a baby.

It is violence. We need to be providing positive, nonviolent alternatives to women who have distressful pregnancies, not providing and facilitating by way of taxpayer dollars the killing of their unborn children.

Let me also point out that the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program does not distinguish between lower and upper income employees. Without the Lightfoot language, taxpayers subsidize most of the costs of all Federal employees and their families, even those making over $100,000, so we would be paying for abortions for them as well.

I want to just conclude by reminding Members unborn children are not wants, a pregnancy is not a disease, and if we go with Mr. HOYER's amendment we will be saying that if a child, simply because he or she is inconvenient or unwanted, we will provide the where-withal, we will provide the means, the money to have that child destroyed.

Reject the Hoyer amendment, it is anti-child, and support the underlying language of the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LIGHTFOOT].

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, for the information of the Members, it appears, because of the leadership on the majority side's desire to move toward a decision on the issue regarding the audit report tonight, that we would like to conclude this debate tonight and resume tomorrow morning, so that it would be our intention not to further debate this issue tonight. That is my understanding; that is the chairman's intention as well. Quite obviously, we are waiting for our leaderships to get here because they want to get to that issue, and I know their interest is to get Members out in a timely fashion this evening. We are prepared to do that. I have discussed that with the chairman. They are not here at this point in time. I presume they will be here shortly.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the unanimous-consent agreement we can proceed with debate until that time.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume. Let me follow up on my previous statement.

Mr. Chairman, we are going to have a number of people talk about this issue. The gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH] just talked. Mr. SMITH and I are very close friends. We have a disagreement on this issue, and it is an issue on which he is a very, very sincere advocate, an able advocate, and deeply convicted advocate of his position. I think his position is a position that is intellectually and morally very defensible, period. I have no quarrel with him on that.

I do, however, make the suggestion again that in this context the gentleman is placing Federal employees in a position that no other employees in America are placed in, and that is:

"If you work for General Motors, you get a health care plan, and you choose a policy if you have alternatives. Now, you happen to have, as a Federal employee, more alternatives than you have perhaps at General Motors. But the fact of the matter is that is perceived as your compensation package, your money, your selection of the insurance policies."

Mr. Chairman, this is not about the Federal Government, and Medicare, and Medicaid paying for an abortion. It is about giving to an employee compensation in the form of a health care contributions to the purchase of an insurance policy. That employee then applies to his or her choice.

Now, just as we, the Federal Government, pays FICA, that is then mine or pays my salary. It is mine or pays my retirement. That is then vested. They cannot take it back from me. This is not their choice of where it goes. This health care benefit is theirs. It is HENRY HYDE's. It is STENY HOYER's. It is JIM LIGHTFOOT's. It is whoever's. It is ours, and we then apply that looking through the list of what policy do I want to purchase? It is not the Federal Government making that choice for us. It is not the Federal Government buying that policy.

Yes, it is Federal dollars. But as I said before my friends got to the floor, the dollars that we are paid in salary are Federal dollars. I ask, "Are we to be then told that, look, those are Federal dollars, and you can't spend them except in a fashion with which we, the Federal Government, agree?" I asked that question rhetorically, but I am wondering if there is a response to it.

Those dollars are the dollars of our employees, not ours, not our dollars, and that is, I respectfully suggest to my good friends, the significant difference between this and the issue of Medicaid, or Medicare, or some other program where the Federal Government actually pays for the services rendered.

Now, I know the deep convictions are that anything that might further the objective is objectionable itself. I understand that. I think that is a fair argument, and I understand that position. It is a position with which I disagree, but not that I lack respect for.

Mr. Chairman, I am hopeful that, as the debate develops tomorrow, that Members will have the opportunity to see the difference between this issue raised on this bill, and the issue raised in the Labor-Health bill, and that difference will be seen as dollars of the employee as opposed to the dollars of the Federal Government.

Yes, the source is the same, but the ownership is different. The ownership is significantly different.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Nevada [Mrs. VUCANOVICH].

Mrs. VUCANOVICH. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in opposition to the amendment offered by Mr. HOYER. This amendment would strike the language in H.R. 2020 that would prohibit the use of funds to pay for abortion or to be used for administrative expenses in connection with any health plan under Federal employees health benefit program. This program provides coverage for abortion, except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term. Currently, the American taxpayer bears the burden of providing almost 72 percent of the funds used to purchase health insurance for Federal Employees. That again raises the question: "Should the Federal Government be in the business of funding abortions?" The answer is, of course, no.

The Federal Government does not need to provide funding for abortion coverage in basic health coverage for Federal employees. Abortion is usually not considered part of basic health insurance coverage. Even the Nation's largest provider of individual and group health insurance Mutual of Omaha, specifically excludes all elective abortions from its coverage.

Perhaps some here feel that abortion should be covered because it is simply another medical procedure, much like removing an unwanted tumor or wart. However, the Supreme Court of the United States has said that the Government can distinguish between abortion and "other medical procedures" because "abortion is inherently different from other medical procedures. No other procedure involves the purposeful termination of a potential human life."

At a time when 70 percent of Americans oppose Federal funding of abortion it is appropriate for Congress to uphold the sanctity of life and limit Federal funding of abortion. I urge my colleagues to vote "no" on the Hoyer amendment.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. FARR].

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the Hoyer amendment and in support of the basic right of women to choose, regardless of whether they work in the private sector or they serve in the Federal Government as public servants.

We all are well aware of the fact that the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in Roe versus Wade that a woman's right to a safe and legal abortion is constitutionally guaranteed. This is the law of the land. The provision of the bill that my colleagues and I seek to strike would single out Federal employees and prohibit them from choosing a health care policy which provides a full range of reproductive health services including abortion.

What you may not realize is that currently two-thirds of private fee-for-service plans and 70 percent of health maintenance organizations provide abortion coverage. As most insurance plans today provide coverage for reproductive health care including abortion, to deny Federal health benefit participants this health service is harmful to women's health.

Mr. Chairman, this is not a pro-choice or pro-life issue, it is an issue of discrimination. This provision blatantly discriminates against women who work for the Federal Government, singling them out and denying them the same access to safe reproductive health care that non-Federal workers in State, local, and the private sector would receive.

This is an issue of basic fairness and equity, Mr. Chairman. Fairness to our Nation's public servants who wake up every day and work to serve their country. These women deserve the same quality of care that non-Federal employees have access to every day. These women pay into their health insurance plans, such as Blue Cross-Blue Shield or Aetna just like women in the private sector. The difference would be that these women, unlike women in the private sector, would not receive coverage for abortion. Excluding abortion procedures is taking away part of the medical coverage that thousands of Americans currently have. Are we going to treat these hard-working women as second-class citizens because they are employed by the Federal Government? I hope not.

I urge my colleagues to join me in standing up today in support of women's rights—in support of women's health—let's strike this blatantly discriminatory and harmful provision in the bill.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. BARTLETT].

(Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong opposition to the amendment offered by my good friend and colleague from Maryland [Mr. HOYER]. This is a very simple and straightforward issue. Should the taxpayers and people who are conscientiously opposed be forced to pay for and subsidize abortion on command?

Mr. Chairman, the Congress and the Supreme Court have been very clear on this issue. This amendment flies in the face of the Hyde amendment which this Congress has, on several occasions, upheld which simply says that the Federal Government should not be in the practice of funding abortions with taxpayer money. In upholding the Hyde amendment, the court has said that, and I quote:

Abortion is inherently different from other medical procedures because no other procedure involves a purposeful termination of a potential life.

Let us not fund abortion on demand with taxpayer money. Let us not force those who are conscientiously opposed to pay for these abortions.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mrs. LOWEY].

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, currently, Federal employees, like other American workers, are permitted to choose a health care plan that covers the full range of reproductive health services. The new majority wants to change that and take American women backward. This is one of the first steps in the radical right's campaign to eliminate the right to choose.

The issue before us today is whether or not this House will allow American women the freedom to choose a private health insurance plan that includes coverage of abortion.

The Hoyer amendment is about giving American women options—of the 345 FEHBP plans, just about half—178—currently cover abortion. If women want to participate in a plan that covers abortions they can. If they find abortion objectionable they can belong to a plan that doesn't cover abortion. The choice is theirs—not mine—and not this institution's.

This is the status quo—and unless we approve Mr. HOYER's amendment, this House will be taking away health care coverage that Federal employees currently have. There are 1.2 million women of reproductive age who rely on FEHBP for their medical care—1.2 million American women who would lose the right to choose if the Hoyer amendment isn't adopted.

In fact, the provision that Mr. HOYER seeks to strike is so extreme that it doesn't even allow FEHBP plans to cover abortions in the case of rape and incest.

So if you are a Federal employee and you have been raped and become pregnant, the new majority says that you cannot use your own private insurance to have an abortion. That is an outrage.

Basic women's health care includes the full range of reproductive health services, including abortion. We should not be singling this procedure out. I urge my colleagues to support the Hoyer amendment.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes, as we continue the tour of the East Coast, to the gentleman from Maryland [Mrs. MORELLA].

(Mrs. MORELLA asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment by the gentleman from Maryland.

From 1983 to 1993, Congress limited the coverage of abortion services under FEHBP, except in cases in which the life of the woman was at risk. In the fiscal year 1994 Treasury-Postal appropriations bill, we finally restored the coverage that had been provided to most of the rest of this country's work force through their health insurance plans. Today, this bill once again denies this health coverage to Federal employees.

The coverage of abortion services in Federal health plans does not mean that abortions are being subsidized by the Federal Government. Currently, the Government simply contributes to the premiums of Federal employees in order to allow them to purchase private health insurance. Abortion services do not add to the cost of an insurance plan; the additional cost amounts to a few cents per month to cover the cost of administration.

The bill's provision is all the more inequitable because it does not even cover abortions in the case of rape and incest, coverage provided under the Medicaid program and the Hyde amendment. If the funding ban is reinstated, Federal employees will have to pay for abortions with their own money, even in the cases of rape and incest.

Thousands of Federal employees have incomes below or close to the Federal poverty line. For these workers, the cost of an abortion would be a significant hardship, interfering with a woman's constitutionally protected right to choose. And it discriminates against Federal employees.

Mr. Chairman, the Hoyer amendment simply restores the rights of Federal employees to the same health care services covered by most private sector health plans. I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. EMERSON. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in opposition to the Hoyer amendment. The Federal Government should not be in the business of funding abortions nor should taxpayers be forced to underwrite the cost of abortions for Federal employees.

The Federal Government currently contributes approximately 72 percent of the money toward the purchase of health insurance for its employees. Thus, taxpayers do provide a majority share of the funds to purchase health insurance for the Federal civilian work force. If this amendment were adopted the American taxpayers would be forced to underwrite the costs of abortion for Federal employees. In addition to taxpayer funds paying for abortions, premiums contributed by conscientiously opposed Federal employees will also be used to subsidize abortion on demand.

Abortion is not just another form of "routine health care". In upholding the Hyde amendment, the Supreme Court has said that the Government can distinguish between abortion and "other medical procedures." The court said, "Abortion is inherently different from other medical procedures, because no other procedure involves the purposeful termination of a potential life."

Mr. Chairman, the language that Mr. LIGHTFOOT incorporated into this bill which would prohibit OPM from allowing Federal employee health insurance plans to cover abortion, except when the mother's life is at stake should remain a part of the Treasury, Postal Service appropriation bill as it has from 1984 through fiscal year 1993, and this amendment should be defeated.

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the Hoyer amendment to strike the language that prohibits Federal employees from choosing health care plans that include abortion services.

This is the latest in a series of assaults on a woman's right to choose. The consequence of this assault, like the others being pursued through the appropriations process, is to leave women's rights under Roe versus Wade hollow—and effectively repeal of those rights without directly reversing the Supreme Court's decision.

Earlier this spring, the House passed a ban on privately funded abortions in military hospitals overseas. Then came the provision preventing international family planning organizations from using their own funds to provide abortions. Now the assault continues with a ban on abortion services for Federal employees.

One ban after another—choice opponents are on their way to rolling back a woman's right to choose.

This is a discriminatory change from current policy. Choice opponents in the Congress are now singling out Federal employees to restrict a constitutional right. This is not about Federal funding—employee's own salaries are being withheld. It is about infringing upon employees' rights to bargain for their own benefits.

Congress has no place obstructing private insurance companies from offering services that are necessary to women's health. At least two-thirds of private health insurance plans currently include coverage for abortions.

Prohibiting Federal employees from choosing insurance plans that offer abortion services endangers their health. The question for our House colleagues is whether they can justify limiting Federal employees' constitutionally protected rights and limiting their health care options simply because these women receive benefits through the Federal Employees Health Benefits Plan. I strongly believe we cannot.

Today's vote is part of a larger agenda to roll back a woman's right to choose without directly reversing Roe versus Wade. This provision hurts Federal employees, and I urge my colleagues to vote for equal rights and health services for Federal employees and their dependents.

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HOYER] which would strike the bill's provisions prohibiting the use of funds to pay for abortions under the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program [FEHBP].

The Republican majority seeks to return us to the nefarious policy adopted during the Reagan/Bush years where women enrolled in FEHBP were denied access to the full range of legal reproductive health options that are available to women enrolled in private sector health plans. Two years ago, that policy was rightfully put to an end by the Clinton administration which determined that the participating plans and enrollees should be free to make the choices concerning the availability and access to abortion coverage.

Today, no participating health plan is forced to cover abortions, and no participating employee or annuitant is forced to join a plan that covers them. The Office of Personnel Management allows each plan decide on its own whether to provide abortion coverage. This year, only 178 of 345 participating plans do. FEHBP participants have the option of choosing from among the wide variety of plans available the one which best meets their health care needs.

Sections 524 and 525 of this bill will limit the reproductive choices available to women covered by FEHBP. I support their elimination and urge adoption of the Hoyer amendment.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to vacate the previous unanimous-consent agreement limiting debate on this amendment, that there be 80 minutes of debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto, and that the time be equally divided and controlled by myself and the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HOYER] tomorrow when the committee resumes its sitting on this bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise. The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. RIGGS) having assumed the chair, Mr. DREIER, chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2020) making appropriations for the Treasury Department, the U.S. Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain independent agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

PROVIDING FOR ADDITIONAL AUDITING BY HOUSE INSPECTOR GENERAL

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged resolution (H. Res. 192) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 192

Whereas on January 4, 1995, the House of Representatives voted 430-1, that "during the One Hundred Fourth Congress, the Inspector General, in consultation with the Speaker and the Committee on House Oversight, shall coordinate, and as needed contract with independent auditing firms to complete, a comprehensive audit of House financial records and administrative operations, and report the results in accordance with Rule VI," [House Resolution 6, Section 107];

Whereas on July 18, 1995, the House Inspector General in cooperation with the independent auditing firm presented the findings of the first-ever audit of the House of Representatives under the provisions of the House Resolution;

Whereas this first-ever audit included both the financial and administrative functions of the House, representing a wide range of activities;

Whereas the audit does not reach conclusions in all areas due in part to a "method of accounting underlying the preparation and dissemination of financial management information [that] was simplistic and ill-suited for an organization the size of the House," [Report of Independent Accountants, July 18, 1995];

Whereas "In addition to the deficiencies in accounting and reporting, and in information systems, there are other weaknesses in the House's internal control structure...the severity of these weaknesses affects the reliability of the financial statements, because in the absence of an effective internal control structure, there can be no assurance that all House transactions were properly recorded, accumulated and reported in accordance with the rules, policies and procedures of the House," [Report of Independent Accountants, July 18, 1995];

Whereas it is the sense of the House, including the leadership of both parties, that a followup audit should be completed to further examine the transactions and reports contained therein; and

Whereas the House Inspector General, a nonpartisan appointee who was selected by the former majority and retained by the current majority, has requested and should be given resources necessary to complete this followup audit: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Inspector General is authorized and directed to take such steps as necessary to carry out any additional auditing required to ensure the completion of the audit of House financial and administrative operations authorized during the One Hundred Fourth Congress by House Resolution 6, Section 107.

SEC. 2. The Inspector General shall complete such additional auditing expeditiously, but in no case later than November 30, 1995.

SEC. 3. The Committee on House Oversight of the House of Representatives shall have the authority to prescribe regulations and to authorize the expenditure of additional funds from the appropriate House accounts as may be required to fully ensure the final completion of the comprehensive audit of House financial and administrative operations.

SEC. 4. The results of such auditing shall be submitted in accordance with House Rule VI, clause 3(d) which provides "simultaneously submitting to the Speaker, the majority leader, the minority leader, and the chairman and ranking minority party member of the Committee on House Oversight a report on each audit conducted under this rule."

SEC. 5. The results of such auditing, shall to the extent appropriate, be reported by the Inspector General in accordance with House Rule VI, clause 3(e) which provides "reporting to the Committee on Standards of Official conduct information involving possible violations of any Member, officer, or employee of the House any rule of the House or any law applicable to the performance of official duties or the discharge of official responsibilities which may require referral to the appropriate Federal or State authorities pursuant to clause 4(e)(91)(C) of rule X."

Mr. ARMEY (during the reading). Mr. Speaker I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. ARMEY] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. GEPHARDT], the distinguished minority leader, for purposes of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, pending that, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from California [Mr. THOMAS], be allowed to control my 30 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Washington [Ms. DUNN], a member of the Committee on House Oversight.

Ms. DUNN of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, in keeping with the theme of the 104th Congress, we are today keeping another promise we made to the American people. That promise is a commitment to openness and to reform, to let the Sun shine in on the internal operations of the House of Representatives.

As promised, the results of the first audit ever done in the U.S. House of Representatives by the independent nonpartisan firm of Price Waterhouse have been revealed, and, as expected, the auditors found that during a single 15-month time period, from October 1993 to December 1994, the Congress squandered millions of taxpayer dollars because of poor management practices, inefficiencies, and waste in all House operations. Corrective steps recommended by the auditors will help the Congress save the taxpayers over $20 million. We have already begun instituting some of those reforms.

Mr. Speaker, the legislation before us for a further forensic audit will help ensure that never again will this honorable institution become a casualty in the course of Members conducting the people's business with the public's money.

We are acting decisively to restore the American people's faith in this institution. Taxpayers deserve full disclosure, and they are finally getting it. They deserve full accountability, and they are finally getting it. They deserve to have their Representatives take responsibility for the way things are run in Congress, and in the 104th Congress, Mr. Speaker, they are finally getting it. And from now on, they always will.

Mr. Speaker, when the auditors cannot even deliver an opinion because financial records were so inadequate or incomplete, we have got a problem. I was told at today's Committee on House Oversight meeting that in the private sector this type of finding of no opinion by the auditors is unheard of. What a shame.

I applaud the bipartisan work of the House leadership, Mr. Speaker, of the Inspector General and the auditors, and I am very pleased to support this bill.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. EHLERS], the vice chairman of the Committee on House Oversight.

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Speaker, I have not been in Congress a long time. I was elected approximately a year and a half ago in a special election. But it took a very short time after my arrival to realize that there was something wrong with the way the books of the House were kept.

I have always insisted on keeping track of the finances in my office during my years in the legislature in Michigan, and I tried to do the same here, and found I simply could not get the answers I needed from the Finance Office.

It is clear that some action had to be taken. I am delighted that at the beginning of this Congress, we passed a resolution virtually unanimously, 430 votes to 1 vote, we passed a resolution asking for an independent outside audit from a major accounting firm.

Today we received the report from the auditor, and the auditor's opinion was that he had no opinion. He could not state an opinion because the House books were in such a mess that he could not conclude whether there had been anything done wrong, any misdeeds performed, or whether the books in fact balanced.

This is a more serious indictment than we expected, and certainly has to be dealt with. The auditor may not have an opinion, but I certainly have an opinion, and my opinion is that we have to straighten this out and straighten it out soon. I am very pleased that the Committee on House Oversight under the chairmanship of the gentleman from California [Mr. THOMAS] has taken action, and we plan to straighten the House books out as soon as possible.

Furthermore, and this resolution speaks to that, we will maintain them in order. We will insist on regular outside audits to make sure that the House books continue to be in order from henceforth.

I think it is incumbent upon us to do that. There is a matter of public accountability. We are responsible to the people of the United States for the money we expend, and we have insisted on the various departments of our Government giving us accountability for the money that we allocate to them. At the very least, we as a House must have accountability to ourselves and to the public for the money that we spend for the operation of this august institution.

I speak strongly in favor of adopting the resolution, and ensuring not only that we straighten out the House books, but also that they will remain in good condition from henceforth.

Mr. Speaker, I pledge to my constituents, I pledge to our colleagues, and I pledge to my colleagues on the Committee on House Oversight, to do everything I can to assist in this effort by the Committee on House Oversight to ensure that the House can be proud of the financial operation of its own affairs.

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this resolution. Obviously, I have co-authored it with the distinguished majority leader. As you know, this resolution directs the inspector general of the House to continue certain aspects of the audit in those areas where Price Waterhouse auditors have recommended further examination.

I join in the introduction of this resolution to fulfill the promise of the audit and to ensure that all questions raised in the course of the audit are fully and completely answered. I urge all Members to support this resolution.

As has been made clear in the audit, the systems and procedures of the House during the audit period were outdated and incomplete. This occurred even though for the entire period of the audit the House Finance Office was under the direction of the non-partisan administrator picked by Speaker Foley, Mr. Michel, the minority leader, and myself, in a bipartisan way.

The auditors found that the financial information available to them simply did not provide explanations for all transactions and procedures they reviewed. As a result, the auditors were unable to draw final conclusions about certain transactions and procedures.

The auditors themselves have recommended that the House undertake a further review to resolve these differences. The passage of this resolution will accomplish this. The resolution directs the inspector general to finish the work and to reach the conclusions that are necessary to determine if any further action by any relevant House committee is required.

Under the resolution, the inspector general will report no later than November 30 of this year the results of his further review. These reports will be referred to the relevant House committees for appropriate action. This is the right course of action for the House. Any other approach would result in the premature release of information that is incomplete, and, worse, potentially misleading. If the auditors themselves found the information inconclusive, how can Members be expected to be able to explain the questions remaining in the audit?

As the Speaker and I stated in our "Dear Colleague" letter circulated today, we believe that many of the areas of concern identified by the auditors can be explained as products of the inadequate systems and procedures of the House. I believe that this further review will result in additional improvements to the management of the operations of the House. This is the reason that 434 Members of the House voted to undertake this audit in the first place.

We must allow the audit to be completed as it was intended. I urge all Members to vote in favor of this resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the distinguished gentleman from California [Mr. FAZIO], distinguished ranking member of the Committee on House Oversight.

Mr. FAZIO of California. Mr. Speaker, as I said earlier today in the committee meeting, and I reiterate now, I fully support the effort that we are completing the first phase of here today. I was obviously one of the many Members who supported it on January 4, and I feel very strongly that this first effort independent audit, the audit of the finances and the administration of the operations of the House, has been conducted in a very effective way. The IG, Mr. John Lainhart, is deserving of our thanks and appreciation. He has taken his full responsibility and worked ably, with the accounting firm of Price Waterhouse, to complete these documents that have been made available to all Members and to the public today.

The gentleman from California [Mr. THOMAS] and the Republican leadership deserve credit for giving the House the impetus to move aggressively to identify ways in which we can improve our business operations by adopting modern management policies and practices as is applicable elsewhere in the private and the public sector.

I personally want to commend Mr. THOMAS, my colleague and good friend, as ever, and the IG for the manner in which this work has been conducted. It is open. It is fair. And it is bipartisan. And that, I think, is the way in which we need to continue this work as we move on to the next segment, which is the purpose of the resolution offered here today.

Let me also say, as an appropriator who has dealt with these matters over a number of years, I have long sought many of the objectives that are included in the work of the inspector general and of this audit.

The resolution assures the American people that upon conclusion of this audit by the IG, they will have 100 percent public accountability for the expenditure of House funds. And to do that, we must have a picture of the House business practices which fully, fairly and accurately portrays the way in which Members dedicate their resources to representing their constituents.

Although the resolution provides for a reporting deadline not later than November 30, I fully expect the inspector general will file his report as soon as possible. Let me say, I would hope that it could be done by the August recess. I will do everything I can personally do to give the IG whatever resources, human and financial, he needs to complete this more focused audit and to report his findings to the Members of this body and to the public.

We need to finish this first and foremost and then we need to move on to the next audit, which will guide us further as we continue to make changes in the operations of this House.

It is very important to point out, this is, yes, an important baseline audit, but really, the first of many that will come. And we all must learn to deal with this form of self-criticism, because ultimately, it is the only way in which we can make the kind of improvements here that we all seek.

So with that, Mr. Speaker, I urge all Members to unanimously support this resolution. It is the proper way to proceed, one that will get the information that we need to the public and yet protect the legitimate due process that ought to prevail here in the House of Representatives.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. SHAW], who is a CPA.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

I would just like to say that the time has long passed for us to do what this action is calling us to do. We have a sacred trust that is from the people for the taxpayers that they pay into this Government. Accountability is, I think, primary, whether you are talking about ethics or whether you are talking about what we do with the people's money. It is absolutely necessary that all of us be completely accountable for those funds that are entrusted to us. We are at last, I think, brushing away a dinosaur of the past. And that is a dinosaur which did not have accountability here in the House for the funds that we are expending.

I would like to congratulate the leadership on both sides of the aisle for the realization that now the time has come for accountability, that now the time has come to have an independent audit done of the House books.

I would certainly urge a yes vote, as I am sure one is going to come probably without exception, because this is such a commonsense resolution.

Again, I would like to commend the leadership on both sides of the aisle to seeing that this day has finally arrived.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BROWNBACK].

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

I would just like to say, as a freshman Member of Congress, on the opening day of Congress it was my pleasure to be able to carry the bill that started this audit, and it passed 430 to 1 in this institution. I was delighted at that time, as somebody who ran saying the institution needed to open its doors up and let some fresh air in, to see this finally happen.

Getting the audit report out today, I think that is an important step to be taking. I think it is important that we take this on forward and that we make real changes and real improvements in this institution so the American people can feel like it represents them and it is an open institution, that they know what happens with their taxpayer dollars.

So I urge my colleagues to support this motion that is coming forward and that we can carry on this process in giving the people's House back to the people.

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. THOMAS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I think what we have seen here is a continuation of the spirit in which we started this particular Congress.

On opening day we did call for, by resolution, an independent audit. It was virtually unanimous in this House that we move forward with that independent audit. Regardless of the reasons that may have led us to that conclusion, I think everyone here today agrees that it was a positive step. The only regret we all have is that, as outlined in the resolution in several whereas clauses, the books that the independent auditor and the inspector general had to look at where wholly inadequate to coming to some clear and final conclusions about financial transactions over the last 15 months.

This resolution, jointly sponsored by the majority and the minority leader, intends to clarify and rectify those areas of the financial books that the independent auditors were incapable of clarifying. We believe that based upon the representations made to us, the inspector general will be able to resolve the questions that are outstanding. We believe that the system was at fault. There is no reason at this time to try to draw any conclusions at all, given the difficulty of professional auditors in determining with some finality, what occurred.

It would be a service to no one, the American people, Members of this institution, or anyone else, to speculate on what might occur. Rather, the absolute appropriate approach of a House resolution, asking our inspector general to take on what resources are necessary to finalize this audit as soon as possible, but no later than November 30, is not only the appropriate step but really consciously the only one that we can take.

So it is with great pleasure, on a bipartisan note, that we offer for the Members consideration House Resolution 192.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 414, nays 0, not voting 20, as follows:

So the resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RECOGNIZING THE HONORABLE BILL RICHARDSON FOR HIS WORK IN OBTAINING RELEASE OF THE TWO AMERICANS HELD CAPTIVE

(Mr. FATTAH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FATTAH. Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate the gentleman from New Mexico [Mr. RICHARDSON] who is on the floor for his great work and have the House recognize his tremendous deed on behalf of the two Americans who were held captive. He is here. I want the House to extend its appropriate respect for the work of our colleague.

SPECIAL ORDERS

Mr. SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MCINNIS). Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida [Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio [Ms. KAPTUR] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Ms. KAPTUR addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

ADDRESSING AMERICA'S GROWING TRADE DEFICIT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. DEFAZIO] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, today we had the latest in a round of disastrous statistics relating to the United States trade policy. We ran a record 1-month trade deficit for May. We ran a near record with Mexico, over $1.5 billion. We are headed toward a $20 billion trade deficit with Mexico; $3.5 billion with that great bastion of democracy and capitalism, the People's Republic of China, a known terrorist nation, oppressing its own people, putting United States citizens in jail, dealing in nuclear weapons, and yet they still have most-favored-nation status.

What is the response of the new Republican majority, the Republican revolution, those who were going to bring change to Washington, DC? Do they defy the established order, the order that has been imposed in Washington, DC, by Wall Street and the multinational corporations? Are they calling for a change in this disastrous trade policy?

We are headed toward a $170 billion trade deficit this year. If we use our own Commerce Department's statistics, that would mean over 3 million American manufacturing, family-wage jobs will be exported from this country due to unfair foreign trade practices.

True, the Clinton White House, Mickey Kantor, our Special Trade Representative, are complicit in this, also. In fact, they did something probably George Bush could not have done had he been reelected, that is, getting both NAFTA and GATT through the House of Representatives and signed into law.

So we have complicity at the top on both sides, a complicity of silence.

So much of the campaign contributions flow from the corporations that are doing so well, and so few of the campaign contributions flow from the workers and the communities that are being devastated by this trade policy, this export of technology, this export of jobs. It is time to admit that American trade policy is a failure. How can anybody look at a string of annual growing deficits in trade, every billion dollars meaning 20,000 lost jobs here in the United States of America and say this policy is successful?

There is only one major power in the world we run a trade surplus with, and that is Great Britain, because they are crazier about following the edicts of an economist that has been dead more than 200 years, Adam Smith, than we are. They have opened more of their markets and their country to unfair trading practices than even the United States of America has done.

Every other one of our major industry trading partners and our not-so-major trading partners, like Mexico, have figured it out. That is, that you should have a trade policy that creates wealth in your country, you should have a trade policy that raises wages in your country, you should have a trade policy that creates jobs in your country, you should have a trade policy set up so that you do not run annual account deficits to the tune of $160 billion which puts your currency at risk in the world markets.

All of our trading partners have figured that out. The Japanese laugh at the things we do, the so-called concessions that the Clinton administration got on auto parts. Spark plugs still cost $8 in Japan, and the same spark plug produced in the United States of America still costs $1, and you cannot get that $1 spark plug into Japan or into a Japanese engine because they say theirs are different.

They are not any different. What is different is they are protecting their industry, they are protecting their jobs, and we have done nothing to open those markets. The statistics we got today point to the further failure of that policy.

It is time to begin thinking about a new trade policy for this country. I am urging my colleagues to look at and hopefully sign a letter which I am writing to the President, the Speaker of the House, the majority leader of the Senate and the minority leaders on both sides asking that we name a bipartisan commission to review and investigate our trade policy and formulate a policy that make sense as we guide this country into the next century.

Mr. Speaker, we cannot go on forever piling $160 billion trade deficit on $160 billion trade deficit any more than we can go on piling $200 billion national deficit on deficit year in and year out. You have got to get your trade in balance the same way you have got to get your Federal budget in balance. It is time for a change. I urge Members to join me in this effort.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. BALLENGER] is recognized for 5 minutes.

GOP POSTER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. RUSH] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today as a proud member of a body that was created to allow for differences of opinion and stands for the kind of bipartisan debate and discussion that provides for true representation of all Americans.

It is with great sadness and considerable regret that I learned that my Republican colleagues believe that, in this great House, there is room only for their political opinions and their lock-step ideology—an ideology that smacks of racism, antisemitism, and sexism.

And, as evident by the latest GOP fundraising tactic—a liberals "Wanted" poster—this is an ideology that provokes violence and the worst possible kind of hatred.

The Republican Party clearly knows no bounds when it eagerly targets lawmakers like myself and likens us to outlaws and criminals.

How shameful, that in the age of terrorism that has already struck in Oklahoma City and has made a virtual fortress out of the Nation's Capitol, the Republicans have made my picture into a virtual bull's eye that dares any right wing extremist to take aim and to shoot.

I will not allow a bounty to be placed on my head or on the heads of other black, Jewish, hispanic, or female Members of Congress. Those of us whose faces are plastered on the GOP's Wanted poster speak for thousands of Americans who have sent us to these hallowed halls so that their voices will be heard.

And even a gimmick as dirty and as sinister as this poster will not silence our voices.

We will continue to speak out loudly and clearly as the members of the loyal opposition who dare to take issue with Republican cuts in medicare; with Republican proposals to do away with student aid; and with a Republican agenda that seeks to disenfranchise all but the handful of rich fat cats that fill the Republican coffers.

It is with bitter irony that, after spending much of my lifetime as a target of the FBI, the Chicago police department, and others, my face appears on a Wanted poster only after becoming a Member of Congress. And the individuals who put me there are my own colleagues.

I and the American people have seen these Republican scare and divide tactics before. I well remember the days of Watergate and Richard Nixon's enemies list. Now it looks like NEWT GINGRICH and the Republican Party has their own hit list too.

Those of us who are targets of this cheap shot are ready to fight back.

But, ours will be a fair fight.

One that is based on the issues that the American citizens who sent us here care about.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD an editorial from the Buffalo News, as follows:

[From the Buffalo News, July 16, 1995]

NASTY POLITICS FROM PAXON—POSTER TARGETS MINORITIES BUT DEMEANS GOP

The National Republican campaign machine, with a crude "wanted" poster, has identified itself with racial politics again. This time it's a Western New Yorker, Rep. Bill Paxon, coming up with a gimmick that puts an ethnic face on ideas that should be debated on their own merits.

The disproportionate loading of the now-infamous poster with the faces of African-American, Jewish and female members of Congress is hard to read as inadvertent.

The poster says "liberal Democrats" who voted against at least seven out of 10 provisions of the Contract With America are its target. But the pictures below show a group that others might have chosen as demonstrating a positive picture of the diversity of this country—a diversity that is still all too poorly represented in the ranks of Congress.

By Paxon's own statement, more than 170 Democrats "failed the Contract With America test." Yet, of the 28 members pictured, 10 are black and eight are Jewish. Nine also are female.

Those numbers in no way reflect the makeup of the Democratic caucus or Democratic opposition to the contract's regressive, counterproductive provisions.

The poster was released as part of a fund-raising letter by the National Republican Congressional Committee. As head of the committee, Paxon must take full responsibility for its divisive tenor. The Republicans should have learned their lesson after the infamous Willie Horton campaign in 1988 linked the Democratic Party to minorities in a way calculated to frighten white voters. But here, the pattern seems to be repeated.

Paxon, who represents a carefully gerrymandered safe Republican district stretching from Amherst east to Auburn, has little to lose personally no matter what campaign tactics he becomes identified with. But the nation loses when politics sinks to a level that panders to ethnic fears.

The selection of pictures says to the white male voters who increasingly make up the Republican base that the GOP's enemies are the people who don't look like them.

That, in turn, is likely to appeal to the anger many on the economic margin already feel over declining economic opportunities that Republicans want to blame on blacks and women trying to penetrate the job markets.

The incident doesn't say much for Paxon's confidence in the Republican platform or the party's ideology. The Republicans should learn to rely on the power of their ideas to win voters' support.

Paxon and the other party honchos are defending their poster. Instead, they should be acknowledging it as a mistake and backing away from what it implies as fast as they can move.

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak out on something which never should have seen the light of day in our political process—a new low in tactics to raise money to win elections.

As part of a recent fund raising drive, the National Republican Congressional Committee has issued a special "wanted" poster. This poster features pictures of 28 Democrats who it claims to be targeting for defeat because they voted against the Contract With America 70 percent of the time.

Ninety Democrats have similar voting records, yet the Republican wanted poster consists almost entirely of people who are seldom associated with Republican fund raising lists—African-Americans, women, Jewish-Americans, and Hispanics. In fact, only 6 of the 28 targeted Democrats are white men who are not Jewish.

Despite Republican protests to the contrary, this wanted poster is less about raising money than it is about raising the ugly specter of racism, sexism, and antisemitism.

It's all about appealing to the most base elements of human nature. It's all about degrading the opposition with thinly veiled personal attacks. It's all about manipulating the political forces of division and hate.

This wanted poster illustrates how far the party of Lincoln has fallen.

Today's Republican Party has been captured by the forces of extremism and intolerance. Moderate Republican voices are being drowned out by a chorus of right-wing ideologues who are far outside the mainstream of American thinking.

This wanted poster sends several messages.

It says that while Pat Buchanan and David Duke may have failed in their efforts to win national public office, they have won the hearts and minds of the national Republican Party.

It says that Republicans would rather run with Willie Horton than run on the issues.

It says that Republicans are less concerned about controlling illegal immigration than they are about whipping up fear over Hispanics increasing their presence in our communities.

It says that women who stand up for the right to choose should sit down and be silent.

It says that the gay-baiting and bashing openly practiced by Republican leaders in the House and Senate is a deliberate policy, not a slip of the tongue.

Finally, it says that Republicans are willing to inflame the anti-Government sentiment which contributed to the Oklahoma City tragedy instead of reminding people that public service is a noble calling.

The Republican wanted poster demonstrates a dark side of the majority party and their politics. These below-the-belt tactics have no place in this Nation and its body politic.

I think the Republican Party needs a new wanted poster, and here's what it should say: "Wanted—Tolerance. Civility. Moderation. Inclusion. If found, please apply to the Republican National Congressional Committee for reward."

Mr. Speaker, bigotry belongs in the trash bin of American history, not in the envelopes of Republican fund raising letters.

It's time for those who instigated this effort to recognize their mistake and apologize to the people who they attacked and withdraw this shameful effort.

It's time for them to pledge to the American people that it will never happen again.

And it's time for them to heed the words of President George Washington who wrote that our Government should be one which " * * * gives bigotry no sanction; to persecution no assistance."

AUDIT OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BROWNBACK] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. Speaker, on the opening day of this Congress, January 4, there were a number of needed reforms that were passed in this institution. One was an audit of the House of Representatives. In looking back on that period of time, we were talking then about, well, when was the last time that the institution of the House of Representatives, the People's House, had been audited?

We looked back and we looked back and we looked back and found out it had never been audited before ever in the history of the institution. It is about time, and that audit was released today. A number of us as freshmen Members coming into this body had asked for and pushed for reforms of Congress, that the Congress itself had grown imperial and aloof.

One of those things that it had failed to have done was audit itself. It asked for that of all sorts of other institutions, both public and private, but not of itself.

Mr. Speaker, the closet doors were thrown open today with the audit coming forth, and it revealed many problems of the House of Representatives and skeletons in the closet, such as the recordkeeping was so shoddy and haphazard that our auditor would not suggest any definite conclusion on the reliability of the financial statements. Oversight was so flexible as to be nonexistent. It was anything goes for some Members in the past.

Mr. Speaker, computing services in the House were woefully inadequate for modern security needs, and accounting practices were, in effect, run on an inappropriate cash basis instead of an accrual accounting basis to account for debts and earnings.

Congress must not operate in the dark. A regular, independent audit coupled with the other reforms of the institution will keep this place honest, and we will begin to rebuild the people's faith in this body.

As much as I am disgusted by the results of the audit, I am proud to have carried the bill authorizing the audit to this floor in January. It was a good way to begin the year. The House audit is the first and only comprehensive and independent audit of House operations, something inconceivable in the recent past.

We are committed to regular audits in the future, just like any other institution. It is embarrassing to realize that the executive branch instituted regular audits the year I was born.

Congress in the past has betrayed the public trust. Now we have to ask, and we must ask, to get that public trust back and to earn it back. An audit is one way of doing that. We must push reforms to the next level. We have already instituted a number of the recommendations made by the Price Waterhouse firm that did the auditing. We need to evaluate the remainder of those.

This audit is one of the best indications of real change in the Congress. People sent us here to change government, and we are doing it.

With this audit, Congress has taken steps toward credibility with the American people. Congress must operate in the open. As we legislate openness and accountability for private companies and public institutions, we have to obey these principles ourselves. The old Congress didn't obey these rules.

The auditors found in the last Congress a shocking disregard for financial control, for institutional management, and just pure common sense.

For example, the audit showed that some of the Members overspent their allowances for staff salaries, office expenses, and official mail. It showed Members being paid twice for their travel expenses. If Congress were a business, an auto repair shop, a farm, a bank, well, by the auditors' own statements, they would not be able to get a loan and they would be bankrupt. If it was a public institution, it would have been violating laws since 1990.

It is time that these practices end, and today we finally had the audit that came forward with the information to open the closet doors. This is only a start. We have to continue these reforms. We have to continue to open this body up to the people so that they can look and see and hear and learn what all is taking place.

This is taxpayer dollars, and this is how the people's decisions are being made. We need to continue to open that up. I am very proud that this first big step was taken today, to open up, and now we have to continue to push this forward. We have to aggressively pursue those things that are put forward in this audit to be able to clean up the People's House.

Mr. Speaker, I am happy to hear of this audit coming forward, and I think the American people will be most interested in its findings.

ADMINISTRATION ATTEMPTS TO DESTROY TOBACCO INDUSTRY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. JONES] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, it is clear that Bill Clinton and Dr. Kessler at the FDA did not get the message of the November 8th elections.

The American people do not want more regulations and more government in their lives. They want far less intrusion and far less regulation.

This latest attempt by the administration to destroy the tobacco industry, through a regulatory power grab, is unprecedented and unwarranted.

It is ironic to me, that the Clinton administration wants to classify nicotine as a drug. I think the administration should spend their time and money fighting the illegal drug trade, that is destroying this country instead of being so concerned about a legal product which has been used since the founding of this country.

The Federal Government has consistently used tobacco as their whipping boy, first trying to finance their big government health care plan on the backs of tobacco and now by trying to regulate them to death.

Let me make it clear, no tobacco farmer or tobacco company is encouraging young people to smoke. As a matter of fact the tobacco industry has established programs to encourage young people not to smoke. In many States, it is illegal to sell cigarettes to minors.

The Clinton administration view is that they know what is best for the American people. They believe that Government has an obligation to be our big brother.

This is big brother at its worst. What next, prohibition of alcohol, caffeine, chocolate?

Ladies and gentlemen, adults over 18 make responsible decisions on caffeine, tobacco, and alcohol every day.

The Government has no business in those decisions and the FDA and Commissioner have no authority to classify nicotine as a drug.

The courts have consistently stated that the FDA has no authority to regulate cigarettes and it is time that Kessler end this witch hunt on the tobacco industry and the tobacco farmer.

If Bill Clinton and Dr. Kessler had ever held a real job, they would understand the struggle that family farmers face.

They would understand that the tobacco farmer has to fight the elements and that most farmers work within a small financial margin.

Congress has already levied numerous taxes on tobacco making the farmers' life even more difficult and his ability to make a profit even slimmer.

Again, I call on the administration to stop the witch hunt of the tobacco industry and tobacco farmers and get on with the business of downsizing Government, reducing the debt, and implementing the mandate of the November 8th elections.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida [Ms. BROWN] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Ms. BROWN of Florida addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New York [Mr. FORBES] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Mr. FORBES addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

FIRST AUDIT EVER OF THE PEOPLE'S HOUSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MCINNIS). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. HAYWORTH] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, when I return home to the Sixth District of Arizona and visit with my constituents and talk to them about various issues confronting this body and this Nation, the question always arises: What are you in the Congress doing to take the lead? What differences have you made by example?

Today in this Congress, we reaffirm one of those examples with the announcement of the privately conducted audit of this institution, the first ever, the first in its history finally being completed.

Unfortunately, some of the worst fears of the American people have been confirmed with this report. Because you see, Price Waterhouse, the independent accounting firm with whom we contracted to do the audit, said that the records were so poorly kept that they could not even make an accurate assessment of the problem. What a terrible indictment of the old order, that this, the people's House, had fallen into such disrepair in terms of balancing the ledger books, in terms of keeping track of your money, that the independent accounting firm could not even issue any type of evaluation or accurate opinion. In accounting parlance the worst possible evaluation.

The audit is rife with examples. The House Finance Office, an office which processes $700 million a year in salary and expense checks using handwritten ledgers to keep records. Here in the information age, as we brought the House of Representatives on line and on the Internet through Thomas, as we look to the technological advancements in the computer age, and still in this institution handwritten records. The opportunities for abuse were plentiful. The audit notes bills were paid late, appropriations limits ignored. Little accounting for the property and equipment belonging to this, the people's House, and with the computer program and the computer system that does exist, significant security problems.

Now, be forewarned: It is almost impossible in the course of 6 or 7 months to take this institution and automatically put it on the right track. Certainly more remains to be done, and there may even be a period of time here where we are trying to move from these archaic, unrealistic accounting practices to a fair, honest, and open system. The hard work may still be ahead of us in correcting this as an institution. But I noted with great satisfaction that Members on both sides of the aisle stepped up unanimously I believe, if my math is correct and my recollection correct, to vote for a resolution approving of this audit and carrying on the business at hand.

This morning, during the course of 1-minute, one speaker had the audacity to pooh-pooh, I guess, just put down the audit process. I note with interest the Member voted for this resolution. I appreciate his commitment there. But the fact is that working together, Members of both parties must remake this institution in the image of the American people. Mr. Speaker, we are committed to that.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY'S WANTED POSTER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Georgia [Ms. MCKINNEY] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. MCKINNEY. Mr. Speaker, 30 years ago, a little bit more than 30 years ago, the Republican Party put out a wanted poster, and the day after this poster was put out, our beloved President was assassinated.

Well, old habits die hard. And so now we find that the Republican Party has once again put out a wanted poster. Now, what is it that they expect to happen to the good people who are on this wanted poster, people who are elected by 580,000 people sent here to do a job, and whose main business is to take care of their constituents back home and to make sure that this is indeed a kinder and gentler Nation. But when you put on a wanted poster black folks, women, Latinos, certain white males, and Jews, and you say that these are people who are aiding and abetting President Bill Clinton's big government, what are you really saying? What you are saying to me, it seems, is that there are too many black people in Congress, there are too many Jews in Congress.

There are too many women out of the house, in this House, making public policy. And what is the result of this kind of racist, anti-Semitic, divisive politics? Something happens in the heartland of America, and I can tell you what happens in the heartland of America. I have received hate mail.

This is just a sample of the hate mail that I receive: "Save America. Nigger genocide." Some people do not even have any feelings. They will sign their name. This one says, "You have a hell of a nerve trying to tell the Supreme Court what they can and cannot do. You lousy niggers." I have another one that says, "Definition of a nigger: An extremely vile and heinous, fecal-colored, wild animal that inhabits America's concrete jungles and walks upright on its hind legs, attempting to mimic human behavior." Then another one here: "Niggers destroy America."

It seems that in the quiet of their homes, people find some kind of pleasure in using the word "nigger." Well, you know, I have heard it all my life. It does not bother me. But some people get off using that word "nigger." That is what happens when you try and divide a nation. That is what happens when you try and divide a country. And that is what happens when you put politics above all else and the bottom line above all else and above all people.

American people are smart, though, and there is hope.

I just received this letter from a young woman in Gainesville, FL. She said, "Dear Congresswoman McKinney: I watched you this morning in regards to the idiotic poster the Republican party distributed labeled 'Wanted liberals.' I realize your office has been under attack recently, due to the Supreme Court decision on redistricting and this most recent incident. As a young white female with all of the advantages of growing up in the upper middle-class neighborhood of Gwinnett County, GA, allow me to be the first to say thank you for speaking the truth. The forces trying to tear you apart are the same people who say that they are trying to protect what I have. I have a lovely home, I have a bright future, and I have a blessed life. I do not need protection for what I have. I need to know that other people will grant the opportunity to achieve what I take for granted."

Mr. Speaker, I think the people get the point.

HEARINGS CONCERNING THE BRANCH DAVIDIAN/WACO AFFAIR

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MCINNIS). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BRYANT] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BRYANT of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, tomorrow we begin hearings in this House on the 1993 Waco incident.

Mr. Speaker, ours is a Government of laws, not men. In order to preserve the rules of law, our citizens must be assured that their government, its institutions, its officials, and its law enforcement agents are accountable. Accountability is the key to ensuring public confidence in the system in order for all of us to live well. Confidence in one's government is essential to the long-term survival of that government and to the peaceful life of that government's citizens.

The abuse of power threatens any society. However, a government of laws gives stability to a nation, a state, and a community. The abuse of power is tyranny.

Mr. Speaker, when a sizable portion of our citizens become concerned, even fearful, over a perceived lack of accountability by Federal law enforcement, the time has come that we need to clear the air.

These hearings are intended to be a part, to demonstrate how our system works. The members of these investigating committees seek to ascertain the truth. We seek to restore the confidence of the American people in their government. We seek to discover and explore the events leading up to and including what many consider excessive force by law enforcement. We seek a more complete revelation of the details of the Waco events.

The goal of these hearings is to discover the truth, to seek the answers to unanswered questions that linger, that even have festered since earlier hearings.

The surviving Davidians have been tried in court, which yielded new information and mixed verdicts. With respect to individuals involved on all sides, let the chips fall where they may. Those responsible for breaches of law or policy must be held accountable for their abuses of power.

Only by finding the truth can accountability be secured.

If abuses of the Government power in fact occurred, then we must take what we learn at these hearings and move forward with steps that insure such abuses of Government power will not occur again.

Mr. Speaker, I believe Government has its proper roles. While we do not need or want anarchy, we do not want unlimited Government either, nor do we want agents who breach our constitutional rights or God-given rights.

As a former young State's attorney and Federal prosecutor, I worked closely with Federal law enforcement personnel at all levels of government. I believe the majority of enforcement personnel are honorable and only want to do what is legal and just. These hearings are not intended to bash any law enforcement in general or any agency in particular; at least, that is not my purpose in participating in these hearings.

Individuals make decisions, and individuals should bear responsibility for consequences of their actions. That goes for criminal offenders and those in fiduciary roles of Government.

In the bigger picture, it is my hope these hearings will help to restore the American people's confidence in their Federal Government. This country needs a healing, a renewal.

I look forward to these hearings and to the healing effect that is so needed in this great Nation. Let us do our part to restore the rule of law and the preservation of liberty.

THE TRAGIC CONSEQUENCES OF THE "WANTED" POSTER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Florida [Mrs. MEEK] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I am one of 28 infamous, so-called infamous, people that appeared on the fundraising poster that was put out by Mr. BILL PAXON of the Republican fundraising committee.

It is respectable to be a Republican. There are many good ones who seek only good for all people. There are others who feel that it is not respectable or to be respected to be racist or sexist.

It is truly disgusting what some people would do, Mr. Speaker, to raise political money. Why, in this period of fear and discontent, uncertainty and danger, when the country is still reeling from the Oklahoma City bombing, the unabridged threats and lawless, paranoid, violent people who can only express themselves by killing other people of defaming other people are inflicting pain and suffering? Why in this unsettled and unsettling climate, Mr. Speaker, would someone put another person's picture on a wanted poster that looks like something the FBI would put in a post office?

This kind of thing can bring fear, particularly to a woman's heart who has to walk many times in dark places and dark corners of this country.

The reason why? The National Republican Congressional Committee, under Mr. PAXON, tells us it is to raise money. I do not think that is a good reason, Mr. Speaker. I guess he has concluded that hate sells.

Hate does not sell in this country, particularly when they are trying to separate God's people, those who are black, those who are white, those who are Jewish, those who are female. That is not the way that our Maker would have us go. So hate does not sell.

If that is the case, then I feel sorry for those who feel that that is so. These people feel that it is OK to feed hate and hysteria. They do not mind advancing their cause by making enemies of those who have honest disagreements with them. Yes, I did not vote for the Contract With America. I did not feel that I wanted to vote for many of the concepts of the contract. Therefore, I voted against it.

I was told that was the reason why I was placed on the poster. That could not be further from the truth, in that there were 70 or 80 other people who voted the same way as I did. Yet their faces did not appear on the contract.

What seemed to be the target on the contract, on the poster, were people of African-American descent, people of Jewish faith, and white women. Those are the people who appeared on this poster.

But I want to say that the Republican Party should repudiate the likes of the kinds of ethics and techniques that Mr. PAXON has used. He has not set a great example for this party. This was the party of Lincoln. This was the party that freed the slaves. So certainly this is not a good way to depict what their party stands for.

I have been in the public a long time. I have been through the lynching period. I have been through the civil rights period. I have been through all of these periods of racial hate. But I had to come to the great Congress of the United States to have the kind of hate poster and the hate mail which I have received here.

Do you know why? This kind of thing, coming from the top of the party, sets a climate of lawlessness and hate, and it provides the atmosphere and the climate for people who want to divide this country, to be able to write us here in Congress the kinds of hate mail and to give us the hate kinds of calls, using our ethnicity as a cloak to form their hate.

This wanted poster is not a healthy sign. It is a sick sign. It is as much a reflection of our times as it is a product of people who think in a sick way.

I have got my own wanted poster, Mr. Speaker. I want decent schools for the people in this country, both black and white and otherwise, and I want better education and training for young people. I want a way the senior citizens can get help in their old age and get long-term care. I want that, Mr. Speaker. I want to make sure that parents who buy food for their children, that the meat will have the proper inspection so they can have good health. I want good health for all people of America. I do not want to think this is a color-blind society. I know it is not. But I want everything good for everybody.

I want to assure these older Americans that they will not go bankrupt if they get sick. My wanted poster is out there, Mr. Speaker. My voting record attests to that. It is composed of goals that all of us should work for, not people to search, target, and destroy, because of hateful literature.

I thought that the Republican Party had come much further than Mr. PAXON has taken them, but I guess he wants to revive the old Nixon enemies hit list.

I call on the Republicans of good faith to repudiate what Mr. PAXON has done.

I have all kinds of hate mail. It is so much of it that I just make one or two excerpts from it to show you the kind of things that come from the kinds of things that are happening in the party now, and it is throwing a very bad light on all the rest of us. "Sit down and shut up," as if I were not elected by the people of Florida. They use the "b" word throughout much of this stuff. I cannot mention it in the hallowed hall of this House. They are saying;

We are taking our Nation. We took it with force of arms, defended it with force of arms, and we will take it back with force of arms. You and your filthy species are nothing.

I say to them, my father and my forefathers helped to build this country. I will not take a back seat to anyone. I will continue to voice my opinion on this floor of this House.

They continue to say:

"You are primitive, childish, selfish, petulant, demanding, dependent, arrogant, evil, treacherous creatures regressing to your natural state, Rwanda, Biafra, Somalia, Liberia, South Africa, Mozambique, Ethiopia, Los Angeles, New York, Washington, Atlanta, New Orleans, Miami, that is your legacy. You will pay for what you have done. We are enemies forever. No way around this fact. We cannot and will not coexist with you animals.

I want to say to you, Mr. Speaker, and the rest of this House and the rest of this country, we are God's children like everyone else. We do not have to tolerate this kind of bad literature that comes because it is stirred by the hatred from that poster.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 5 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from North Carolina?

Mr. KINGSTON. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, would the gentlewoman tell us how many other unanimous consent orders there may be tonight?

Mrs. CLAYTON. I would not know. I am only asking for one myself.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman be the last one?

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, there is one other.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I object unless we can get a commitment that this will be the last one, simply because we have the first hour. We would be happy to yield some time in the spirit of dialog, but inasmuch as this is an orchestrated attempt, I do not know that we need to continue.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, we are the last two.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Speaker, I am including in the RECORD following rollcall votes 517 through 525 an indication of how I would have voted had I been present, to be followed with statements submitted for the RECORD.

I was away from Washington at work back in my district today. However, had I been here I would have responded in the following manner for the rollcall votes on House Resolution 1977, Interior Appropriations for Fiscal Year 1996.

Roll call No. 517, Schaefer amendment, "aye"; roll call No. 518, Chabot amendment, "nay"; roll call No. 519, Parker amendment, "nay"; roll call No. 520, Zimmer amendment, "nay"; roll call No. 521, Klug amendment, "aye"; roll call No. 522, Kennedy (MA), "aye"; roll call No. 523, on passage, "nay"; roll call No. 524, ordering the previous question, "nay"; and roll call No. 525, agreeing to the resolution, "aye".

THE MOST WANTED POSTER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mr. McINNIS). Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from North Carolina [Mrs. CLAYTON] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, recently certain elements of the Republican Party published a so-called "Wanted" poster, wherein twenty-eight Democratic Members of Congress were identified as targets.

This callous, insensitive, and abhorrent act is offensive, repulsive, and ugly.

I take this opportunity to use these strong terms because the "Wanted" poster targeted a particular group of Members.

Twenty-two of the twenty-eight Democrats are African-American, Hispanic, Jewish or female.

Apart from those classes of individuals, there was no other rhyme, reason or rational relationship to reasonably put these Members in a group—refer to them as "Wanted"—and lace the poster with language such as aiding and abetting—suggesting that these public servants should be associated with criminal allegations.

I was not on the list, Mr. Speaker, but this act was insulting to me as an American and should be insulting to every American who favors freedom, democracy and the way we function as a Government and as a people.

More than an affront, this act was a very sad deed.

Congressman PAXON claimed that the faces on the "Wanted" poster were chosen because of their voting records.

Another spokesperson claimed that the faces were chosen because of their geographic location.

Still another spokesperson claimed the faces were chosen because they were from areas deemed winnable by Republican strategists.

The fact is that it would appear that little or no thought was given to this disgusting act.

Perhaps this act was driven by the same attitude that created Willie Horton during a recent Presidential campaign.

The fact is that among the faces on the "Wanted" poster are African-Americans, Hispanics, Jewish Americans and women who won their last elections with as much as three-fourths of the vote in their districts.

Few of the faces represent districts that could even remotely be considered politically vulnerable.

This poster appealed to the worse kind of sentiment we can imagine. It appealed to emotions that brought us bull dogs and billy clubs in past years.

And, it appealed to emotions that have brought us Oklahoma City and those organized band of thugs whose purpose is to deny to some the rights that they demand for themselves.

Again, Mr. Speaker, these are strong words that I use—words that I do not ordinarily use on the floor of the House.

But, unless we speak out against this kind of dangerous and demeaning act, none of us will be able to enjoy the fruits of this democracy.

I condemn this condemnable act in the strongest of terms.

WE WANT TO MAKE MEDICARE A BETTER SYSTEM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. WATTS] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, we are debating here on the floor of the House or we are having discussion going on concerning Medicare, and I have got a couple of charts here that I want to share.

I want to read, my colleagues, a quote. Today Medicaid and Medicare are going up at three times the rate of inflation. We propose to let it go up at two times the rate of inflation, not three times the rate of inflation. But this quote says the person that made this statement said that we are proposing to let it go up at two times the rate of inflation rather than three times the rate of inflation. That is not a Medicare or Medicaid cut. So, when you hear all this business about cuts, let me caution you that that is not what is going on. We are going to have increases in Medicare and Medicaid and a reduction in the rate of growth.

President Clinton, 1993.

I find that it is interesting, Mr. Speaker, that when we talk about Medicare and Medicaid it seems as though when Republicans talk about Medicaid and Medicare and we are slowing down the rate of growth, it seems that that is a cut. However, when the President talk about slowing down the growth in Medicare or Medicaid, then that seems to be an increase.

I want to share with you a chart here from 1995 through the year 2002 and just wanted to illustrate what the dollar figures are concerning the Medicare spending and the plan that is before America. In 1995, we will spend $178.2 billion. Now, Mr. Speaker, that is per beneficiary, per month, about $401. In 1996, we will spend 191 billion; 1997, 201.8 billion; 1998, 213.8 billion; 1999, 226.3 billion; the year 2000, 238.9 billion; the year 2001, 255.4 billion; and in the year 2002, 274.1 billion.

Now the per beneficiary/per month, dollar amount goes from $401 a month in the year 1995 to the year 2002, going to $561 a month per beneficiary, and I ask the American people, "Where is the cut?"

Mr. Speaker, the Medicare Board of Trustees, and three of these trustees are—six total—three of these trustees were appointed by the President of the United States, his current administration, and those six trustees signed off on the annual report of the Medicare Board of Trustees report that said that by the year 1996 that Medicare would be broken, by the year 2002 Medicare would be bankrupt, if we do not deal with it.

Now that report was consistent in 1994, and it is consistent in 1995. That was the conclusion that, if we do not do something about Medicare, that it would be bankrupt by the year 2002.

So, in the President's plan he refused to deal with Medicare. The Republicans we are choosing to deal with it so we can save Medicare for our children, for our children's children, for future generations. We know that there are people today that depend on Medicare, and, if we let this go unnoticed and do not choose to deal with this, we will have many, many people in this country, especially the senior citizens, that will be crippled tremendously if we do nothing about this.

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, I am very happy to stand here and to commend the gentleman for bringing to the attention of the American people the statistics that you have offered here this evening. We have been struggling for a long time, and you are helping us now, struggling to get the message across to people to be, contrary to the propaganda that we have heard about the cuts in Medicare and Medicaid, and the gentleman has gone a long way in dispelling the doubts that are out in the American public. I wanted to commend him for that.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. There is a hundred billion dollars in the Medicare system that was spend in the year 1994, and 44 billion of that was fraud. We want to cut the fraud. We want to make Medicare a better system. We want to preserve it for our children, our children's children, for the future of America.

THE STATUS OF THE MEDICARE PROGRAM IN THE UNITED STATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. HOKE] is recognized for 40 minutes and the gentleman from Florida [Mr. BILIRAKIS] will be recognized for 20 minutes as the designees of the majority leader.

Mr. HOKE. Mr. Speaker, tonight during the time that we have allotted in the leadership hour for special orders I have asked some of my colleagues to help me talk about the status of the Medicare program in the United States and to try to elucidate for the American people exactly where we are at, where we are going, what our responsibilities are and how we are going to meet those responsibilities, and I am going to, before I yield any time to my good friends, I want to read a little bit from this report.

This report, Mr. Speaker, is called the Status of the Social Security and Medicare Programs. It is a summary of the 1995 annual reports of the Social Security and Medicare Board of Trustees. It is a very important report because what it does is it forms the basis of all the problems that we have got with Medicare in the U.S., and frankly I urge all Americans to call their representatives at (202) 224-3121 and ask for a copy of this report. Particularly senior citizens will be interested in this.

Let me read to you a little bit about it. It is called A Message to the Public. The Federal Hospital Insurance HI Trust Fund which pays inpatient hospital expenses will be able to pay benefits for only about 7 years and is severely out of financial balance in the long range. The trustees believe that prompt, effective and decisive action is necessary. This is signed by six trustees: Robert Rubin, Secretary of the Treasury; Robert Reich, Secretary of Labor; Donna Shalala, Secretary of Health and Human Services; Shirley Chader, the Commissioner of Social Security; Stanford Ross and David Walker, both trustees.

Now what are the trust funds? There are four trust funds that have been established by law to finance Social Security and Medicare. For Medicare, the Hospital Insurance Trust Fund HI pays for hospital and related care. This is often called part A, for people that are over 65 years old and workers who are disabled. The Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund; this is the SMI Fund, pays for physician and outpatient services, often called part B, for people that are 65 and over and workers who are disabled.

Who exactly are the board of trustees? These are six people who serve as trustees on the Social Security and Medicare Boards, Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary of Labor, Secretary of Health and Human Services, the Commissioner of Social Security and two members appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate to represent the public. The Boards are required by law to report to the Congress each year on the operation of the trust funds during the preceding years and the projected financial status for future years.

So this report is all about the financial status of Medicare in the United States of America in the future, and, as you will see, they have various scenarios that they are required to follow to let us know exactly what the status will be.

How are the trust funds financed? Well, the trust funds are financed in different ways, but the HI Fund, the hospital insurance fund that is part A, is financed by a tax on earnings. It is unlimited. Beginning with 1994 the taxes are paid on total earnings with no ceiling at 1.45 percent. The part B program is financed in a way that is similar to yearly renewable term insurance, health term insurance. Participants pay premiums that in 1994 covered about 30 percent of the costs. That means the other 70 percent of the cost is covered by the taxpayers out of the general fund of the United States.

The rest is paid for by the Federal Government.

The 1995 monthly premium is $46.10 per month.

How is the financial status of the trust funds tested? Several tests, based on the intermediate assumptions, are used to review the financial status of the trust funds. There is a short-range test, a long-range test, and a future outlook test.

And, finally, although the trust fund ratio line for the part A fund is over the 100 percent level at the beginning of the 10-year period, it falls below that level in 1995, and, as a result, it does not meet the short-range test.

Under the intermediate assumptions, the projected year of exhaustion for the HI Trust Fund is 2002. Under more adverse conditions, as in the high-cost alternative, it could be as soon as 2001.

The cost rate for the part A trust fund is higher than the income rate. We are spending more than we are taking in by rapidly growing amounts throughout the 75-year projection period, and by the end of the period the cost rate is projected to be roughly three times greater than the income rate.

The conclusion is that the status of the Medicare program can be summarized by looking at the results of the tests used to evaluate the financial status of the trust funds and the number of years before each trust fund is expected to be exhausted under the intermediate assumptions.

Here are the conclusions, and my colleagues will not be able to see this, but what they say is that the Social Security Trust Fund will not be exhausted for 36 years. At that point, it will be exhausted, in 36 years; the Disability Insurance Trust Fund, in 21 years; the combined trust funds in 35 years of those two. But the Hospital Insurance, the Part A Trust Fund, will be exhausted in seven years.

It will be able—and here are the written conclusions. “The Part A trust fund will be able to pay benefits for only about 7 years and is severely out of actuarial balance. Because of the magnitude of the projected actuarial deficit in the program and the high probability that the trust fund will be exhausted just after the turn of the century, the trustees urge the Congress to take additional actions designed to control Part A program costs and to address the projected financial imbalance in both the short range and the long range.”

This is the section that is called, “A Message from the Public Trustees: The Need for Action.”

“During the past 5 years, there has been a trend of deterioration in the long-range financial condition of the Medicare programs and an acceleration in the projected dates of exhaustion in the related trust funds, but to some extent the increasingly adverse projections have come from unforeseen events and from the absence of prompt action in response to clear warnings that changes are necessary.

“These adverse trends can be expected to continue and indicate the possibility of a future retirement crisis as the U.S. population begins to age rapidly. We urge that concerted action be taken promptly to address the critical public policy issues raised by the financing projections for these programs.

“We feel strongly that comprehensive Medicare reforms should be undertaken to make this program financially sound now and over the long term.”

This is from three members of the President's Cabinet, the Commissioner of Social Security, and two other people nominated, appointed, by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Let me repeat it.

We feel strongly that comprehensive Medicare reforms should be undertaken to make this program financially sound now and over the long term. The focus should be on making Medicare itself sustainable, making it compatible with Social Security and making both Social Security and Medicare financially sound in the long term.

And, finally, we strongly recommend that the crisis presented by the financial condition of the Medicare trust funds be urgently addressed on a comprehensive basis, including a review of the programs' financing methods, benefit provisions and delivery mechanisms. Various groups should be consulted and reform plans developed that will not be disruptive to the beneficiaries, will be fair to current taxpayers who will in the future become beneficiaries, and will be compatible with government finances overall. We strongly recommend that the crisis represented by the financial condition of the trust funds be urgently addressed on a comprehensive basis.

These are the words of three members of the President's Cabinet, the Commissioner of Social Security, and two other individuals appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOKE. I would be happy to yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. GEKAS. Just as I expressed to the gentleman from Oklahoma for taking the floor and telling the American people the truth about the situation in Medicare, I want to commend the gentleman for recapitulating this issue this evening.

Now, let us get this straight. The President of the United States says that Medicare, and the positions that he has undertaken with Medicare, do not constitute cuts in Medicare. Rather, they are slowing the increases of expenditures in Medicare under his plan. That is No. 1.

Mr. HOKE. That is correct. That is exactly correct. He has said very clearly that he is not, we are not, nobody is—the Republicans are not suggesting cuts in Medicare but, in fact, slowing the rate of growth in Medicare.

Mr. GEKAS. So the President says that and the gentleman from Oklahoma has indicated the Republican plan says that, that we are not interested in cutting Medicare. Nobody ever threatened to do that, but, rather, we have to fix the problem, and one of the ways to do it is to recognize that we must slow the growth of Medicare.

OK, so now we have the President of the United States and we have the Republicans in the House of Representatives saying the same thing.

Now, did not the President—I ask the gentleman from Ohio, did not the President say all these things way in advance of the report to which the gentleman has referred this evening from the trustees?

Mr. HOKE. That is correct.

Mr. GEKAS. So now we have the confirmation of what could be determined by the Democrats as a Republican political ploy to say these things, or even if they want to counter their own President who said these very same things, but now how do the Democrats, who are opposing all of these programs of the Republicans, how are they describing the report of the trustees? I have not heard much.

Mr. HOKE. I have not heard them talk much about the report of the trustees. Apparently, the Democrats think that they can score political gain by misrepresenting or distorting or in some way not telling the truth about Medicare and the problem.

Mr. KINGSTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOKE. I would be happy to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. KINGSTON. Does the gentleman have the Democrat plan, the Gephardt plan, or the Daschle plan or the Clinton plan?

Mr. HOKE. Yes, I do. Is that the plan you are referring to?

Mr. KINGSTON. That is the plan I have heard that is out there, and that, we have laughed about this for a long time, and today there still has not been a plan offered to save or protect Medicare by the administration, even though it is the administration who reports it is going broke.

Mr. HOKE. I think it is important that we start out with the fundamental understanding, the premise that there is a crisis. We did not make up the crisis. We did not create the crisis. We have not been running this place. But the fact is, there is a crisis. It is right here, honestly.

I urge all senior citizens to call up their representative. They can get a copy of this at (202) 225-3121, (202) 224-3121, I think they both work, and ask for a copy. It lays out the crisis. The crisis is real.

It seems to me, Mr. KINGSTON, that it would be grossly irresponsible for elected Members of Congress not to do something about a financial crisis that is about to affect—and I mean about—in either 6 or 7 years, depending on which scenario one buys into from their report, it is about to engulf senior citizens.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOKE. I would be happy to yield to the gentlewoman from Washington.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. I listened to the debate, the one today and the one I have been hearing on and off all day. It seems like every time someone stands up, they say, The sky is falling.

I want people to know out there who are relying on Medicare that your bills are going to be paid tomorrow and they are going to be paid the next week and do not worry. A lot of the scare tactics are to scare you into reacting.

I do know that if we do not fix this system that there will come a time where we cannot pay bills. That same report states the law. This trust fund was set up for Medicare to be a trust fund when the money runs out; it cannot pay any more bills. There is enough money there and there is enough money coming in from people's payroll checks, that is where the money comes into, then it pays your medical bills. There is enough money now.

It goes into a problem next year, folks, and we can draw to that trust fund for awhile, but just like your savings account that is giving you interest each month, you are maybe living off of the interest, when you get into the principal, it can run out. And what is going to happen is it is going to run out.

Now, do not let anybody scare you, but do what seniors are doing all over this Nation, come and tell us how. You have told us some things that are right. Fraud and abuse is right. I am finding terrible things in the system. But I do not want to also tell you that it is very—

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Gentlewoman shall sustain. Members are reminded of the policy of the floor that when you address the House, you are to address Members of the House. You are not to address the viewing audience. Just a gentle reminder. The gentlewoman may proceed.

Mr. HOKE. Will the gentlewoman yield for a moment?

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Certainly.

Mr. HOKE. I think what the gentlewoman is talking about with respect to the exhaustion of the trust funds is shown pretty clearly by this chart.

As the gentlewoman can see, we have got about $150 billion in the Part A trust fund right now. This is what I was just reading about earlier. By the year 2002 or 2001, depending again on the scenario, here is the zero line. You can see that we are depleting that trust fund and that it goes down to zero. And then 2003, 2004, these are according again to the projections of the annual report, and this chart is directly out of that annual report. You can see that we are going to run out of money. We are going to exhaust the funds.

And one of the things you will hear claim is that somehow tax increases will have some impact on this trust fund. The reality is, it will have no impact whatsoever because the tax on earnings that funds the Part A Trust Fund at 1.45 percent of the employee's earnings is set. It is fixed. And nothing short of changing that law will make any difference.

So it does not matter if we increase taxes, income taxes, or decrease them. It has no effect on the trust fund.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOKE. Be happy to.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Congressman HOKE, I think the gentleman is on target with a very important reality here as well. We know from the bipartisan task force, even the President's secretaries of different agencies, that Medicare will run out of money in 7 years. But we in the Republican majority of Congress are not going to let the money run out.

As Congresswoman SMITH had stated, we are going to look for the initiatives from within the Congress and also the public. I have formed, and many other Congressmen on our side of the aisle and others, a Medicare Preservation Task Force. The fact is that health care costs generally are going up 4 percent a year, but Medicare is going up 10 to 12 percent a year, and part of that is the fraud.

Mr. HOKE. May I interrupt for a minute because I think that that fact the gentleman just mentioned really gives room for a tremendous amount of hope with respect to the ability to save Medicare. Because what are we trying to do as Republicans? We are trying to save, we are trying to preserve, protect, and in fact improve it, make it even better.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Exactly.

Mr. HOKE. If the gentleman is telling me that in the private sector we have got health insurance—I am sorry, health care inflation at 4.5 percent, 4 percent, and in the public sector we are at over 10.5 percent, it seems to me that we ought to be able to follow the lead of the private sector here and get that inflation down.

Now, what we are doing is terms of our own projections?

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. The fact is, if the gentleman would yield, $44 billion, billion, that is, with a B, $44 billion is in waste, fraud, and abuse between Medicaid and Medicare. Now, if we can attack that problem and make the changes within this House and the Senate, then we will go a long way toward preserving Medicare and making sure we give the kind of health care for our seniors that we want to give.

Mr. KINGSTON. If the gentleman would yield, the gentleman knows on waste, fraud, and abuse, most of it probably—I am not sure what the breakdown is—actually Medicare legal, meaning if a person, and this happened in the district I represent, that a woman needed her stitches removed, an elderly woman on Medicare, and an ambulance—because the transportation was provided, an ambulance picked her up at her house and instead of taking her to a hospital in her town, took her to a hospital in another town, and instead of billing $200, billed about $1,200, and Medicare pays that.

It is legal, and it is never argued, it is never checked, it is never questioned. And one of the things that we think would help protect and preserve Medicare is to crack down on those kinds of just absolutely wasteful practices that show that people running certain businesses want to take advantage of Medicare, have the ability, and we need to stop that.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KINGSTON. Yes.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. The task force that we had in our district, we have a task force and then we had 900 people come in and talk to us about Medicare so far, elderly people. They have come up with one overriding thing that is a problem, and that is their ability to read their bills. And they find that when they can figure out what is going on, they are their own best watchdogs.

So I think one of the best things that has come to me from them is better readable billing. Now, that is pretty simple, and if they could be their own watchdogs, they could look for mistakes, duplicate billing, and sometimes some really gross things.

I just found one, in looking at one of the reports, of a man who is dying who had $8,000 in therapy that would never apply to a man in his condition billed to him in 1 month. Now, that are things like that going on, and yet, when people cannot understand their own bills, then they have got a problem. Sure does seem that that is a commonsense thing that the people have brought to us that we should be able to deal with.

Mr. HOKE. Certainly one of the things that we are looking at and considering is to give beneficiaries personal incentives to scrutinize those bills and to ferret out themselves the way that they would look at a bill from the dry cleaner or look at a bill from the phone company.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Have you tried to look at those bills? I challenge you to take a look at a hospital bill billed under Medicare. But you are right. They need to look at that.

Mr. HOKE. Those people also need to be given incentives to do that. That is one of the things we are considering. It is important.

I have another chart here I want to just talk about for a moment. One of the things you will hear a lot about on the rhetoric and the demagoguery on this issue that I do not think is particularly helpful is that we are slashing Medicare, cutting Medicare. You typically hear this during debate on the floor. One of the things we get to do in these special orders is we get to dissect an issue and look at it more carefully, thoughtfully, and reflectively as opposed to in a rhetorical and demagogic fashion.

The question here is where is the cut. This tells you exactly on a yearly basis how much the per-beneficiary per-month amount goes up. Here in 1995 we are spending about $401 per beneficiary, per senior citizen on Medicare per month. That goes up in 1996 to $423, in 1997 to $440, up until the year 2002, it is $561. Per year it goes from about $4,800 to over $6,800. That is a substantial increase. In fact on a compounded basis it is about 6.5 percent per year.

This amount, by the way, this per-beneficiary, per-month, it takes into account that we are going to have more people coming in than are going out. When you think about it, this is one of the big problems not only with Medicare but with Social Security as well. That is, that the number of workers per beneficiary in 1995 is 3.3. But the number of workers per beneficiary in the year 2025 will be 2.1.

Mr. KINGSTON. If the gentleman will yield, we have a lot of things we are trying to resolve and address at once. But one of the things we are trying to do is deregulate businesses so that they can expand and create more jobs. We are also trying to get people who are able-bodied off of welfare so that they will go out in the workplace. In doing that, what we are going to do is increase revenues and then have that worker-to-retiree ratio go up. Because many, many years ago it was a 19-to-1 ratio, and the 3.3 is scary enough. We need to actually increase the number of workers to retirees, not just for practical purposes like in Medicare but to decrease the welfare rolls, decrease the rolls on public assistance in general, increase revenues, self-esteem, and make the world a better place so that everybody can enjoy the socioeconomic mainstream of America.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. If the gentleman will yield, just to carry forward what the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. KINGSTON] just said, not only have we in the Republican majority here in Congress made inroads on welfare reform, we also did it with regulatory and legal reform, all ways to help businesses grow, produce and hire and help us be able to find the funds for actual services to make sure that Medicare, which is going to help people in their health care, in fact, have the quality of life they want but decrease the number of bureaucrats that we have in Washington and the bureaucracy in Washington. I think we want to go to direct services and less regulation.

Mr. HOKE. I think one of the things that is important to emphasize as we talk about the Medicare debate is that we are absolutely committed to keeping the current system for anyone who wants to stay in it exactly as it is today. I think that it is very important that senior citizens know that, that they understand and they expect that, and they can look forward to that and be confident that they know that their representatives in Washington, that the Republicans that are now in control of the Congress, are committed to that. I think it is also important for them to know that we are considering various options that will give them choices with respect to Medicare that will in fact not only preserve it, which we are committed to doing, but will actually improve it. Maybe we could talk about some of those choices that we expect to see in the future.

For example, one of the choices would be HMO-type programs, the managed care model where you become a part of a network that provides everything. There are managed care programs today under Medicare in Florida, for example, where everything is covered, including prescription drugs, which right now is not a Medicare benefit, and in some programs even optical benefits are covered.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. I believe hearing aids would also be available through the managed care.

Mr. HOKE. I do not know if it is in any of these programs, but it certainly could be.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. If the gentleman will yield further, I am hearing some scary things out there. Some people do not want to go into managed care. I think what I like in here at this point in the debate, not between the two of you, but in Congress is that most people are saying that should be an option. If you choose that option and it is a little less costly, we are going to give you more benefits in that option. But if you choose to have another option that is a little more costly, you may need to share in the cost of a more costly option. But you still have a choice.

I think the most exciting thing that I see coming is we are going to have options the seniors have not had before. I think we are going to have better plans. I look at it, and I am going on six grandkids so I have a little bit to go but not as long as some of you. I look at it not on choices. In fact, I want choices now. I want the next 10 years for me to develop a plan where I can take care of myself and I can transfer and not have Medicare. Maybe I can buy my own private plan. Those are some of the things we are talking about. Not just those that are on but those coming on and then the younger ones who are just coming into the work force. What do we do about them? It would be irresponsible to not consider that. We are looking at all three age levels.

Mr. KINGSTON. One of the things that I think is very, very important, and the gentlewoman has certainly touched on it, is that with our senior citizens, more than options, they want certainty. We are going to provide for that certainty by strengthening and protecting Medicare from a financial standpoint. Then for the folks who want options, it is going to be out there if they want it. Then for health care in general, as the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX] said earlier, the Medicare inflation has been so atrocious compared to the private sector or the normal medical inflation, that we are going to work on health care reform in general, portability of coverage so that you can move if you are in a managed care plan from one to the other, if you are in the traditional fee-for-service insurance plan, you can move from that to another, if you want to have a medisave option where you are willing because of your economic bracket to take a higher deductible and pay more of the front-end cost on your own to reduce your premium but still have catastrophic coverage, you can do that. But the great effect of that is actually to help the marketplace become more competitive because people will start shopping around and seeing where they can get the best buy on a lot of health care services.

There are a lot of exciting things that are going on out there, but it is all going to be built on a solid bedrock of certainty for our valued seniors who are on Medicare.

Mr. HOKE. If the gentleman would yield on that point, I think this idea of different options is very important.

I also want to say to the gentleman from Washington, I think you are absolutely right with respect to HMO's and managed care. It is a funny thing. The biggest problem that people have with managed care is the concern that they will not be able to be treated by their own doctor. I think that is a very real concern. It certainly is a concern that I take seriously. When you survey you find that people who are able to keep their own doctor going into an HMO are much, much happier with that situation. But I think it would be absolutely wrong to force anybody to be a part of some program that they do not want to be a part of.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. If the gentleman will yield, I was just picturing a person that is very close to me. If she is listening, she will know who it is. It is a family member. Her doctor is in an HMO, not a system with many doctors coming together for a managed system but an actual HMO. She is happy there, she does not worry, she feels good.

We need to make sure that anybody that is somewhere they feel good and safe gets to stay there and that we protect and preserve that. The last thing we want in all of this is for anyone to be out there being afraid that they will not be able to be taken care of. The mongers that would blow this into an issue politically will try to scare people. I think I can safely say the people I am working with on both sides of the aisle will leave very secure those people that rely on Medicare. Those that rely on it can still rely on it.

Mr. KINGSTON. I think that is a good point, because in this debate, I know there are a lot of people on one side of the aisle who do not want to admit that Medicare is in trouble, but let us just say that the responsible approach is to say the Clinton trustees have said Medicare is going broke. Now, what are we as Members of Congress going to do about it, not as members of the Democrat or the Republican Party but as Members of Congress, what are we going to do about it? Then you have a choice in here. Are you going to work for Medicare or are you going to work for medicare? I think there are people who have decided it is more politically expedient—

Mr. HOKE. Excuse me, did you say Medicare or medicare?

Mr. KINGSTON. I think we should put that on the easel so people can see it. I think it is very important that people know that 435 Members of Congress can take the choice. Are they going to work for Medicare or are they going to work for medicare? One is political and one is responsible.

Mr. HOKE. Let me wrap this up because there is another subject I would like to get to. We only have 10 minutes left in our portion of this hour. I do want to emphasize once more that I would strongly urge senior citizens, people about to become senior citizens, and anybody that is particularly interested in this problem, and it is a problem for every American, particularly tax-paying Americans, because the fact is that health care is the fastest growing segment of the Federal budget. Call your Representative, 202-224-3121, and ask for a copy of the "Status of the Social Security and Medicare Program Summary." It is a 14-page summary. It will explain why there is a real problem and why it would be absolutely irresponsible of us not to deal with that problem.

AUDIT OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. HOKE. Mr. Speaker, I want to change the subject, if I may, to something that was released just today, the House audit which was called for by Republicans on the first day of the 104th Congress. I am going to read very briefly from the report of the Price Waterhouse independent auditors of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Mr. KINGSTON. If the gentleman would yield just before you do that, auditing exactly what, or generally what?

Mr. HOKE. What they are doing is they are auditing the books of the House of Representatives. We spend in the House, to run your office, my office, the office of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX], the office of the gentlewoman from Washington [Mrs. SMITH], and all of the various business organizations of the House, the committees, the committee structure, all of the benefits, all of the people that run this, $700 million per year. That is the budget. Think about that.

Mr. KINGSTON. Is this an annual audit that is done every year?

Mr. HOKE. Excuse me? The House has never, ever, ever, ever, in its entire history been audited by an outside auditor.

Mr. KINGSTON. How often do businesses get audited?

Mr. HOKE. Once a year. Publicly traded companies must be audited once a year and they must file reports with the SEC.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. If the gentleman will yield, is this a private audit? This is not just something we did ourselves. Did we hire these people, pay them?

Mr. HOKE. We hired one of the Big Six accounting firms, Price Waterhouse, to conduct this audit.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Everyone knows Price Waterhouse.

Mr. HOKE. They came in, and I do not know how many people came in. They must have had a team of 20 or 30 accountants who came in and went through the books. That is what they do. They go over the ledgers literally page by page.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. If the gentleman will yield, every State government, local government, and school board has to audit. The House has never audited before?

Mr. HOKE. We have never had an external audit, from an external auditor. We did have an internal audit. I am told it was in 1954. That was the last time we had an internal audit of the House's books.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Good enough to hold us that long, huh?

Mr. HOKE. Apparently yes. Let me read some of this. It is stunning. This is the report of the independent accountants, Price Waterhouse.

The House lacks the organization and structure to periodically prepare financial statements that even after significant audit adjustment and reconstruction are accurate and reliable. The House Clerk's report is a voluminous quarterly document that lists over 90,000 disbursements, but it does not summarize the disbursements in logical groupings or accounts, does not accumulate them beyond one quarter or otherwise place them in a context that could be easily understood. The individual financial reports of House units were of limited use to understanding the finances of the house as a whole because they only constituted small components of the House. The statement of accountability which purportedly accounted for all House transactions reported collections and disbursements in broad account categories but little else. None of the financial information or statements periodically produced by the House's financial and administrative units were suitable for reporting consolidated information in an acceptable financial statement.

Finally, let me read the conclusion, because this is the most stunning part:

Because the House's accounting and reporting methods were outdated and of limited utility, the accompanying financial statements required significant adjustment to attempt to conform them to generally accepted accounting principles. However, the shortcomings in the House's information systems and the weaknesses in its internal control structure were so severe that they affected the availability and reliability of the data and information supporting the financial statements. Those conditions also made it impractical for us to extend our audit procedures to the degree necessary to determine the effect that these shortcomings might have had on the House's financial statements.

For the reasons stated, we are unable to and do not express an opinion as to whether the supplemental schedules are fairly stated in relation to the consolidating financial statements taken as a whole, and we do not express an opinion on these consolidating financial statements. That is the worst situation, I don't know, are any of you CPAs?

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Will the gentleman yield?

All I can tell you is if my business had that kind of an audit, I could never get a loan again. I think what it says is there can be no beginnings. I looked at that, and I am like the person with the shovel, you know, digging and looking for the pony.

Mr. HOKE. Looking for the pony.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. And I looked at it and I thought, some things were obvious. Even before we came in in January, we started making changes, we started digging around, we started opening up files and we started closing things that were not efficient. We started looking at the mail room, we started looking at the way things were done.

My understanding is that this audit said certain things should change. We are already doing a lot of them. But I do not think we will ever know for sure all of what happened between the 1954 audit and the 1995 audit. That is a long time.

What I would like to see us do is go forward. I would love to see us look at this and say, we are a new Congress, we want to go forward. So I was excited to see that we were not going to mess with the results. We were going to turn them over to an independent counsel and let anybody else deal with them outside of this place so that it was not political. I like that, and it kind of excited me that we were already starting along the path to repair.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. To follow up with what Congresswoman SMITH just said, the fact is we just passed a resolution unanimously in this House this afternoon giving the Inspector General the authority to move forward to make the kinds of changes we need. Because in the report, if I can just follow up, the appropriations limits were ignored, bills were paid late in the House, House property and equipment was unaccounted for, and there were significant security problems with their own computer system. So these changes, in order to really help our country and to lead by example, I think it is good that we have this kind of audit and that we actually do the follow-up, as Congresswoman SMITH just stated.

Mr. HOKE. I think that is right, and that we now have audits on an annual base, which is exactly what we are committed to doing.

I think we would be remiss in not pointing out two things: No. 1, that this audit was taken under the first Republican Congress in 40 years; and, No. 2, that we made the promise to the American people that we were going to start out the 104th Congress with an audit, and that is exactly what we did. It is another promise made, another promise kept.

Mr. KINGSTON. If the gentleman will yield, was this done on an inventory and on a cash basis? Because my question that I am leading to is, did we count the number of personal computers? Did we count the papers? Is there inventory missing? And is there cash missing? Is the cash done on an accrual basis, is it done on a cash basis, or could the auditors even tell one way or the other? Because what I am really hearing is, they gave up and they said, this is just too much of a mess.

Mr. HOKE. Well, they tried to do it properly, and I don't think they really gave up. What they did is they kind of threw their hands up in despair and frustration and said, we can't give you the kind of report that you wanted.

Mr. KINGSTON. Well, if the gentleman will yield, Price Waterhouse also does the audit for Washington, DC. Did they say that this was comparable?

Mr. HOKE. My understanding was that the books for Washington, the District of Columbia, were in much better shape than the books for the Congress.

I will read one other thing from this, because I think it is interesting. It says the House used cash basis accounting as its primary means of managing its financial resources and preparing internal and external financial reports.

This meant that the House tracked when it received or spent cash, but not what liabilities or legal obligations or commitments it was incurring, or the value of the assets properly recorded, accumulated and reported in accordance with the rules, policies and procedures that are established by the House itself.

Mr. KINGSTON. So perhaps we can get somebody from the Washington, DC City Council to come show the House how to take care of the books.

Mr. HOKE. Perhaps we can.

Mr. KINGSTON. Not necessary any more, is it?

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Let's do better than that.

Mr. HOKE. I want to extend my appreciation to the gentlelady from Washington [Mrs. SMITH], the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX], and the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. KINGSTON] for participating with me in this special order.

Mr. Speaker, I want to yield the balance of this hour at this point to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. BILIRAKIS] to discuss Cyprus. I hope that I will have an opportunity, since it just happens that this is also an issue that is near and dear to my heart, to join him on that issue.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and to include extraneous material on this subject of my special order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MCINNIS). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

CYPRUS: 21 YEARS OF DIVISION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. BILIRAKIS] is recognized for 20 minutes.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time. I also thank the gentleman and commend the gentleman and the others for basically sharing the facts and the truth regarding the Medicare picture with our viewers out there.

Mr. Speaker, Thursday, July 20, marks the twenty-first anniversary of the illegal invasion and occupation of Cyprus by Turkey. I rise here today, as I have since I first came to the Congress in 1983, to remind us all of this sad day in the history of the Republic of Cyprus.

We must all be reminded that the Green Line, separating the northern part of the island—some 40 percent and Turkish-occupied—from the free portion is the only wall remaining in the world dividing a country.

We must be reminded that our conduct here in this Congress has played a major part in ensuring that wall continues to stand.

On July 20, 1974, 6,000 Turkish troops and 40 tanks landed on the north coast of Cyprus. Turkish forces captured almost 40 percent of Cyprus, representing 70 percent of the country's economic health.

As a result of Turkey's illegal invasion, 1,619 people have never been seen again. Among these 1,619 missing individuals, five are United States citizens.

In addition, more than 200,000 Cypriots were forcibly driven from their homes. They are now refugees—a people without a home.

Today, Turkey continues its occupation of the northern portion of Cyprus, maintaining more than 35,000 troops and some 65,000 settlers there. As I previously mentioned, a barbed wire fence, known as the Green Line, cuts across the island separating thousands of Greek Cypriots from the towns and communities in which they and their families had previously lived for generations.

As you might guess, this has led to frequent incidents and disputes—and in the near future, the settlers and occupying troops will outnumber the indigenous Turkish Cypriots.

At this point, Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GEKAS].

Mr. GEKAS. I thank the gentleman. As usual, the gentleman from Florida has gone to extra lengths to bring a vital issue to the floor and to utilize the special auspices of the special order to get across a vital message.

The gentleman has begun his presentation with talk about refugees, and about an act of aggression. The invasion was a bold and dastardly act of aggression, was it not? The answer is yes. I will answer my own question.

Refugees became one of the results of this act of aggression. Missing persons is another disaster that came directly because of that act of aggression. Does not this remind you of what is happening in Bosnia?

Here we have a situation where an act of aggression resulted in refugees, in missing persons, in atrocities of every kind of description. The United Nations passed resolutions dealing directly with the Bosnian situation. Here we are in turmoil and dismay at being unable to do anything about what is happening in Bosnia.

Well, we could have all predicted that if only one would set that same eyeglass on the Cyprus situation: an act of aggression, ethnic cleansing, refugees, dastardly atrocities, missing persons. The United Nations passed resolution after resolution to try to do something about it. Their inaction there, in my judgment, laid the groundwork for the inaction that they are now undergoing in Bosnia.

I am sick of it. I no longer can tolerate even a gentle discussion on the Cyprus situation. How can the world community coalesce behind a Desert Storm situation to help Kuwait regain its independence, and indeed, enlist the aid of Cyprus in that effort, and then tolerate a continuing act of aggression? Every single minute that that force occupies the northeastern part of Cyprus is an act of aggression repeated and repeated.

Let us do something about this. We argue about it, we debate it, we pass resolutions, we send letters. The Bosnian situation will never be solved, nor will the Cyprus situation ever be solved, unless the resolve, as evidenced by the individuals who will be speaking this evening, is mounted into legislative action here in the Congress of the United States.

I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. I thank the gentleman for his remarks.

While I am saddened by the anguish that the invasion and occupation has caused the people of Cyprus, I am also inspired and encouraged by their undaunted spirit and determination as they have endured this tragedy.

In fact, the government of Cyprus has persisted in making every possible effort to reach a just and lasting solution.

Most recently, in December of 1993, the Cyprus government submitted to the United Nations a bold and innovative proposal calling for the demilitarization of the island-nation. In exchange for the withdrawal of Turkish troops, Cyprus offered to disband its national guard, transfer the national guard's military equipment to an enlarged U.N. peacekeeping force and use the money saved from defense spending for development projects that would benefit both communities. Unfortunately, the Turkish side rejected Cyprus' proposal.

At this point, Mr. Speaker, I would yield to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. HOKE].

Mr. HOKE. I heard what you said, Mr. BILIRAKIS, about the Turkish troops. Are these Turkish Cypriot troops, or are these Turkish troops who have been exported to Cyprus and are occupying the island.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Clearly exported to Cyprus.

Mr. HOKE. Clearly. There are 35,000 Turkish troops that are standing on the north side, that are an occupying force on this island that was at one time an island paradise that is now divided. They are using, as I understand the situation, they are using Cyprus as a bargaining chip in their own designs and insecurities about their own domestic situation and the longtime problems that they have had with the Nation of Greece generally.

They use Cyprus as a way to get at Greece and create untold misery for the Greek Cypriots who live on that island. I know of one situation particularly in Famagusta where 60,000 people lived in Famagusta, which is just on, as I understand it, and correct me if I'm wrong, but it is just on the north side of the green line.

Now, 21 years ago at the time of the invasion by the Turks of the island of Cyprus, this city was evacuated; 60,000 people were forced to flee from Famagusta and that is now an abandoned city. Nobody is in it. There are these 60,000 people in exile of the Famagusta municipality.

It seems to me that it really is time that we began to identify the genuine source of the trouble over there. We talk a lot about human rights in this body; we talk a lot about our concern for self-determination and the concern that we have that nations be allowed to have their own rights.

Here we are with a situation in Cyprus where the Turks have invaded that beautiful nation where Moslem Cypriots and Christian Cypriots got along for centuries side-by-side, and now for the past 21 years they have not, and the Turks again are using them as a pawn.

There are 1,619, as I understand it, I think that is the correct number, people who are still missing and unaccounted for from that invasion that took place 21 years ago, and of those, five were American citizens, including one who was a young boy, or young man at the time, just in college, who was snatched away, literally in the sight of his parents when they were there on vacation. They are from Michigan, and he has never been seen since, never been accounted for. The Turkish Government refuses to cooperate or give any information about his whereabouts, and certainly he puts a very real and personal face on this tragedy.

I thank you for your leadership and what you are doing. I agree with the gentleman from Pennsylvania that enough is enough, and it is time to act.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. I thank the gentleman and thank him for his interest during all the time you have been here in the Congress and on all of the other Hellenic issues, and we appreciate your concern and your caring. I say to the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, tomorrow we will have another chance when the House International Relations Committee begins its mark-up of House Concurrent Resolution 42, introduced by my colleague from New York [Mr. ENGEL] and of which I am an original cosponsor.

This important resolution calls for the demilitarization of Cyprus and insists that all parties to the dispute regarding Cyprus agree to seek a solution based upon relevant U.N. resolutions, including provisions of Security Council Resolution 939. Resolution 939 reaffirms that a solution to the Cyprus problem be based upon a State of Cyprus with a single sovereignty, citizenship and international personality.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from New York [Mrs. MALONEY], who has truly been an inspiration on this issue.

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I want to first thank the gentleman from Florida for once again organizing this special order.

Mr. BILIRAKIS is a true champion of human rights and justice and has been an inspiration to many of us as we attempt to solve the problems of the beautiful island of Cyprus.

The past few years have seen great advances in peace and human rights throughout the world.

The end of the cold war, the triumph of democracy in South Africa, and the movement toward peace in the Middle East and Northern Ireland have been beacons of hope for us all.

In light of these advances, the situation on Cyprus is all the more tragic.

This island remains divided by the continuing shackles of occupation and oppression.

This week, we commemorate the 21st anniversary of the 1974 illegal Turkish invasion of Cyprus and its occupation of 37 percent of the island.

The continued presence of 35,000 Turkish troops represents a gross violation of human rights and international law.

During the invasion, almost 200,000 Greek Cypriots were expelled from their homes. They were removed from the land that had been theirs' for generations. Their property was confiscated.

Worst of all, 1,614 Greek Cypriots and 5 Americans were seized by Turkish troops and remain unaccounted for to this day.

I've shared the pain of some of my own constituents in Astoria, Queens whose beloved family members are still missing. On this issue, there can be no compromise. We will never give up hope that people like Chrisaci Loizoi, Andrew Kassapis, and George Anastasiou will be accounted for.

I'm pleased that last year Congress passed, and the President signed into law, a bill which directs the Department of State to conduct an investigation into the whereabouts of the five Americans that are still missing.

But we must do more. Human decency demands that we use all means at our disposal to account for all of the 1,619 who are missing.

For this reason, I was particularly pleased to play an active role in the passage of an amendment to the Foreign Operations bill offered by my friend and colleague Mr. PORTER that would cut $25 million in United States economic aid to Turkey.

By a decisive vote of 247 to 155, this House spoke out loud and clear that Turkey must be forced to pay a price for its continuing human rights violations and its refusal to act in good faith on the Cyprus issue.

The House did the right thing when it passed the Porter amendment.

I am also pleased that the Clinton administration is taking concrete actions on a variety of issues of importance to the Hellenic community.

The President's appointment of a special emissary to Cyprus, Mr. Richard Beattie, was an important development. Mr. Beattie, and the special emissary to FYROM, Matt Nimitz, have both visited my district and spoken at heavily attended town hall meetings.

The actions of the President and the Congress to help secure the release of the "Omonia Four" represent another example of progress in Greek-American relations. Many of us in this Chamber tonight worked very hard to gain the freedom of these ethnic Greeks who were unfairly imprisoned in Albania.

Just this afternoon, several of us met at length with Ambassador Richard Holbrooke and other top State department officials and urged them to continue to press Turkey to come to a solution on Cyprus.

And there are additional revenues for the supporters of Greece and Cyprus to take to keep Turkey's feet to the fire on these important matters.

I strongly support the March 6 accord which will set a firm timetable for Cyprus' accession to the European Union.

Conversely, the United States should condition the admission of Turkey into the European Customs Union on an improvement on Turkish human rights and progress on the Cyprus issue.

We must likewise carefully monitor recent Turkish actions and bellicose statements with respect to the Law of the Sea Treaty. This important treaty has been signed by nearly 200 nations, including the United States and Greece, but Turkey has not only refused to sign, but has threatened war if Greece asserts its legitimate rights.

We must continue to support the $15 million earmark for economic and peace-enhancing assistance for Cyprus, and I'm pleased that this aid was included in the recently-passed Foreign Operations bill.

Finally, the United States must be mindful of a variety of Turkish abuses, even the ones that do not receive headlines. For example, the gentleman from Florida and I have introduced a House resolution to protect the Eastern Orthodox Ecumenical Patriarchate.

In recent years, there have been terrible terrorist attacks on the Ecumenical Patriarchate premises in Turkey. In addition, religious schools have been shut down and freedom of religion threatened.

Mr. Speaker, I want to conclude by thanking my colleagues, for once again joining in this special order.

We must continue to rise each and every July to commemorate these terrible events and to fulfill our obligation to the missing in Cyprus, and all the Cypriot people that we will never forget their plight.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I'd like to thank my distinguished colleague, Mr. BILIRAKIS, for organizing this commemoration of a sad and frustrating anniversary.

Twenty-one years—for many American young people, it's a coming of age. But for Cypriots, and for us tonight, it's a reminder that on July 20, 1974, Turkish troops invaded their island and began a military occupation.

Today, 35,000 Turkish troops remain on Cyprus. They occupy one-third of the island. In a chilling reminder of the Berlin Wall, a barbed wire fence known as the Green Line cuts across Cyprus, separating thousands of Greek Cypriots from the towns and communities in which their families have lived for generations.

As a result of the invasion 21 years ago, thousands of people were killed, more than 200,000 people were expelled from their homes, and today, more than 1,600 remain missing—including five Americans.

Instead of helping us to locate the missing and enter negotiations aimed toward unity and freedom for Cypriots, Turkey today continues to keep troops on the island.

U.S. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali just last month called Turkish-occupied northern Cyprus "one of the most highly militarized areas in the world."

Most disturbing of all, when you look at the amount of United States dollars flowing into Turkey today, it is nearly identical to the amount of money Turkey spends to keep those troops housed in Cyprus.

So in effect, American taxpayers are paying to keep Turkish troops housed in Cyprus.

Until Turkey begins to remove its troops from Cyprus, we have no business sending aid to Turkey. That is why I strongly supported the Porter amendment to the foreign operations appropriations bill.

The Turkish government must know that the division of Cyprus will continue to be an obstacle to better relations with the United States.

Over the past few years, we have witnessed tremendous changes around the world—the fall of the Berlin Wall, the beginning of reconciliation in the Middle East and the end of Apartheid. It is my sincere hope that soon we will be able to add Cyprus to that list of places where peace and freedom have triumphed.

Mr. MANTON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to join my colleagues in this important special order marking the 21st anniversary of Turkey's invasion of Cyprus. At the outset, I want to thank my colleague Mr. BILIRAKIS for organizing this important special order to commemorate this anniversary.

The division of Cyprus has the distinction of being one of the most intractable in the world today. Since Turkey first invaded Cyprus in 1974, 1619 people including eight Americans last seen alive in the occupied areas of Cyprus have never been accounted for. We must not let the passage of years weaken our resolve to pressure the Turkish government to provide answers to the families of the missing. We cannot forget their suffering continues.

Mr. Speaker, last year, when marking this solemn anniversary, many of us felt hopeful that this conflict would soon be resolved peacefully through the auspices of the United Nations. Today, while I applaud the efforts of United Nations to resolve the issue of the continuing division of Cyprus, I am very frustrated by Turkish leader Rauf Denktash's stubborn resistance to meaningful negotiations. Its not just Greek Cypriots and their supporters who think Denktash has been unreasonable.

In December of 1993, in an effort to facilitate a peace resolution of the problem, President Clerides submitted to the United Nations a thoughtful and innovative proposal calling for the demilitarization of Cyprus. In exchange for the withdrawal of Turkish troops, Cyprus would disband its National Guard; transfer the National Guard's military equipment to the United Nations peace keeping force; and the money saved from Defense spending for development projects that would benefit both communities. Demilitarization would alleviate the security concerns of all parties and substantially enhance the prospects for a peaceful resolution of the problem. Once again the Turkish side rejected Cyprus' efforts toward ending the tragic unacceptable status quo. In April of this year I was proud to join my colleagues as a cosponsor of House Concurrent Resolution 42, which calls for the demilitarization of Cyprus. I urge my colleagues to join me as a co-sponsor of this very important legislation.

The United States Government has always supported a just and lasting solution to the Cyprus problem. It is important for the Congress to continue to firmly support the people of Cyprus by pressing Turkey to remove its illegal occupation force and to work constructively for a resolution of the problem in accordance with the relevant U.N. resolutions and agreements between the two sides. A just and lasting solution to the problem will benefit both communities on Cyprus, stabilize the often tenuous relationship between Greece and Turkey, as well as constitute a significant step towards peace in the unstable eastern Mediterranean region.

Mr. Speaker, I want to take this opportunity to commend the Secretary General for his tireless efforts to resolve this issue. I also want to recognize the Greek Cypriot people for their valiant commitment to resolving this conflict, despite the seeming bad faith shown by the Turkish side. It is my hope that this will be the last year members must join to discuss the longstanding problems of the people of Cyprus, that next year we may join to celebrate the end to this conflict. Until that happens, the Turkish government must know we in the United States will continue to mark this anniversary and speak out for rights of the missing.

Mr. DELLUMS. Mr. Speaker, 12 months have passed since we last recognized, and reminded ourselves that July 20, 1974 marks the occupation and division of the Republic of Cyprus. One of the tragic consequences of that invasion and occupation is the continued 'disappearance' of almost 2,000 people.

The passing years only add to our enormous embarrassment that although there is a great deal of evidence to indicate that these individuals were arrested by Turkish military personnel during the invasion and subsequent occupation, that we, the international community, have not been able to negotiate or pressure the Turkish government into releasing any information on these individuals.

This 21st anniversary of that occupation presents us once again with the opportunity to support the work of the United Nations negotiating team's efforts to persuade Mr. Glafcos Clerides, President of the Republic of Cyprus, and Mr. Rauf Denktaş, Turkish Cypriot leader, in reaching an understanding on obtaining information on these detainees.

As always, I am honored to stand with my colleagues in calling upon the President to continue to work with the United Nations in resolving the issues of territorial control in Cyprus, in gaining knowledge of the 1,619 innocent people still missing and in achieving their eventual release.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, this Thursday will mark the 21st anniversary of Turkey's invasion on the peaceful, self-governing island of Cyprus. For 21 years, Turkey has tried to make the island its own. It has done this by installing 80,000 illegal colonists, by maintaining over 30,000 heavily armed troops on the island, and by moving 200,000 Greek Cypriots from their homes. Through 21 years of hardship, the people of Cyprus have held on to a hope for peace and for the return of their island. Their purpose has not been revenge, but negotiation and reconciliation. Here in the House of Representatives, we have the opportunity to help the cause of justice. I urge my colleagues to support House Concurrent Resolution 42, calling for demilitarization of Cyprus. I encourage them to cosponsor H.R. 3475, legislation I have introduced that would reduce United States aid to Turkey by $500,000 per day until that country complies with several conditions, including progress toward withdrawal from Cyprus. As saddened as I am by their plight, as dismal as their treatment by a foreign force has been, we should all be inspired by the patience, courage and faith shown by the people of Cyprus. Let us make this the year when the people of Cyprus once again can govern themselves with peace and dignity.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to applaud and express my gratitude to my fellow colleagues for conducting this special order to acknowledge the 21st anniversary of the Turkish occupation of Cyprus.

This year, the Members of the House meet again to remember this sad day and to denounce the atrocities taking place in Cyprus.

There are still 1,619 people missing as a result of the occupation. Five of these missing persons are American citizens. This is an outrage.

In the time since the Turks have taken over Cyprus the situation there has steadily worsened. The widespread violence and violations of human rights can not be ignored. Action must be taken to amend these horrible travesties.

For some time I have been interested in the situation in Cyprus. I have supported legislation which would require an investigation into the whereabouts of United States citizens and others missing from Cyprus. Another bill I have supported would prohibit all United States military and economic assistance for Turkey until the Turkish Government takes responsibility for its actions in Cyprus and complies with its obligations under international law. I hope there will soon be a resolution to the problems in Cyprus once and for all.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, today's Special Order on Cyprus comes on the eve of the 21st anniversary of the brutal invasion by Turkish troops. I congratulate my friend, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. BILIRAKIS] for organizing this Special Order. The international community is still faced with the fact that in excess of 30,000 Turkish military personnel remain on the island to enforce an illegal partition and to protect a self-proclaimed government that has been recognized by only one other country—Turkey itself.

Those of us in Congress who have supported a negotiated settlement to the dispute which has led to the division of Cyprus are painfully aware of the complexities of the issue, the injustices committed, and particularly the suffering over these many long years of the Cypriot people on both sides of the Green line.

Indeed, Cyprus has become a code-word for stale-mate and intractability in international diplomacy.

Last year, the House passed H.R. 2826, which provides for an investigation by the President of the whereabouts of persons missing in Cyprus since 1974. The resolution of the long lingering question of the whereabouts of 1,619 persons—including 5 Americans—needs to be resolved. The United Nations has been looking into this matter since the early 1980's. But has not solved a single case. I understand that former Ambassador Bob Dillon who has had long experience in the region will head an investigative team. I hope the administration and President Clinton will diligently pursue an investigation that can provide to the families and friends of the missing, some long overdue, answers. It is also hoped that the governments of Turkey and Cyprus will cooperate fully in providing all available information to the President as he conducts this investigation.

Old history and grievances must be placed behind us as we seek to resolve the division of Cyprus. I hope and pray that both sides of the problem will reach within themselves to find and resolve to settle this persistent problem. The Greek Cypriots have demonstrated both, the flexibility and the spirit of compromise in recent rounds in U.N. sponsored talks. The international community and the U.N. should recognize this as we reevaluate our tactics in the light of the most recent failure to move beyond the current situation.

I have urged and will continue to prod the administration to do more to focus the Turkish Government on the necessity of withdrawing from Cyprus without further delay. Regrettably, Prime Minister Ciller appears to be in a weak position, unable to reign in recalcitrant elements among Turkey's political and military establishment. But the fortunes of the people of Cyprus must not be held hostage to internal Turkish political problems.

Twenty-one years is too long a time. There are now young people coming of age in Cyprus who know nothing other than the experience of living in a divided society. For this next generation what can guide them in learning to accept life with a neighboring but different culture? Time is running out for the possibility of achieving a peaceful settlement. The people of Cyprus now have to ask themselves if the enmity between the two communities is truly worth the price of a divided nation.

As we approach the 21st anniversary of Turkey's invasion of Cyprus, let us call on the world community to help resolve this problem of a divided and occupied Cyprus.

Mr. FAZIO. Mr. Speaker, this week marks the 21st year of the occupation and division of the Republic of Cyprus. This island nation that gained its independence from Great Britain over three decades ago was invaded by Turkey in 1974. Since the invasion, northern Cyprus has been in the grip of foreign occupation, a siege marked by violence and bloodshed.

Over 1,600 people—among them 5 United States citizens—have been missing since the island was divided after the invasion. They remain unaccounted for. Their families have no idea whether they are sick or well, dead or alive.

I want to once again profess my support for a negotiated peace on Cyprus, and for the reunification of this Mediterranean nation which has been our faithful ally over the course of its history. Lastly, Mr. Speaker, I wish to thank my colleague from Florida, [Mr. BILIRAKIS] for his devotion and dedication to the Cyprus issue. Every year, Mr. BILIRAKIS is instrumental in calling this special order and providing us with an opportunity to reaffirm our commitment to the innocent victims and families of Cyprus' occupation, as well as to an end to the turmoil and conflict under which Cypriots are forced to live. I am, as always, pleased to join my colleagues in recognition of this solemn anniversary.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to join my colleagues in commemorating a tragic event—Turkey's military invasion of the Republic of Cyprus in July 1974. But I think we all agree that the even greater tragedy is the fact that 21 years later, Turkey's illegal occupation of northern Cyprus remains in place and the suffering of the people of Cyprus continues.

Driven from their homes and villages, brutalized, and denied information as to the fate of over 1,600 loved ones missing since the invasion, the people of Cyprus have patiently cooperated with international negotiators—for 21 years) in the hopes of securing a peaceful co-existence.

Mr. Speaker, Greek-Americans in San Diego and across the United States also share in the agony created by the occupation of Cyprus. They agonize about mission friends and family, the destruction of the Greek Cypriot culture and the denial of access to ancestral homelands now occupied by the Turkish Army. These people have suffered too long.

And so, together with the Greek-American community, I urge Congress and the administration to adopt a far more active role in pressing the Turkish Government to withdraw its troops from Cyprus, end the human rights abuses there and provide a full accounting of those who are missing.

It is time we let Turkey know that a peaceful resolution to this crisis is tragically overdue.

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to join with my colleagues in marking the tragic events that occurred 21 years ago on the Island of Cyprus. On July 20, 1974, the Government of Turkey sent troops to Cyprus and forcefully assumed control of more than one-third of the island. This action dislocated much of the Greek Cypriot population, creating a refugee problem that exists to this day. Additionally, over 1,600 Greek Cypriots are still missing or unaccounted for as a result of this brutal invasion.

The Turkish Cypriot community has continually shown its unwillingness to move toward a negotiated settlement with their Greek neighbors. The removal of the roughly 35,000 Turkish troops from the Island of Cyprus is central to any such agreement. However, the Turkish Government is doing the exact opposite. They continue their arms buildup on the island, in effect making any sort of rapprochement all the more unlikely.

The Greek Cypriots have demonstrated repeatedly their flexibility and willingness to compromise in order to bring an end to this long-standing dispute. As late as last year, President Glafcos Clerides of Cyprus unveiled a plan that would demilitarize the island. This proposal should be commended. The United States has also taken steps to facilitate an agreement. Earlier this year, President Clinton appointed a Special Envoy for Cyprus and dispatched Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke to the region in hopes of helping to achieve a solution.

However, these efforts have failed to produce any movement toward an agreement. It is time that the United States Government take bold steps to show its resolve to the Turkish Government that it is serious about moving toward peace on Cyprus. In this regard, I am pleased to be a cosponsor to House Concurrent Resolution 42, which officially calls for the demilitarization of Cyprus. Perhaps more importantly, I was very encouraged by the passage of an amendment to H.R. 1868, the Foreign Operations Appropriations Act, which cuts economic support funds and military assistance to Turkey until it withdraws its troops from Cyprus, lifts its blockade of Armenia, and makes progress on extending political and economic rights to its Kurdish minorities.

Mr. Speaker, it is with decisive steps such as these that we can begin to hope for a brighter future for Cyprus. I wish to commend the gentleman from Florida, [Mr. BILIRAKIS] for his steadfast work in this area. I look forward to working with him, and all my colleagues who share our concerns, to achieve a unified and peaceful Cyprus in the future.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, today we commemorate the 21st anniversary of a very sad event when a democratic country, Cyprus, fell victim to a foreign army.

Today, all the people of that country continue to suffer the ill consequences of that intervention and a military occupation of part of Cyprus.

The situation in Cyprus deserves our attention.

As a country at the crossroads of the great civilizations of Europe and the Middle East, Cyprus has long been an island where people from all these civilizations and cultures mingled freely and in harmony.

Twenty-one years ago, the population of Cyprus lived in peace and friendship despite the differences in religion, language, and national origin.

The Greek Cypriots did not abuse their electoral strength, and despite being 80 percent of the Cypriot population, they did not use the opportunity to deny the other citizens and residents of Cyprus of their rights to full participation in that democratic system.

Nonetheless, outside intervention led to the division of the country.

Since then, all efforts to restore Cyprus to national sovereignty and to restore the legitimate government's authority over all the national territory have been to no avail.

I sincerely hope that all parties to this conflict will heed the consensus among the democratic states of the world and put an end to its illegal occupation of the northern portion of Cyprus.

A continuation of a divided Cyprus is not in the interest of any of the citizens of that country.

Since the foreign occupation of the northern part of the island, the per capita income of the Cypriots living under the legitimate and recognized Government of the Republic of Cyprus in the south has soared from less than $1,500 in 1973 to $10,430 in 1993, while those who live in the occupied territory have seen their incomes stagnating.

The European Union is moving toward a decision in which the residents of the area under the control of the legitimate Government of Cyprus will be offered membership in the European Union, while simultaneously taking measures to further isolate the residents of the occupied territory from their market opportunities in Europe.

A settlement in Cyprus would be good for all countries in the region.

As I understand it, the European Union is willing to negotiate a customs union with Turkey which would give Turkey duty free access to the 367 million residents of the European Union countries. Thus, both Greece and Turkey will be able to move beyond the misunderstandings and conflicts of the past and become part of a customs union that will bring increased prosperity to both countries.

But that customs union cannot be achieved until there is a settlement in Cyprus to restore the legitimate government to full control of the island, and the withdrawal of all foreign troops from that island.

The expansion of democracy throughout Cyprus is a noble goal, that I urge all Members to support.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, it is with great sadness and frustration that I rise tonight to commemorate the anniversary of an international crisis that has to date defied resolution. Twenty-one years ago, demonstrating a gross disrespect for both international law and human life, Turkish troops stormed into the Mediterranean island nation of Cyprus and stole its independence. Defiantly ignoring the calls of the United Nations and NATO to allow Cyprus to resume its existence as a free and sovereign country, Turkey currently maintains its illegal occupation of the island with a force of over 30,000.

As we gather here to remember those who have died, as well as those who today live in a divided country, we must also be sure to vigorously communicate our determination to persevere until Cyprus is once again free. We must continue to point out, as I and my fellow cosponsors have done in House Concurrent Resolution 42, that the presence of 30,000-plus Turkish troops "hampers the search for a freely negotiated solution to the dispute regarding Cyprus." Calling for a complete demilitarization of the island, House Concurrent Resolution 42 asks for nothing more than Turkish compliance with the numerous resolutions passed by the United Nations Security Council.

And if the Turks continue to resist the idea of a sovereign, independent Cyprus, let there be no doubt that we will continue—just as I and many of my colleagues joined together to do in voting for the Porter amendment to the fiscal year 1996 foreign operations bill—to cut U.S. assistance to them.

Mr. Speaker, we should be proud of our efforts in the Congress to resolve this situation, but there is much work that still needs to be done. Answers must be found for those who have disappeared, including five Americans who were in Turkish held territory, following the 1974 invasion; in the absence of a complete Turkish withdrawal from the island, human rights improvements for the Cypriots must be secured; and the regional instability caused by tension between Greece and Turkey must be contained.

Thus, although we hope we will not have to return to commemorate this event next year, be assured that we will return for as many years as it takes to once again see a peaceful and independent State of Cyprus.

Mr. Speaker, I again thank the gentleman from Florida [Mr. BILIRAKIS] for organizing this special order and for his leadership on this issue and on many others.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. I thank the gentleman for her wonderful words.

Very quickly, getting back to demilitarization. Demilitarization is crucial to a satisfactory resolution of the division of this island-nation. In fact, this couldn't have been made more clear than in a recent report submitted to the U.N. Security Council regarding its resolution renewing the U.N. peace-keeping force in Cyprus. In that report, U.N. Secretary General, Boutros Boutros-Ghali, referred to occupied Cyprus as "one of the most highly militarized areas in the world."

Demilitarization would alleviate the security concerns of all parties and substantially enhance the prospects for a peaceful resolution of the problem.

In addition to these efforts, the United States and the international community have undertaken numerous other endeavors to end the occupation, but again and again the Turkish side has resisted.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. KLINK].

Mr. KLINK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding, the other half of the Hellenian Caucus, for yielding, and I thank him for his leadership on this issue.

I note you have a brief amount of time. I will just try to mention some things I do not think have been said, maybe putting this in a different perspective.

When it comes to the topic of Cyprus, there are so many paradoxes involved here. If you go back to September 14, 1829, after a tenacious 8-year battle, Hellenic troops were able to conquer larger Ottoman forces. The Greeks finally won their recognition as a sovereign state. They did that with the support of countries like Russia, Britain, France, and the United States, all supporting a return of democracy to the Greeks.

Yet, now for 21 years, these countries and many others around the world have turned their backs on Cyprus and the situation in Cyprus. It is the Greeks themselves who are credited with the entire concept of democracy. As early as the sixth century B.C., the ideas upon which our own Constitution was written were being debated by the ancient Athenian philosophers. Greeks were the first people to believe all persons are created equal and should be recognized as so, and these people can go and govern their own affairs. Yet, for 21 years on Cyprus, the Greeks who lived there, the Cypriots there, have not been allowed to do that.

Hundreds of years after the Greeks first talked about democracy, our own Founding Fathers referred to the wisdom of Pericles, Plato, and Aristotle in drafting the principles of America's own democracy and Constitution. Yet, we turn our back for 21 years on what has occurred in Cyprus.

When and under what other circumstance would this Nation turn its back on five American citizens captured and held? The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. HOKE] referred to a 17-year-old boy, who is a 38-year-old man, if he is alive. He had his passport in his hand.

The family was there, along with five Americans, along with 1,600 Greek Cypriots, who have not been heard of for 21 years. Yet, our Nation stands by, giving millions of dollars in economic aid to Turkey, giving hundreds of millions of dollars in military aid to Turkey.

In fact, it is amazing, if you take a look at those figures, the amount of money coming from the United States to Turkey is about what it costs that nation to be able to occupy Cyprus each of those 21 years, and every time the United Nations has spoken up on Cyprus, they have found that the Turkish Government has not paid attention. They have ignored everything we have done.

So I say to the gentleman, I am proud to be here on the floor with you commemorating this, and I hope that we never have to do this again, that something before the next anniversary comes up will occur so the people of Cyprus can again know the freedom that Greeks for centuries have talked about and people of this country for 200 years have also spoken about.

JOB AND EDUCATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MCINNIS). Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from New York [Mr. OWENS] is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

TURKISH-OCCUPIED CYPRUS

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OWENS. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York [Mr. OWENS]. I appreciate it so very much. I will not take the full 5 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, as the gentlewoman from New York said, last fall, the President appointed Mr. Richard Beattie as special emissary to Cyprus to lend new impetus in resolving the Cyprus problem. Mr. Beattie, along with State Department Special Cyprus Coordinator, James Williams, have made several trips to Cyprus stressing U.S. resolve in achieving a lasting solution to the problems there.

However, it is evident, Mr. Speaker, that a solution to the 21-year-old problem on Cyprus will not be found until tensions are lessened on the island and the Turkish side agrees to come to the table and negotiate.

I am satisfied that the Government of Cyprus remains committed to seeking a peaceful, just, and viable solution. The acceptance by the Turkish side of U.N. Resolution 939 and of Cyprus President Glafcos Clerides' demilitarization proposal would substantially enhance the prospects of a negotiated settlement.

This past weekend, in my home in Florida, a gentleman said to me that in all the history of the country of Turkey, voluntary negotiations and agreements based on those negotiations are absent. He said, "they don't negotiate."

I truly hope that he is wrong. Turkey has many internal problems. American taxpayer dollars are intended to help them with those problems, not to help them to wage invasions on their neighbors and to illegally occupy other lands. Common sense, a true caring for their own people, their domestic needs, and world opinion all would seem to dictate that Turkey would want to work things out on a problem that they just do not need.

I feel that we in the Congress have a responsibility to use our influence to see that Cyprus is made whole again, to rescue the thousands of Greek-Cypriots who have become refugees in the land of their birth. Like those faithful Cypriots in my district and elsewhere, we must do our utmost in this cause.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, last week the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services and Education reported its appropriations bill for next year. The bill will be considered by the full committee on Thursday and by the full House next week.

On previous occasions, Mr. Speaker, I made it clear that nothing is more important in this House, nothing that we contemplate and nothing that we legislate on is more important than jobs and education.

And in our complex society jobs and education are inextricably interwoven. We cannot really hope to have a decent job in this complex society unless you do have an education.

When I came to Congress 13 years ago, I volunteered, and I wanted very much, to serve on the Education and Labor Committee. I thought that there would be a lot of competition for service on the committee which deals with education and jobs because in my district of course the most important thing that was clearly communicated to me by my constituents was a need for more jobs. We had one of the highest unemployment levels in the country concentrated in my district. People wanted jobs, they needed jobs, and of course, in order to qualify for some of the better jobs, they needed an education. I saw that right away. I wanted to serve on the Education and Labor Committee, and that was the name of the committee at that time, because of the fact that was the way I felt I could give the greatest amount of service to my constituents.

To my great surprise I found there was no great amount of competition for service on the Education and Labor Committee. The smarter members of the freshman class when I came in all told me that the Education and Labor Committee is a graveyard. You cannot get any contributions for our campaigns by serving on the Education and Labor Committee, and, true to form, I found that it was easy for me to get a place on that committee, and I, of course, still wanted a place, but there were many vacancies on Education and Labor, and year after year there were vacancies, and people came on that committee only after they could not find any other place.

But I think it was a great mistake on the part of those who chose that course. Nothing is more important than jobs and education. Nothing that we do is more important than what we do in order to encourage an economy which produces jobs and an economy which makes it possible for people to work and earn decent wages under conditions that are not life-threatening, under conditions that do not destroy the health of workers, and of course closely added to that is the need for education systems that allow people to qualify for these jobs, allow people to be able to operate and earn their own way in our complex society, and allow people also to meet other requirements in our very complex society.

So jobs and education are very important. They are very important, and in the Congressional Black Caucus alternative budget the only area that we propose great increases in the budget, although we were under the mandate to show a balanced budget over a 7-year period, and we met the mandate, and we balanced the budget over a 7-year period, we were not able to give increases elsewhere, but we did increase the education budget by 25 percent. We recognized that function 500, which is education and job training, was the area that had to be given priority.

It was quite pleasant to note that the President, President Clinton, when he decided to announce his own 10-year budget, chose to emphasize and to clearly make education and job training as a priority. The President proposes to increase over a 10-year period by more than $40 billion the education and job training budget. So we clearly have set that priority.

We are quite distressed by the fact that the overall Republican budget cuts in domestic spending call for a 4-percent cut over the 4-year period. Most programs will be cut only 4 percent if you average it all out. However the Republican appropriations bill shows that education has the lowest possible priorities because education is cut by 16 percent, not 4 percent, but by 16 percent, or $3.9 billion is cut out of funding for training and education and an additional 24 percent is cut out of other programs in function 500, labor programs, an additional $2.7 billion.

Now what does this mean in terms of the contract for America, the contract on America, some of us say the contract against America? What is the vision of the people who are in charge? The Republican majority want to do what in the future? They want to do what in the present? They want to do what in the future which leads them to believe that education and job training should be assigned the lowest possible priorities? The Republicans have clearly said that they want to remake America. We are going to remake America. They are going to remake America this year largely through the appropriations process. They are not able to muster the kind of votes in the Senate that are going to allow them to remake America through an authorization process where committee by committee and bill by bill they would be able to pass a bill which—bills which pass the House, so they are going to do it through the appropriations and budget process.

What do they do with jobs and education? Immediately they communicate to us that in the action taken by the Appropriations Committee the jobs and education are assigned a very low priority. The future of America, as envisioned by the Republicans in control of the House, is a future that does not need to have programs which provide the best possible education for the most people in America. The Nation does not need the best possible education system.

Yes, it is true that the Federal Government does not run the education system in America. Everybody knows that we all agree that only about 7 percent of the total education budget is money that comes from the Federal Government. The Federal Government plays a minor role in education. But it is a very pivotal role, and it is a role that needs to be expanded, and not cut off, and not diminished.

We have always prided ourselves on leaving education to the States and to the local school districts. Perhaps we have gone overboard. I think we have gone overboard and allowed too much to be left to the States and the local school boards over the years. We are not like France, or Great Britain, or Japan, or Germany. We do not have a highly centralized Department of Education running education for the whole country. We have never had that; there is no danger of us ever falling into that anytime soon in the next 100 years, I assure you, but we go to the other extreme. Instead of not only not having the highly centralized, centralized, overbearing direction of education from a central point, we are out of the picture too much, and the Federal Government has played too small a role, and for that reason our Nation has fallen behind in terms of the competence and productivity of its workers in terms of the reproduction of a labor force that is going to be able to meet the complexities of the future. We are in deep trouble because we have not played enough role. If the Federal Government were merely to get involved a little more, it would not hurt.

In fact, we could easily go to the point where the Federal Government is supplying instead of the present 7 percent of the total education funding, it can supply 25 percent. In fact, we should move toward that goal where at least 25 percent of the total education funding in America is supplied by the Federal Government, and then we would have 25 percent of the decision-making power. Even if we had 25 percent of the decisionmaking power, 75 percent of the decisionmaking power would still be left to the States and to the local governments. So there would be no domination of the Federal Government of education.

We do not need to lessen and diminish our role in education. We need to increase our role in education. It is quite dangerous, any vision of America which says that education is not important. Well, that is the vision that is being offered by the present Republican majority.

Perhaps it is because they are people whose mind-set is shaped by their philosophy that only an elite group can run America and only an elite group needs to get an education. I call them the elite minority that chooses to oppress the majority. Now that is a very difficult phenomenon in a democracy, and the great question is, Will the elite minority that controls the House now and controls the Senate, will an elite minority be able to stampede the great majority of Americans out there into accepting this oppression, accepting this denial of opportunity through education programs, accepting this large cut in job-training programs? Will the elite minority be able to stampede America, and divert their attention and get them interested in so many other things like abortion, and affirmative action, and voting rights, and various other immigrant-bashing, various other diversionary tactics, allow them to downgrade education, abandon job training, at the same time win votes? That is a great question; we do not know what the answer is going to be.

I assume that the majority of Americans will clearly recognize the threat, the danger, to their own well-being of that kind of philosophy and an elitist group which wants to govern only for that small group. It is a danger to the majority. The majority certainly will have at their disposal the instruments for dealing with that kind of philosophy now that it is clearly revealed.

It was not part of the Contract With America. Whether you like the Contract With America or not, in the Republican Contract With America they never stated we are going to downgrade the Federal involvement in education. They never stated we are going to give less money to job training, and less money to schools, and less money for drug-free schools and safe-schools programs. They never stated that. They never said we are going to cut school lunch programs. They never stated that. They never stated we are going to have fewer job training programs. In fact the impression was given that one of the things they definitely wanted to do was have everybody assume personal responsibility for themselves. The great emphasis was on reforming welfare, taking up the call of the President to change welfare as we know it.

They certainly in the Contract With America said they would do something about welfare in terms of making people move from welfare to jobs, and yet the very area which allows people to move from welfare to jobs is the area of education and job training, and that is the area which the Republicans have chosen to cut the most, the most. Sixteen percent they are cutting in education, 24 percent in other labor and job-training programs, 16 percent, 24 percent, in areas where people need the greatest amount of help in order to become self-sufficient in order to be able to get off welfare, in order to, those not on welfare, to be able to go on and get the kind of training they need for the kind of highly specialized and complex jobs that are opening all the time. We cannot have an America that is moving forward if we do not have every possible opportunity to upgrade the work force, every possible opportunity for people to help themselves.

Are Americans better off now than they were before the Contract With America started? Now that the Contract With America has been completed, are you better off now than you were before, or is the Republican concept of a Contract With America now out of control? Have they gone into areas where the contract never intended to go because certain people want to get revenge on labor? Certain people want to experiment with their own ideas about education? Certain people see the Federal Government in a way of local experimentation that might be more advantageous for people who want to privatize the schools or who want to pursue certain elitist agendas that cannot be pursued if you have a Federal Government which is trying to set some standards.

Goals 2000 is zeroed out. They do not want anything to do with Goals 2000. Goals 2000 is now zeroed out by the Republican majority, but Goals 2000 was conceived of by a Republican President following the lead of another Republican President. The whole movement toward reform of the public school education began under Ronald Reagan with the report of "A Nation at Risk." It was continued under George Bush when he set forth America 2000 and held a conference where he set forth six goals for American education.

President Clinton was at that Governors' Conference which set those six goals. President Clinton has followed through from America 2000 to Goals 2000. If you like Goals 2000 and America 2000 side by side, you are going to find they have more in common, they have more similarities, than they have differences. One of the big differences of course in America 2000 President Bush was proposing vouchers and greater privatization of schools, and President Clinton removed that completely from Goals 2000, but in spirit the whole idea of establishing standards where every school system could use those standards as a model, not—there is nothing mandated about it, there is nothing—the Federal Government does to force anybody to do anything, but the Republicans want to move away from the establishment of those standards. There was great bipartisan agreement on the establishment of the standards.

Goals 2000 went forward. It was passed, authorized, and funded with bipartisan support. Suddenly this new majority. The people who want to give us a contract have set off on a different course. They want to revolutionize in the wrong direction. Revolution is always a dangerous course. You know revolution is sometimes a necessary evil. You cannot change things any other way except by having a revolution.

But even the best revolutions go wrong. Revolutions are inherently destructive. They move too fast so rapidly, they try to do so much, that inevitably they will do a lot that is wrong. Why? Why have a revolution in an area where we do not need a revolution, where we have an evolution, a steady progress. Slow but steady movement in the right direction is evolution.

We have a pretty rapid evolution in education, an improvement of education. So why throw in a revolution which cuts off the Federal involvement by cutting off all the funds for Goals 2000 and by also rolling back other programs like chapter 1. Been funded for more than 25 years. Started under Lyndon Johnson to help poor school districts. Chapter 1, title I is now being cut drastically by the Republicans, an almost $1 billion cut.

Head Start for the first time. No Republican President or Democratic President has ever cut Head Start, but Head Start is now being cut by $200 million by the majority, by the Republican majority in the latest proposals to come out of the subcommittee on the Labor, HHS, and Education appropriations. That is what we are up against.

This Contract With America is out of control. The vision that the Republican majority has has to be examined and reexamined, because it is dangerous if it is a vision which sees education as being a low priority.

The assault on education and labor certainly was not openly contemplated or stated as part of the Contract on America, Contract With America. The contract said nothing about moving not only to downgrade education and to cut off job training programs but also to attack the workplace.

There is an assault on the protection of workers in the workplace. There is an assault on the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and all of the laws that they have promulgated to help protect the safety of workers.

Much of this does not cost any money. Small amounts of money are involved, but the appropriations and budget process is being used in order to cut and destroy the effectiveness of these safety and health programs.

They cannot pass bills and get them through the legislative process and get them signed by the executive branch. So in the absence of being able to pass authorizing legislation and get it signed into law, they are using the back-door approach of the budget and appropriations process.

They have cut off large amounts of funding for OSHA, the Occupational Health and Safety organization. They have cut off money for the Mine Safety Health Administration. They have cut off money for the National Labor Relations Board.

The largest cut of organizations and entities designed to help workers has been NLRB. Thirty percent has been cut. These big numbers might be hard to follow, but just consider your budget for your House for a week, and if it took a 30 percent cut, you know what 30 percent means, if you take your salary for 1 month and you take a 30 percent cut, I have some idea what 30 percent means.

These are relatively small agencies of the Federal Government, the OSHA, Occupational Safety and Health Administration, the Mine Safety Administration, the research arm of OSHA called NIOSH, all very small pieces. Even the National Labor Relations Board, as comprehensive as it is and as important as it is to labor relations, it is still a small part of the overall executive budget.

So when they make these cuts they do great damage. They make it almost impossible for the agencies to function, and they know that. They are legislating through the appropriations process, crippling the agencies. It is an assault on workers.

And you might say, well, who cares about workers? Well, when we say workers, we do not mean people who are out there digging ditches necessarily, people who haul garbage. Workers are wage earners. Anybody who earns a wage is clearly a worker in the category of what we are talking about, and the vast majority of Americans are people who earn hourly wages or they earn salaries on the basis of hourly wages. They have salaries, but they pretty much work on the same basis as hourly workers. If they work over 40 hours, they want overtime, et cetera.

So you have a vast number of people employed by other people who are wage earners or workers. If you want to call them, working class, middle class, or you can even reach out, include some small entrepreneurs. There are a lot of people with small businesses. They earn less than the average hourly wage earner, but they like the independence.

In fact, one of the things that came out when we were doing the studies on health care last year in preparing health care legislation was that a large percentage of the small business owners of America have no health insurance. A large percentage of those people are independent, and they have their own business, and they deprive pleasure from that, and they contribute greatly to our economy, and we need more of them. They cannot afford to even pay for their own health insurance.

So if you are talking about people working every day and they cannot afford to be without a week's worth of earnings, then you could include large numbers of small businesspeople in the same category.

When you get through adding the hourly workers and the salary people who are really working on an hourly basis and you add to them the entrepreneurs and the small business owners, you are talking about two-thirds of America. You are talking about working conditions and earnings for two-thirds of America. So it is two-thirds out there, at least, that we are talking about when we say that the Contract With America has chosen to assault working people, assault the working class.

The middle class is a working class, anybody who is in those categories I mentioned before.

This assault is about more than money. Yes, the balancing of the budget has been touted as one of the major goals of the Republican majority, and it has been conceded by the White House and a lot of other people that maybe we should be unlike all of the other industrialized nations. Maybe this Nation should work toward a balanced budget. A balanced budget might be a good idea.

It may not be absolutely necessary because there are a lot of other industrialized nations like Germany, France, Britain, Holland, that do not have balanced budgets, and they have larger national debts than we do, and they function pretty well, but let us break ground and lead the other industrialized nations into a situation where we have national balanced budgets.

It might be good idea to save money on interest which is mounting all the time. All of it is worth experimenting with. We will accept the need for a balanced budget.

The President makes much more sense than the Republican majority and the Congress. He says let us do it over a 10-year period. Let us not glorify suffering and pain. Let us try to minimize the suffering and pain. Let us not sit comfortably from our vantage point in the elite upper group expecting a tax cut while we let people suffer in the other two-thirds of the economy. Let us try to balance the budget in a way which is fair and spreads the burden to all of us. Maybe we should even balance the budget slowly and look for new sources of revenue.

In the Congressional Black Caucus alternative budget, we proposed that we move toward an increase in the burden, the proportion of the burden of revenue of taxation that is borne by corporations. You know, we have in this country a strange phenomenon where since 1943 the amount of money—the percentage or the proportion of the overall tax burden borne by families and individuals has gone from 27 percent to 44 percent. Individuals and families now bear 44 percent of the total tax burden.

Corporations went in the other direction. They bore almost 40 percent of the total tax burden in 1943. They went from almost 40 percent of the total tax burden down to 11 percent. At one point it got as low as 8 percent of the total tax burden.

Stop and think about that. Every American who is angry out there ought to think about what he is angry at.

You have got good reason to be angry. You have been swindled. Over the years, the Committee on Ways and Means has been owned by corporations. Over the years, the Committee on Ways and Means has allowed itself and the Congress, yours truly included, have sat paralyzed when Ways and Means bills are brought to the floor. You cannot amend them. You cannot do anything about them. And we have not fought vigorously enough and exposed what is going on to a great enough degree to make the American people understand. We have been swindled.

At this point, after adjustments made by the Clinton administration, corporations are carrying about 11 percent of the total tax burden, while individuals and families are paying 44 percent of the total tax burden. And again, under Ronald Reagan it went as low as 8 percent. Corporations were paying as low as 8 percent. So there is good reason to be angry.

But let me come back to my major point here. In the attack on workers, the budget is not of great concern. The numbers and the money is not of great concern. The attack on workers is an attempt to destroy a certain segment of our society, a certain segment of the political infrastructure, a certain segment that does not cater to the philosophy of the elite minority that is in charge now.

That is what we are up against. This assault is designed to destroy the voices and the ability to participate in the political process of two-thirds of the Nation's people. It is assigned to wipe out any influence and any effectiveness that organized labor has. Because organized labor is a very small percentage of the total voting population out there, 16 million and going down, but they have a consolidated solidarity that allows them to have much more influence than the numbers would indicate, and they are one of the few organized forces that is not already controlled by the elite minority that is seeking to change, remake the government of America. They are not under the control of the people who are perpetrating the Contract With America. So they must be destroyed, and that is what this is all about.

The assault on organized labor does not necessarily save money. But it accomplishes another purpose of wiping out the opposition. Couple the two, the assault on education with—an assault on education and job training with an assault on the instrument, the voice, the mechanism by which people can fight for more jobs and better jobs and fight for better education, and you have an indication of what the grand design of the elite minority is.

They have a vision of the future. Their vision of the future and their vision of what America should be is an America that has no room for two-thirds of the people. We are not going to share the great wealth of America with two-thirds of the people. We are going to govern, according to the vision of the elite minority, govern in order to enhance the advantages and refurbish the luxuries of a small elite group, and that is what this grand design was all about.

Turning to education for a minute, let us take a look at some of the cuts that were taken in the education area. Education for disadvantaged students, and Title I program, which supports tutoring and remedial education services for low income children and others who are falling behind in school, the House bill cuts the program by $1.1 billion. That is 17 percent. This is in one year. We are talking about the cuts in that 1-year period, not over the 7-year period; 1.1 million educationally disadvantaged students will be out of the program, 1.1 million students around the country.

The House appropriations bill destroys the drug free schools—the drug free and safe schools program. It cuts it 60 percent, eliminating services to 23 million school children.

Adult education programs support literacy training and basic education for adults. The House bill gouges $25 million out of the program, denying services in this small program to 125,000 adults.

It goes after Head Start, as I stated before. Head Start will have 50,000 fewer children than before. We were proposing that Head Start be increased. George Bush increased Head Start programs. Ronald Reagan increased Head Start programs. For the first time, we have a cut in Head Start programs, after both parties have continually agreed that this was a program that works. It is a program where the funding—and youth employment and training programs, the House bill cuts total training for disadvantaged youth by 54 percent.

To the youth of America, here is the message: Youth of America who are not in school, the programs are cut more than half. If you are in school, we are only cutting 16 percent.

If you are in school, we are only cutting 16 percent, but we care not about the future of the youth of America. We care about putting them in prison, we care about more money for prisons and more money to make certain that law enforcement operations round them up, but we are not interested in educating the youth of America.

To the youth of America we are saying that the summer jobs program, which is already inadequate and funds too few youngsters, will be totally eliminated. It funds about 600,000 youngsters throughout America during the summer months. They get a job if they are low-income youth and they qualify. That is going to be eliminated totally, completely, zero funding is there. For year-round training programs for low-income youth, the cut will be 80 percent. That almost wipes it out. That leaves only 20 percent. Just stop and think, your monthly paycheck or your weekly paycheck, if you cut 80 percent out of it, if you take $8 out of every $10, what do you have left? You can understand how this is a destruction of a program. It does not exist anymore if you make that big a cut in the program.

Training for dislocated workers, people who lose their jobs by having large defense plants close. We said they would be a priority. We promised them, we had a contract with them that as we cut back on the expenditures for defense, workers in those plants would have an opportunity to be relocated, to be retrained, and we had special programs to do that. Now we are suddenly going to cut those programs 34 percent, $446 million. This will mean that 140,000 worker who are in the program already will be dropped out and no new workers of any substantial amount can come in.

Training for low-income adults, those people on welfare that we yell we wanted to get off welfare and get a job, that will be cut by $225 million, denying assistance to 74,000 that we now give assistance to to get off welfare, we are going to have that many fewer who will have the opportunity to get jobs and to get off welfare. This is what we mean when we say we are going to reform welfare, change it as we know it.

It is really not necessary to decimate education and training in order to balance the budget. The issue is how we go about reaching the balanced budget and what programs should be given priority as I said before. The Republicans have clearly decided that education is not a priority. Their budget would cut education spending by $36 billion over the next 7 years. The Congressional Black Caucus, as I mentioned before, has put forward a detailed budget which would, like the Republican plan, eliminate the deficit over 7 years. We have told them how to do it. But our budget doubles the spending for education and training and other human investments. We make education our first priority. We make education our first priority, and President Clinton has also proposed in his 10-year balanced budget plan to make education the first priority. His budget calls for a $140 million over a 10-year period.

It is important that the American people understand that this attack on education and training by the present Republican majority is unprecedented. Every single Federal education training and education program on the books, all that exist now, were enacted with bipartisan support. We had both Republicans and Democrats agreeing. Former Vice President Dan Quayle, not a liberal Republican, not a moderate Republican but proudly a very conservative Republican, he wrote the Job Training Partnership Act, which is the principal job training program in existence now. When he was a Senator, Dan Quayle wrote the Job Training Partnership Act. Now the Republicans are trying to rewrite history and they attack the same Job Training Partnership Act as a failed Democratic program and they want to destroy it. We have always proceeded on a bipartisan basis with every education and training program since I have been in this Congress. We have taken exhaustive painstaking steps and we have made every effort, even when it was quite annoying, to achieve consensus on every bill that we brought forward to the floor. Neither Republicans nor Democrats were happy with every provision of each bill that we passed over the last 13 years, but in their entirety each bill commanded overwhelming bipartisan support.

At the start of this Congress, many believed that this bipartisan approach would continue under the Republican majority. At least in the area of education and job training, we thought we could continue the bipartisan support. After all, education and job training had not been mentioned in the so-called Contract With America. That turned out to be purely wishful thinking. There has been no moderation and no bipartisanship. Our Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities has turned into an unrelenting attack dog for the radical right, intent on dismantling and disemboweling each and every education and training program which serves the American people. They even took the first step immediately to change the name of the committee. It has always been called the Committee on Education and Labor. But instead of Committee on Education and Labor, they chose to rename it Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, leaving out Labor. The word labor is not contained in the name of the full committee, and the word labor is not contained in the name of any of the subcommittees. The attack on labor, the ideological obsession with destroying labor began with the renaming of this committee.

Since January, the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities has taken some of the following actions. We have gutted the school lunch program, as everybody knows. We have told the children of America, the Nation needs your lunch. It is not enough to feed all the hungry. If the money runs out before the end of the year in the case of block grants to the States, children will have to just go hungry. We have to, after all, maintain the money in the budget in order to give a tax cut of more than $200 billion over a 7-year period to the richest Americans. We must save money. The Nation needs the lunch of school children in order to transfer those much-needed funds to the wealthiest Americans who need a tax cut. That is the plan of the controlling Republican majority.

They have repealed Federal child abuse prevention programs, also. Most of our State laws and programs designed to prevent and prosecute child abuse originated with a series of Federal laws enacted during the 1970's. These set out model laws, guidelines and programs and provided States with funds to implement them. By all accounts, it has been an extremely successful Federal-State partnership, improving the detection, the prosecution and the prevention of child abuse. Inexplicably and without a single hearing, the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities has gutted all of these laws and taken away the assistance that is provided to States and community-based and parent organizations. Before we adjourn in August for recess, there are indications that this committee will add substantially to this already impressive catalog of carnage.

One of the bills that the committee proposes to act on is the elimination of the Department of Education. In 1995 in America at the end of the 20th century as we go toward the 21st century, they insist on pursuing this agenda of eliminating the Department of Education.

As I said before, our Nation does not have a strong and over centralized Department of Education to begin with. We have too little direction from the Federal level in education.

Now the Republicans are proposing to eliminate that. They will try to do it through the budget process, since they are not able to get agreement with the other body that they can eliminate it right away through an authorization process.

They want to eliminate all small programs. The committee also plans to repeal nearly every remaining elementary and secondary education program on the books. They want to replace them with a lump sum, unrestricted block grant.

The Republicans argue that many of these programs are too small to do any good and should be tossed out. The logic is bizarre. If a program is small and does not require much funding, if it is not hurting the balanced budget process, it is still tossed out. It is still destroyed because it is too small. You are either too large or too small.

B-2 bomber programs, programs to fund the B-2 bomber, on the other hand, are gigantic programs. I guess it is their size, the size of the B-2 bomber program, is what makes it attractive. We can see nothing else attractive about the B-2 bomber program; the B-2 bomber program, which will absorb about $30 billion over the life of the program to build a bomber that nobody needs, that the President says he does not want, that the Secretary of Defense says he does not need, that the Air Force says they do not want.

Nobody wants the B-2 bomber, but the House of Representatives insists on including it in the budget, maybe because it is such a large program that the size of it, the gigantic nature of it, is attractive by itself. Small programs are considered evil, useless, they must be eliminated. But a gigantic program that nobody wants, that will cost $30 billion or more, that at all costs we seek to retain. This is a kind of individual action that results from a vision of America which is distorted to begin with, a vision of America which is front-loaded to deal with the one-third elite population.

If you are going to be concerned with the elitists, then you insist that there be a tax cut of more than $200 billion. If you going to be concerned with the elitists, you insist on the funding of a B-2 bomber. Who makes the profits on a B-2 bomber? The company that manufactures it, the district that is lucky enough to get it as a plant where the planes or parts of it are going to be manufactured. You are playing to a very small group.

If you took the same $30 billion and were to spend it in the civilian sector, you could create twice as many jobs. There are many studies that have been conducted and they all agree: Every dollar spent for military hardware would yield twice as many jobs if you spent them in the civilian sector. We could spend the B-2 bomber money any other way in the civilian sector and create jobs for twice as many people as are created by funding the B-2 bomber.

The assault on education is an assault which is partly driven by a concern for money, the desire to save money by cutting back on the Title I program, the Head Start program, the school lunch program. All the money you save by cutting these programs can be used to fund the more than $200 billion tax cut for the rich, so we understand that that assault is driven by the need to get money to pay for the tax cut for the rich.

The assault on labor is not saving tremendous amounts of money. That is an ideologically driven assault, an assault which shows that the Contract With America is out of control. There are certain people who want to get revenge on labor. There are certain people who think that you can silence a large segment of America if you destroy organized labor which is at the core of the opposition.

So they have mounted this assault on labor unrelentingly starting with the Striker Replacement Act under the Democratic-controlled Congress. We twice passed a striker replacement act, which I call a right to strike act, because the provision in American labor law which allows employers to permanently replace workers, which is unlike any other industrialized nation except South Africa, that is a provision which takes away the right to strike. If you can be permanently replaced, then you really don't have the right to strike.

We passed a bill twice in the House of Representatives under Democratic control. We did have a President who signed it. Now we have a President who has taken the initiative. The President has ordered that in the area of government contracting, they will not contract with any employer who practices the permanent replacement of strikers. Any company that engages in the permanent replacement of strikers cannot do business with the Federal Government under the Executive order issued by the President of the United States.

That Executive order now has been challenged. Our committee, as part of its attack on labor, has proposed a bill to nullify the executive order on striker replacement. It was reported to the House by the full committee as H.R. 1176 on June 14, 1995.

Those of us who are on the committee, of course, we fought the passage of it. But the Republican majority has the numbers. So the President's order, his Executive order which says that no contractor with the Federal Government would be allowed to practice the permanent replacement of strikers, that order is now under attack, and the committee has reported to the full House now a bill which will strike down and nullify the executive order of the President.

□ 2215

That is an unprecedented step, by the way. Congress very seldom takes steps to nullify an Executive order of a President.

Another bill that they have passed out of the full Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, which used to be called the Education and Labor Committee, as part of the attack on labor, we passed what we call the Team Act. The full committee ordered H.R. 743, the Team Act, favorably reported on Thursday, June 22.

The Team Act can be called more accurately the Company Union Act. The Team Act sets up a situation where companies can establish their own union. Nothing is more dangerous for unions than to have the employers, the management, be able to pick the people they want to bargain with and who they want to work with. The Team Act could be called the Company Union Act, and that is passed as part of the assault on labor. It has come out of the committee and has been reported to the floor.

The OSHA reform, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, as I said before, is under attack. The OSHA reforms that have been proposed by the chairman of the subcommittee, Mr. BALLENGER, he has introduced a bill, which is H.R. 1834, entitled, "A Comprehensive Reform of OSHA," which could be better described as a death and injury act. It really guts the enforcement of OSHA and makes OSHA into an agency which has no viability. They cannot enforce any of their rules or their standards if they follow the procedures that are established in this act by Mr. BALLENGER and the subcommittee. That has been introduced and is still in the process of holding hearings.

The Fair Labor Standards Act reform is also under the Workforce Protection Subcommittee chaired by Mr. BALLENGER, and they are proposing, first of all, to gut the overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Child labor sections of the act will be dealt with later. They are starting by gutting the most important provisions related to workers, and that is the provision for overtime. That is part of the assault on labor that has gone forward.

Minimum wage. They refuse to deal with minimum wage at all. It is a negative assault on labor. By refusing to consider minimum wage or allowing any legislation to be considered which increases the minimum wage, they are assaulting two-thirds of the population out there suffering from increases in cost of living, living under an obsolete minimum wage standard.

The President and the Democratic leadership of the Congress are sponsoring an increase in the minimum wage of 90 percent over a 2-year period. That is our answer to the assault on the wages of workers.

The Davis-Bacon Act and the Service Contract Act, Davis-Bacon Service Contract Act protect workers when they are on government contracts. They must be paid the prevailing wages of a given area while they are working on a government contract program.

This was a program that was developed by Republicans. Mr. Davis was a Republican; Mr. Bacon was a Republican. It has been legislation always supported by Republicans previously. But now this revolutionary Republican majority wants to wipe out totally, repeal the Davis-Bacon Act.

Fortunately, they have not been able to do this through authorization, so one of the appropriations bills, the Transportation Subcommittee, has placed in the appropriations bill a provision cutting off all funds for the enforcement of Davis-Bacon on projects related to transportation. That is part of the assault on labor.

On and on it goes. The assault on labor, the assault on education, the two primary programs necessary for two-thirds of Americans to survive those are unrelenting, and it must be stopped. It is quite tragic that the vision, the vision that is driving the Republican majority is a vision which is a danger for two-thirds of the population.

Any vision for the future that caters to only a small percentage and refuses to endorse the principle of sharing the riches of our Nation, any such elite, selfish vision is a danger to the America of the future.

Oh, beautiful and spacious skies and acres and miles of rich, productive farmland, this is America which God has been quite good to. God is good to America, and America should be good to its people by sharing the great wealth. Hills and mountains full of gold, silver, copper, and uranium for energy; nature yields so much to America.

This is a land where democracy flourishes, a land with a written Constitution that establishes the framework for law and order, and the peace that comes as a result of that law and order makes rapid, unbroken progress possible. With all of the flaws and faults of our American system, we still have the best government that man has ever conceived.

America with political freedom and a free marketplace, a land where science and technology expand with infinite possibilities. This great America, preserved and protected by thousands of nameless soldiers who fought the tyranny of Tojo in Asia and the tyranny of Hitler in Europe; this America made available to all of us by God, nature and the accidents of history; this America protected and perfected by so many from George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, and millions of unpaid slaves who helped to build it. Abraham Lincoln, Franklin Roosevelt, and all of the soldiers known and unknown, who fought to hold on to our freedoms and our opportunities. This America belongs to all of us.

This is the America which we have to envisage; this is the America which you have to fight to keep; this is the America that the elite minority wants to destroy: The workers, the wage-earners, the salary workers, the small business people, the executives, the owners. This America does not belong to any one group, this belongs to all of the Americans.

The elite oppressive minority shall not prevail. This America belongs to all of us, and we will fight to keep it. We must fight the assault on education; we must fight the assault on labor. We must fight to preserve the America for all Americans.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. McINNIS). Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX] is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to share a dialog with my colleagues on issues that are very important.

We have talked to a great extent this evening and throughout the week about reform issues. One of the issues that I think is the most exciting that has taken place this week is one where Congressman SMITH from the State of Washington has introduced landmark legislation today, which is in fact going to help revolutionize and improve the credibility, I believe, of campaigns nationally, and I hope that she is successful.

I would ask you, Congresswoman SMITH, if you could tell us the background of why you have brought this legislation forward, and what you hope to accomplish.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, first I want to thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX] for being one of the first people to stand up and say, this makes sense and I want to sign on the bill, and the gentleman is an original sponsor and a brave man in this place to make this change.

This particular change is revolutionary. The reason it had to happen is this is a new Congress. We are doing business different. We are cleaning house, we have changed procedures. We had a major audit of everything going on, and now we need a new way of running campaigns. The old way just will not work any more.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. If the gentleman will yield, I think that is what the public said last November. They stated that they not only wanted the Congress to run better, be more accountable, spend less taxes and also spend less money, but they also said, what about cleaning up campaigns so that it is returned to the people and not controlled by special interests.

Please tell us a little bit more about the background, if you would.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, in Washington State, in 1992, after 4 hard years, we finally passed campaign reform, similar to what I am introducing here, and that many of our Members are already rallying around. What it did is it says, no money from outside your State. It limited PACs severely to where they are there, but they do not talk a lot with money. It eliminated gift places, they were called, office funds, but it is where lobbyists gave gifts so you could buy stereos and fancy clothes and things like that, and it said, no fund-raising while the legislature is in session. If you are voting, the money for your campaign should be contributed far, far away from voting. Therefore, it said no fund-raising. We are only in session there a few months, but it said, no fund-raising during the month before or the month after. So it sterilized.

Mr. Speaker, what this does is about the same. It says, no money from outside your State. No more PAC money, no more D.C. fund-raisers. You go back home, you campaign at home; no more gifts, no more trips.

We are going to change the culture. We are not going to ask all of the people here to jump in and change with their opponents, running back home and playing under the old set of rules. We are going to call unilaterally to disarm at a time certain to where everybody changes the rules and returns campaigns home.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Is it not true, Congresswoman SMITH, that you are going to level the playing field so that it will not be just incumbents that get reelected, it will be actually the best candidate winning based on merit and not who has the biggest war chest?

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Definitely. And I think what is going to be hard for this place to get used to is some of the folks have been here 20, 30 years, and some more than that. They have homes established here. Good people. They raised their children here. They have not had to spend as much time in their districts. They go back, they represent their people, but they do not spend much time there, or have to spend much time there. This will force them to go home.

Then in the election year, if your opponent is out there in the streets going door-to-door and they are going out and saying, elect me, it will probably mean this Congress is not in session as much, and those people will have to spend more time in their States, which I think is really effective.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. If the gentleman will yield, they have to be more accountable back to the people.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Yes. But it will be kind of scary.

This is revolutionary, but I think just like in Washington State, both sides of the aisle, both parties, everybody fought it for a long time. When they finally decided, some of them before it was passed, and some after, that it was OK, now they love it. Because no money can talk while they are voting. Lobbyists can talk with persuasion instead of their checkbooks. Now you will find that most people in Washington State just cannot imagine going back under the old money system.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. If the gentleman will yield, what has been the rate of growth as your staff and you have brought these facts together for the House, both Republicans and Democrats? What is the total PAC contributions to House campaigns that the gentleman has charted here for us tonight?

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. I just happened to bring a chart to show the gentleman.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. That is good.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. As the gentleman will see, in 1984, just 10 years ago, a little over, there were $80 million a year given by PACs, and now it is $132 million. I think what is significant about that is, and I should have another chart, it is four-to-one to incumbents. So what has happened, except for the little blip last year where some of us were, as I was, a write-in candidate, but some folks really had to take on an incumbent, and it was rare that an incumbent could go out even under a really good challenge. Because first of all, the incumbent had unlimited mailing, which we limit in this and do not let them mail 90 days before the primary and 90 days after.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. If the gentleman will yield, what is the House rule now?

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. It is 60 days, and we are going to tighten it down so that it is even tighter.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. So what you have going to be able to do now is make sure that the newsletters or any other communications from an incumbent will actually be related back to governmental work as opposed to those items which are just being sent out in an attempt to be reelected.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. That is right. If you are trying to level the playing field and you are driving campaigns home and you do it all, but you leave the unlimited franking or reasonably unlimited franking, what happens is the incumbent has these great ideas about twice a week to send out to their colleagues to build their idea. If the idea is that great, it certainly is good in the first year of your term and not just extra good in the last. What we have found is that most of the franking is spent in the latter part of the term instead of the first part.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. If I understand correctly, not only is your legislation going to limit the time period by which franked mail can be sent, but as a result of your efforts and the other reformers that have worked with you in the House, we have now cut by one-third the amount of mail that can be franked generally for House Members.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. That is right. It will work really well, because we will still be able to communicate, even ask people to come to town halls with fliers and things like that. They will not need as much in the next year, because we are going to cut out what they would mail when this passes. Therefore, it changes politics as usual in the year of the election, but still lets you work with your constituents and communicate with them.

What we will see is what we saw in Washington State: campaigns dropped in cost by a third in one election cycle after the campaign measure passed, and it did not come from people. People's contributions went up, in fact. They realized they were really players.

It came out of the 15 big. Those are the big corporate, the big labor and the big trial lawyer groups, real estate agent groups, all of those groups. All of a sudden they could not give like they could before, and it dropped campaign costs by a third. It dropped campaign costs for all candidates, so there was an equal playing field.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. With regard to the political action committees, or PAC's, as you discussed what percentage have they been of incumbents' campaigns as relates to other expenditures?

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. I have just got 1994, but this seems to be pretty consistent. Incumbents were getting 53 percent of their contributions from individuals and 44 percent from PAC's and less than 3 percent from parties. Challengers, on the other hand, were getting 11 percent from PACs.

When you take a look at this, obviously PAC's really weighed in heavily for incumbents and not near as heavy for challengers. If you want to win as a challenger, you had to get a lot more individuals, but this will change. In Washington State it just changed substantially.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. As far as the charts there, this is the 1994 figures, the most recent campaigns then. You found, based on what happened in Washington State, that you had a dramatic change in the culture there? Is that right?

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Yes.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. What happened in Washington State that you are saying today to the American people we think is going to change for Congress as well?

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. We returned campaigns to people. Instead of the legislature operating with fundraisers and evening events and worrying about lobbyists' contributions, they were able to get about business. Instead of having the first few weeks right before the session started with dozens of campaign fundraisers every day, they were able to plan an agenda, because they could not raise money. Instead of the incumbent mass mailing in the last year to be sure they were re-elected, they had to get out and get amongst people because they could not do it anymore. It did what we wanted to do. We had to return these campaigns to people and get them away from PAC's.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Part of the reform effort we have seen in the freshman class as a Republican has been the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BROWNBACK]. I would ask him to enter our colloquy and give us what he thinks is going to be really the next step.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Thank you very much for the gentleman yielding. I associate my comments with the gentleman from Washington and her comments about campaign finance reform, the excellent work she has done in the State of Washington. I think that can carry over to Washington, DC. We need to get this sort of reform taking place. I think the first step about being able to do that is bringing these sort of facts and figures out and bringing to the American people how campaigns are financed, how the system so much favors the incumbent. That is why a number of us support term limits. For one reason, the system so favors incumbents, this is the only way you can get at the system is through term limits.

Another thing, another key portion of it is the campaign finance system. You can see the difference between incumbents and challengers on the chart the gentlewoman from Washington [Mrs. SMITH] puts forward.

I want to say this is a very, very important thing to look at. The American people, on November 8, 1994, said to us, "Look, clean your own House up. Make the government smaller. Get that place under control. Return the people's House to the people." That to me is a lot of what this is about, returning the people's House to the people, having them fund it, having them finance it, having them see and be the focus of our point.

When I go back to eastern Kansas where I represent and where I ran during the campaign, the people kept saying all the time during the campaign, "Don't forget us, don't forget us." It seemed like an odd question to me. "Why do you think we'd forget you?" Then you start getting around the system and how it is built and how it is funded, how it operates, you see pretty quick why the people are scared we are going to forget them. I think the gentlewoman from Washington [Mrs. SMITH] is on target. I applaud her efforts.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. I wanted to ask the gentlewoman further, your legislation does more than change the culture with regard to campaigns and how they are run and leveling the playing field for challengers, but this gift ban where we actually have lobbyists give lunches or golf and things like that, which the public does not appreciate nor understand, what would your bill do in a forward way?

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. You know, I think you keep saying my bill.

This is several of our bills, yours, the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BROWNBACK], but the gift ban section come from an earlier bill that we introduced, the three of us, the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BROWNBACK], myself, and you earlier in session, and I think either one of you could explain just as well as I can. But it obviously just abolishes gifts, but I would certainly yield to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BROWNBACK] to probably explain that just as well as I can, probably better, because he has championed this issue.

Mr. BROWNBACK. The gift ban is pretty simple. It is a "just say no" gift ban. That is just simple, saying "no" to gifts. The American people in many respects think the institution is bought and paid for sometimes by very small gifts and trinkets, other times by very big things, and the gift ban legislation says "just say no," do not accept it, you do not need to take it, why have it. We are paid a reasonable salary, and we get reasonable pay for what we do here. Why do we need to have all of these gifts, plus why are we given gifts in the first place? Is there something going on untold that takes place? Some people think it is, some not.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. It could be you are so handsome, both of you, but I think it is something else.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. It has more to do with what we are voting on.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. That is right. I do have something I want to ask you. We have both got pressure on it from other Members. There is a lot of concern about the provisions that eliminate all trips from special interests or any group wanting to lobby this place. Address that, and why we all made that decision, because some of our colleagues are real concerned about the change, away from, to no trips.

Mr. BROWNBACK. To me, the reason for it is very clear and very simple, and that is that frequently institutions or groups will seek to fly somebody as a Member of Congress to a particular place to be able to catch his ear for a longer period of time. I do not think people here are bought and sold for a trip. That does not take place. They get then additional time for the ability to influence a particular Member of Congress on a particular point of view. The people we represent do not get the same chance to do that. That is the idea with this. I do not think Members should be particularly scared about this provision at all, that this is something that we are saying if it is a reasonable trip, if it is worthwhile, we have travel accounts that are associated with this. If there are things that can be used that way, that that is the way that he ought to go with it, but it goes back to the people not trusting what takes place in the House of Representatives. This is their House. We are the people. We are the freshest from the folks. They are saying they do not trust it. Here is another way to try to say, OK, there are some institutional flaws with it. Let us get rid of those. Let us get about our job and let us move on down the road. I think we can operate a very strong House of Representatives without these gifts being given.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Another reason why I think this makes sense is no one really comes here with the idea, "I want to be in Congress to have a trip or a gift," and no one would come for that purpose, no one would stay for that purpose. Let us get rid of them, restore the confidence and credibility of the institution, along with the other kinds of reforms that are institutionally being made, whether it be legal reform, welfare reform, regulatory reform, all the things that help make the country work better, make sure that Government is more responsive by leading by example within this institution on the gift ban and reforms of campaigns; you are going to attract some quality people who never would have run before.

With term limits, they will all follow us in Congress, revitalize it and make it a stronger, more accountable place.

Mr. BROWNBAC. On that point, that is absolutely true, and plus one thing I would add, in a representative democracy, it is critical that people have trust and faith in the representative and the representative system. They have lost that faith. We have got to do what we can to restore that.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Well, you could not have said it any better. I have been wrestling with ways; a lot of amendments, a lot of the bills that have come forward on ethics in campaign and gifts have come from well-intentioned people, and they try so hard to get a bill that will make the people here happy and, and you go through the exceptions, and they might have some logic to them for some person, but when you put them all together and each of these bills that have come before us have exceptions, then there is still the problem of the appearance of evil. We know that most of our colleagues here are pretty honest people. Only a few break rules or are dishonest. They are here to do a good job.

But the American people look at it and go, "Just change," and I think that we cannot any longer just mickey with the system. I think we just have to change it to show them we are really a new Congress, a clean Congress.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. In terms of the legislation filed today and discussed before the press corps of Washington, where do you see the next step? How is it going to be passed? Many people who are entrenched in Washington do not want to see it. How will passage come besides having our support? Where do you think it is really going to have a maximum effort?

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. It is going to come from the American people. It is going to come from the American people. Our plan, as you know, is to go to large groups of Americans, organized groups and small groups, and bring them together and make sure that they lobby their legislator and tell them what they want. If they do not deliver the votes on this, this time next year we will be having the same debate because this place will not change itself. One thing we know after November, this place is really interested in what the voters think. We know they put us in, watching us, and I know they can take us out, and they are not going to accept the old. We have given them a taste of the new, of the change, of the clean Government. We have audited this place. We have reduced staff. We have opened up doors and blown out cobwebs that have never been there before, and they now know we can do it, and I do not think they are going to accept anything else but a cleaning.

Next month the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BROWNBAC] and myself will be speaking to the United We Stand conference in Dallas, with nearly 10,000 activists from around the Nation. You will be contacting groups, I say to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX], and we will each individually divide up the Nation and get people to work this bill. People will deliver it, or it will not happen. We are going to do our part. I am going to do my part, and you both are.

But it will take people.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Like what you did in Washington State, I say to the gentlewoman from Washington [Mrs. SMITH]; that is how we will succeed here.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. The people let us not.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. One at a time. The people will make a difference. I could reflect also on another item today where reforms like yours being introduced, in fact, we came to fruition, one of the major items that we talked about on day one was to have a House audit so we could find out what the books were like and what the finances were of our own House for the first time ever. I would ask the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BROWNBAC] for his force reflections on where we are at this point, what has been discovered, and where we go from here.

Mr. BROWNBAC. On day one of this new Congress, we said there were a number of reforms we would pass. One of those things on day one we said we would do was audit the House of Representatives for the first time in the history of this institution, long overdue, particularly when you consider this is the place that has had a House post office scandal, a bank scandal, a restaurant scandal, and any other number, and yet we did not need to have an audit. Well, yes, it needed an audit and we have had an audit released today.

We told people on that opening day, and we told the auditors, "Follow your noses. See what you find in this particular audit, in this situation." Price Waterhouse, a private major accounting firm in this country, had over 100 auditors auditing the House of Representatives for the past, since that time, since January 4 when we passed that, and they only looked back at the past 15 months for as far as when we took over in November 1994, they looked back 15 months, so they are just talking about a time period from the middle of 1993 to November 1994, and auditing this institution back through that period of time. I think they need to go back further and look more thoroughly at this.

But today they released this report, and it was a scathing indictment of the institution and the institutional failures, so much so that these auditors could not issue an opinion as to the fiscal soundness or the financial situation of the House of Representatives. They could not even issue an opinion. They said the records are so bad, they said we had two sets of books during this time period. Now, this is under the old Congress. This is under the Congress that was controlled by one party for 40 years in a row, so two sets of books. We could not find the audit trail sufficiently to be able to tell you what the financial conditions of the House of Representatives is today. They said that if this was a private business, you could not get a loan, because we could not say if your books were solid or not and, furthermore, you would be bankrupt.

They said if you were a governmental institution, which this place is, you would have violated the law since 1990. We are on cash basis accounting. The whole Government went to accrual basis accounting the year I was born except for the House of Representatives.

Now, this is itself a massive indictment of what took place financially in this institution, and this is just a 15-month window that we have examined, and that is coming out today.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. I also noticed in my copy of the report, which went to each Member, and it was a bipartisan initiative, it showed that actually bills had not been paid, equipment was not accounted for, and there were security problem with the computer system, within the internal system. I was happy to see at the end of the day, and I am sure you were as well, that every single Member of this Chamber voted to have the inspector general do the followup work required, hopefully with your help and the gentlewoman from Washington [Mrs. SMITH] we will be able to go backward in time sufficiently suitable enough so we can get the other information we need so we do not see these institutional errors continue.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. If the gentleman will yield, you know, I looked at this, and again I am an optimist. I though how great we have the opportunity to change it, and this is a Congress that will. You know we can look back and spend a lot of time on being made, but we can look forward and we can say we know what is wrong and we can make changes.

But also I felt really good because many of the things recommended when it came to Government costs in this is too much, barbershops, beauty shops, all of those things we had already started fixing, the printing costs, all of those. I felt good we had already started changing. I felt good we could see where we could change, and that I believe we can move forward. And I also felt good that we are not as partisan as I have seen in the past and in other layers of Government. We are giving it to an outside counsel to look at. We are not playing around with it. We are not holding our own hearings on it. We are just saying, "Here, you take it, and you followup on this," and I was proud of us for doing that. I think that was a very wise move for this institution to take, to not politically make this a football.

Mr. BROWNBACK. If the gentlewoman would yield for just a moment, I think those are absolutely appropriate comments, and that is what the American people want us to do. They want us to clean our own house up first. They want us to produce a smaller Federal Government, clean up the House of Representatives, and return to the basic values that built the country, and we are getting a good start on doing those things.

I am just amazed that when I ran for Congress, and I ran a lot saying, "We're got to change Congress," I did not comment about—enough about how bad the institution had—

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Did not even know.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Yes, I guess I didn't realize it, but to never have been audited, to have this sort of lack of ability to even be able to render an opinion, I mean the financial situation just stinks.

What I am happy to see is we have blown the lid off of that. OK; it is no longer just this hidden little dirty secret that is only known around Washington.

Look, here is the audit. I have got some summaries here. The audit is inches thick that we have released out today. Here is what it is, folks. Let us get to the bottom of this, and at least we have blown open the lids on the Capitol, and given the people's House back to the people, and to me this is part about reestablishing the faith of the American people in representative democracy which we absolutely have to do to continue to make the tough choices for the future of our great Nation, which I was just home in Kansas, and I was down in Pittsburg, KS, this past weekend, and people there are saying:

"I'm scared for our Nation."

"I'm scared for our future."

What's going to take place in the future of this country?"

Because they are just fearful we are going to be self-serving, we are not going to take care of the real business we need to, we are not going to clean up the House, and this is a further statement:

"No, we are."

It is a start. We passed the audit bill. Here is the first installment. We are going to continue on it, and we have got to get the bad odor out of the place that we are finally started on.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I think it is a fact that what is really clear here is that not only are we talking about reforming Government, and that is downsizing, privatizing, consolidating, eliminating agencies which have become bloated or duplicating what is in local governments, much with your work with the New Federalists, Congressman BROWNBACK and Congresswoman SMITH, but what we are also doing is, like you said earlier, the institution itself has become so inbred with the problems of the books having two systems, of having no change, kind of the status quo was maintained. We have a new sign on this House, said the status quo no longer lives here. Everyone is allowed to question everything.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, the Speaker and the leadership is saying to freshmen, "Please question the system," and that goes for the American public. If they got something they think where the Federal Government is off base, we are here as Representatives in Congress and the Senate so we can make those fundamental changes in the institution, in the Federal Government. We want to be more responsive, more accountable, spend less money, do more to help businesses grow, produce, and hire, give individuals to be all they can be as well, and by listening to the American public, going back as often as you do to Kansas and LINDA does, Congresswoman SMITH, to Washington, we will start hearing those kinds of suggestions which will be institutional as well as governmental.

Mr. BROWNBACK. If the gentleman would yield, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT] that is also in our class, he has a saying that he uses from his grandmother. It says: "If you always do what you always done, you'll always get what you always got."

It is her statement, and what I am so pleased about is that we are not just doing what we always done. The standard thing to do would be to say, OK, when you take over, "Well, let's not really look at the books, the audits. You might get at your own Members. You might get at some people you don't want to."

No, no, we are going to audit the place. The thing we have to do now is be vigilant and make sure that this sticks, that the next time the auditors look at this place, and we do an annual audit, and they look at an audit, they can issue an opinion where the House of Representatives is, and they will not say this place stinks, which is what the auditor said today basically.

I was in the committee where they released the information, and they were saying they cannot compare this to any other institution they have ever audited previously. I mean it has its own set of records, and it seems to serve its members more than be interested in accountability. It was the auditors' own statement. Well, that is a staining indictment on the system. I am glad to say that that system is being thrown out—

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. As far as I am concerned, we got a breath of fresh air coming through the Congress today not only with the audit, but with the legislation of the gentlewoman from Washington [Mrs. SMITH] to get a new perspective. This may be a catalyst for change in government reform, political campaign reform, in gift ban, and I was just speaking to a taxi driver earlier this evening. He said:

"You know, I like it the way the place is being questioned now." He said, "I'm reading more books on history. I'm looking into what the Government's doing. I'm glad that you freshmen are questioning things that I always thought should be questioned, and you're doing it, and whether you're a Republican or Democrat in this 104th Congress, things will get better, you'll be more accountable, and you're listening more to the folks back home."

I think they want to make sure we continue doing it.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Yes, and if the gentleman would yield, that is the key to representative democracy, and they feel like all they have had is more of an imperial Congress than a representative democracy. We have got to continue. That is why campaign finance reform, gift ban, the continuation of the audit. Let us continue to looking forward and backward at what is taking place. We have got to reinstall that trust and faith in the American people and this institution.

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield for a brief statement, I think though that we have to remember that we will only be able to do it if the American people are behind us and pushing. This place still have rooms that need to be cleaned, and it gets to be real hard for the oldtimers when they see so much happening, and so the American people are going to have to call and say, "We want the Brownback-Smith-Fox or the Fox-Smith-Brownback Clean Campaign Act." They have to do that. They have to say, "We want the Clean Campaign Act." They need to call their Members and tell them that, if they do not do that, it will not happen because this is going to be a tough change.

When we get into this audit, they need to commend us for doing it, not point fingers at all of us for cleaning it up, and we need the support of the American people. This is going to be a tough job, and we cannot do it by ourselves.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Well, I want to thank the gentlewoman from Washington [Mrs. SMITH] and the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BROWNBACK] for their participation in this special order tonight which dealt with reforming the Congress, and for keeping the revolution alive, and we thank them for their efforts and leadership.
